Married Couples To Renew Vows At St. John's Church May 25

The priests of St. John's Parish are inviting all married couples of the parish to renew their marriage vows at a ceremony Saturday, May 25 at 7 p.m.

Rev. John J. Tierney notes: "we realize how important good homes are for the development of children. We appreciate that the homes makes the parish. This, then, is an effort to improve the parish by stressing the importance of the family."

Married couples will soon receive an invitation to attend this renewal service. The ceremony will start with the 7 o'clock Saturday evening Mass. It is intended to join all of the couples in the center aisle of the church. After the Gospel and homily the couples will renew their marriage vows. Prayers will be offered to ask God's blessings upon the marriage, the home and the family.

All couples will be invited, whether they are married one year or 50 years. Recognition will be given to the couple married most recently and to the longest married. Following the Mass, those attending will be invited to a social at the school hall. An orchestra will play for dancing until midnight.

Fr. Tierney said the ceremony will not be an effort to match the original ceremony of marriage.

"However," he said, "this is an opportunity to thank God for the many blessings associated with their married life. It also will be a special occasion to ask God's blessing for the remaining years of their life together. This is a parish effort to help the parish by helping families."

10 Year Program

$55 Million Condominium For Quarry St.

Kanavos Enterprises of Dedham announces plans to construct a $55 million privately-owned condominium development on Quarry St., West Quincy.

Development will be staged over a 10-year period. Construction of the first phase is expected to get underway later this year.

The 73.7 acre site, already zoned for a Planned Unit Development (PUD), is located on the northerly side of Quarry St., beginning just beyond Common St., on the west side and ending at Packards Lane on the east side.

The property was originally utilized as a granite quarry. After quarrying operations ceased nearly 30 years ago, the site was purchased and used as a rubbish depository for miscellaneous fill and debris, leaving the filled quarry hole areas of the site unbuildable.

Extensive soils investigations reveal that only 3.5 acres, or 4.86 percent, of the site are suitable to support structures. However, the developers regard the site as one of the most exciting in the Greater Boston area.

It offers an unparalleled, unobstructed view of Boston and Quincy Harbors, the Blue Hills and the downtown Boston skyline; convenient accessibility to Boston and Cape Cod via the Southeast Expressway [one mile west of the site] and easy access to the outlying suburbs via Route 128 [two miles southwest of the site].

The site is conveniently located to public transportation into Boston, and shopping and other services in the Quincy Central Business District, only one mile west of the site.

According to Harold J. Kanavos, formerly of Quincy, executive vice president of Kanavos Enterprises, the firm will provide mini-bus services to residents to Quincy Center and the MBTA for quick, convenient, energy-saving transportation.

The basic building type is planned with a double-loaded corridor structure averaging 12 stories, according to Kanavos.

The general construction for the complex is precast concrete planks and masonry bearing walls. The exterior walls will be non-bearing fireproof insulated enclosure with double-glazed aluminum windows. Structural support of the buildings will be poured concrete bearing on bedrock, with sub-grade levels constructed of poured-in-place concrete columns and slabs. Underground parking and decks will be built of either precast concrete or poured-in-place with above-ground areas shielded from the street with decorative masonry panels and plantings. Such a plan promises to enhance the ecological balance of the area.

The PUD represents an additional $1.5 million in taxes.

generated annually to the City of Quincy.

In addition, the PUD is expected to increase neighborhood property values, by way of providing a new environment for homes in close proximity to the site, and enhancing the integrity and validity of these single-family residences.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 new construction jobs will be available over the 10-year building period, which represents $45 million in wages; plus 500 to 1,000 jobs in the downtown Quincy retail area to provide additional services for residents of the PUD.

Marketing studies also indicate that residents of the complex will deposit $16 million in local savings banks accounts, and will boost sales in Quincy's retail business district by over $20 million annually.

Sale prices of the one and two-bedroom condominium units are expected to range from about $38,000 to $60,000, according to the developer, and will be conventionally financed by banks and insurance companies.

Haley & Aldrich, of Cambridge, a world-wide soils investigations firm, has been cited for what may be an award-winning engineering method using electronic sounding equipment to "visualize" the exact locations, depths and breadths of the quarry holes on the Quincy property.

Kanavos Enterprises is one of the largest real estate and development firms in the area, and has shown its capability of working successfully with city officials and neighborhood groups.

Williamson Realty Expert Brokers In Condominium Promotion, Sales

"You say you're not satisfied - you want more for your money - tell you what I'm gonna do!

"For no extra charge, I'll throw in a Master Deed, a restrictive easement to a balcony, a 3.25 percent interest in the common areas, and voting rights enforced by Chapter 183A of the General Laws!"

While hardly fitting for the successful condominium broker, these words nonetheless emphasize a well known fact to buyers, bankers, brokers, and lawyers: condominiums are an entirely different breed of cat from ordinary residential housing. As such, "condos", as they are called in the trade, require a new level of expertise on the part of the real estate broker.

Williamson Realty of Braintree, is well versed in both the practical and the academic aspects of condominium sales. The new firm is a partnership, owned and operated by two brothers, Alan D. Williamson of Braintree and Gerald F. Williamson of Hanover. An unusual combination of backgrounds - Alan has an extensive sales background; Jerry is an attorney at law - seems to have produced a winning combination in real estate brokerage: a team of condominium specialists.

The firm is presently completing the marketing of the Burns Manor condominium in Quincy [90% sold], an unusual, ultra-modern castle-like structure in Quincy Center built by the O'Connell Brothers Construction Company. The promotion of Burns Manor posed a most difficult sales problem for the Williamson Brothers. Although the building was carefully constructed with the finest materials obtainable, the condominium features none of the usual popular amenities such as swimming pools, saunas, tennis courts, and club rooms. Furthermore, the exotic architecture of the building resulted in a variety of unusual floor plans with asymmetrical rooms.

Alan, the modeling expert in the firm, noted: "It's a lot of fun decorating and setting up rooms with circular or trapezoidal layouts, but the sad fact is that most people still like square rooms."

Latest challenge to confront Williamson Realty is Royal Highlands, a 35-unit condominium on Quarry St., Quincy, built by Dunphy & Craig, Inc., developers. The new building is a $1.5 million project recently signed to an exclusive brokerage contract. Royal Highlands is easily the largest single listing in the history of the Quincy and South Shore Realtors' Multiple Listing Service [MLS].

"This one is a whole new ball game," remarked Jerry, who researched the project thoroughly. "Although the cost per square foot and area figures are competitive, this condo is going to move because of the amenities, which are really something else. Just for openers, Royal Highlands has an indoor heated pool, rooftop redwood deck with a fantastic 20 mile ocean view, saunas, and balconies large enough to really use."

Although "condo" living is clearly not for everybody, the high costs of quality housing added to the freedom from maintenance worries are creating a wave of popularity for condominium developers and buyers. Williamson Realty, by its early involvement, unusual marketing methods, and energetic efforts, is determined to ride the crest of that wave.

ROYAL HIGHLANDS, a six-story $1.5 million luxury condominium on Quarry St., is the largest single Multiple Listing Service listing in the history of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors. The structure, with an indoor pool, saunas, recreation areas and function room, is being marketed on a six-month exclusive by Williamson Realty of Braintree, whose officers are shown above. Left to right, Frank Dunphy, president; William Craig, treasurer; Gerald Williamson and Alan Williamson, partners.

North Girls' Softball Team Has 'High Hopes'

Despite two losses in its first three games, Coach Cheryl Manoli expects her North Quincy girls' softball team to improve on last year's record and make a good showing in its first Suburban League season.

Miss Manoli has high hopes her Raiderettes can qualify for the Eastern Mass. tournament. A team must win a league crown of 75 percent of its games and she feels North has a good chance.

North last week won its first game, 13-9, over Brookline as Denise Bereszniwicz hit a home run, Cheryl Walsh a two-run triple and Nancy Laing had two hits and two runs driven in. Lynne Tabor and Saralee Cobban, the winning pitcher, stood out in the field. Elaine Shea earned a save in relief, pick up.

"We hope to improve on last year's 6-5 record," Miss Manoli said. "Although we are now in the Suburban League and play a more demanding 18-game schedule, I feel we have the experience and depth that was lacking in previous years. I have all of last year's starters except one and some good looking newcomers."

Leading the Raiderettes are seniors Denise Bereszniwicz at shortstop, catcher Kathy Conroy and Lynne Tabor in left field. All are three-year veterans.

Cheryl Walsh at third base and Jonlyn Riley at first base, round out the definite starters. Miss Riley is backed up by Nancy Laing.

Nancy Willard and newcomer Linda Henry will share the second base duties and the other two outfield positions will be rotated among Kathy Hogan, Saralee Cobban, Joanne Maloney and Paula Giordano.

Elaine Shea and Sharon Cobban are the top pitchers.

Rounding out the squad are Terry Conroy, Kyle Harrow, Sherri Bevans, Patty Nestor and Mary Beth Dawe.

"More than half our starters have played together for two years or more, while the newcomers show promise and a lot of determination. Combining speed and more power than in recent years, we will offer a balanced attack against our opponents."

Gallagher Pleased With First Ladies' Performance

Although girls' track won't become an official sport until next year at Quincy High (also North Quincy), Pete Gallagher, who started the sport at Quincy and has coached the girls on an informal basis for three years, is receiving some outstanding performances this spring and is pleased with the First Ladies' performance despite a 1-3 record.

Quincy Friday hosts Cambridge Latin at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, entertains Braintree Tuesday and faces Needham at the stadium next Thursday. The First Ladies will compete in a regional meet May 18 at Blue Hills Regional High School in Canton.

"We are especially strong in the field events again," Gallagher said. "We outsourced Weymouth South by a big 34-11 margin in the field events and should do well in these events against any team. We look strong in the 100, should be all right in the half mile and mile but we still have problems in the 220 and 440. Our 440 relay team is also very good."

Gallagher feels Jill Seamans, who holds the school record in the 220, 880 and mile, should have a good shot at a state championship in any of the following events: 220, 440, 880, or mile.

The squad includes the Misses Higgins, Flynn, Kelly, Yurkstas, Robinson, and Seamans, Linda Deery, Carol Hickey, Cheryl Hennessey, Kathy Keating, Terry Morrissey, Adrian Blowers, Mary Ann Sylvester, Carol Doyle, Lisa Costello, Stephanie Fisher, Marya Groczycza, Mary Ilacqua, Dottie and Patty Irvine, Karen Kandlaft, Debby Mann, Joyce Kennedy, Mary Ann McCarthy, Chris O'Rourke, Laurie Smith, Suzanne Yee, Deborah Stanton, Kelly Tobin, Cheryl Zonniss, Julie Ann Drain, Jennifer

Seamans, Kerry Bolster, Paula Church, Kyria Tragellis, Marge Donlin and Siobhan Nolan. Many of the girls are only in junior high school, making prospects bright when the sport finally becomes official.

In a 62-47 opening day win over Weymouth South Quincy swept the discus with Miss Higgins setting a new school record of 94 feet, 4 inches, followed by Misses Keating and Robinson; swept the shot put with Misses Robinson, Doyle and Keating finishing 1-2-3; and swept the long jump with Misses Yurkstas, Kelly and Flynn, 1-2-3.

Miss Kelly, who holds the school record, won the 100 with Miss Flynn second, Miss Morrissey won the 880 with Jennifer Seamans third, Miss Connors and Miss Higgins were 2-3 in the javelin, Miss Yurkstas second in the high jump, Miss Church third in the 220, Miss Mann third in the 440, Miss Costello second in the mile, Misses Kandlaft and Costello 2-3 in the 80-yard hurdles, the 440 relay team of Misses Flynn, Yurkstas, Kelly and Rory Nolan won and the 880-yard relay team of Misses McCarthy, Ilacqua, Smith and Yee was defeated.

In the second meet the Quincy girls lost to strong Norwell, 57-52, as the running events proved their downfall. Quincy had a 28-17 lead after the field events.

Five school records were broken, Miss Higgins winning the discus with a toss of 101 feet, 4 inches, Miss Yurkstas the long jump with a leap of 15 feet, Miss Yurkstas also in the 440 with a 1:10.1 timing although finishing second, the 440-yard relay team of Misses Flynn, Rory Nolan, Seamans and Kelly doing 57.6 seconds, although losing and Miss Kandlaft in the 80-yard hurdles with a 13.4 second effort although finishing only third.

Other Quincy winners were

Miss Robinson in the shot put, Miss Kelly in the 100, and Miss Seamans in the 880.

Last Thursday the First Ladies were no match for Weymouth North, which won 11 of 13 events to wallop Quincy, 73-36.

Only Quincy winners were Miss Robinson in the shot put and Miss Higgins in the discus.

Miss Kelly broke the school record in the 220 with a 28.2 second effort but finished second.

Quincy also was bombed by Dedham, 76½-32½, with Miss Higgins in the discus, Miss Yurkstas, the most pleasant surprise of the season, in the high jump and Jill Seamans in the 880 the only Quincy winners. Miss Yurkstas broke the 440 record with a 1:9.1 timing but finished second, and the 440-yard relay team of Misses Flynn, Rory Nolan, Kelly and Jill Seamans set a new mark of 56.7 seconds.

Raiders Look Like Tourney Contender

It appears nothing can stop, Charlie Bunker's North Quincy baseball team from making the state tourney this year, thus ending Bunker's five-year quest.

Going into Tuesday's postponed game against Medford, the Raiders had an 11-2 overall record and needed only three more wins to qualify unless they finish second in the Greater Boston League. Chances are good they will finish second in their final GBL season.

North kept rolling Monday with a 3-2 win over Malden as Tim Clifford lifted his pitching record to 7-2. One of his losses was a 2-1 squeaker to Quincy.

Dennis McGuire had a triple and single and drove in a run and Dan Minton drove in another run with a single and saved North's bacon with a great throw from centerfield which cut down a Malden runner at the plate.

Quincy topped Peabody, 7-5, to make its record 7-6 [6-5 in the league].

Friday North plays at Everett, Monday faces Quincy at Adams Field and next Wednesday will be at Somerville. Quincy hosts Malden Friday, faces North Monday and is home to Everett next Wednesday.

●Mite House

Davis Edges NQPB

Davis Insurance nipped North Quincy Professional Building, 1-0, to remain in a top tie in the Mite House League.

The winning goal was scored by John Meade.

Premco stayed in a top tie by defeating Lydon Russell, 3-2. Steve Ellsberg had two goals and Bud Seamans one for Premco and Ned Sizer and Jim Daley had assists. Steve Reilly and Dave Farina had the Lydon goals.

Barry's Deli fell out of a first place tie when it lost to UCT, 2-0. Fran Reynolds and Bud Crane had the goals and Mike O'Hare and Mark Chambers assists.

● Junior Baseball

HN, Sears Off To Fast Starts

The Quincy Junior Baseball League is under way and Hough's Neck Legion and Sears Roebuck are off to fast starts with two wins and a tie apiece.

In the American League Houghs Neck defeated Boston Gear, 8-4. Mike Abboud was the winning pitcher and had 10 strikeouts and only one walk. Greg Oriola had a long triple. Two 10-year olds played their first game, Tom O'Connor at second base and Dan Marsters in right field.

Houghs Neck and Sears battled to a 7-7 tie, the game being called because of darkness. Jeff Giordani pitched for Houghs Neck, while Steve Picot started and was relieved by Kenny Mann for Sears.

Sears topped Remick's, 6-3, with Picot and Mann doing a good job on the mound. Mark Messina, Picot and Mann had two hits each for Sears and Bob Beniers, Bill Deitsch, Fred Palmer and Jim Hacunda one each. Remick's had only two hits.

Sears blasted Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, 8-0, with Deutsch pitching a no-hitter. Picot had two hits and Messina a double to spark Sears. Mann was the defensive star for Sears. John Sullivan pitched for the first time for Foley's and gave up only four hits.

Burgin Platner walloped Foley's, 9-2, with Larry Cyr the winning pitcher.

Remick's bombed Boston Gear, 8-2, with Mark Veasey the winning pitcher. Kevin Craig, playing for the first time, made a great catch and laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt. Robbie Craig started two double plays. Mike Bythrow had three hits.

Burgin Platner edged Boston Gear, 5-4. Robert Dubois pitched a two-hitter and had 11 strikeouts. Robert Phorburn had three hits, Dave Leet two and Arthur Roberts, Bobby Hayes, Dubois, Jim Henshey, John Furullo one each. Leet drove in the winning run in the bottom of the fifth.

Ten-year old David McDonald made a sparkling catch of a line drive. Hayes had a fine game defensively and was given the game ball. Dean Prescott had both Burgin hits.

In the National League Rotary defeated Bryan VFW, 7-3, but Bryan rebounded for an 8-3 win over Colonial Federal. Paul O'Toole, in his first game, was the winning pitcher and had eight strikeouts. Danny Boyle had a triple and Tommy Roche a single and double.

A swimmer may swim any time day or night during the 33 hours. Anyone may swim who is backed by one or more sponsors. Swimmers may sponsor themselves. Lengths must be swum non-stop using any stroke or combination of strokes. NO swimming floatation devices

A-N Takes 3rd In Row, Point, Sterling Win

The Atlantic-North baseball team continued to run hot in the Quincy Junior High baseball league by clouting Central, 17-4 for its third win in a row.

Mike Adams hit a pair of three-run homers for A-N and Bob Stack pitched his second win.

Point walloped Broad Meadows, 10-4, scoring seven runs in the final inning. Ed Daley had three hits and Don Sandanato a bases loaded triple for Point. Steve Doyle pitched a four-hitter for the win. Mike Bondarick had two hits for BM.

Earlier in the week Sterling edged Point, 7-6. Sterling led, 6-1, going into the bottom of the seventh and final inning but Point rallied for five runs to take it. Don Perdios hit a double and scored the tying run on a passed ball. Sterling pulled it out in the eighth when Jimmy Maze singled, reached second on an error and Jimmy Cahill drove in the winning run.

The scheduled Broad Meadows-Central game was postponed.

'He Can't Understand'

Dr. MacLeod Criticizes Mayor On Freedom Park Issue

Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, secretary of the Freedom Park Association, has fired the latest round at Mayor Walter J. Hannon in the continuing battle over 115,000 square feet of vacant land off Upland Rd.

"This strip of land has suddenly emerged into a great political football and everybody seems to want to run with it," said the Mayor, who would like to see it turned over to a developer for a condominium complex.

"Once again the Mayor has chosen to attack the motives of elected officials," shot back Dr. MacLeod, whose group wants to turn the land, taken by the city in 1968 for highway purposes, into a recreation area called Freedom Park.

"He [the Mayor] can't understand that many people think the park is a good idea and that there is something inherently wrong about ripping down homes and putting condominiums in their place," said Dr. MacLeod.

The trouble is no one can do much of anything with the land until the MBTA, which owns 17,500 square feet of it, decides what it wants to do with it.

The land in question is a narrow strip bounded by Upland Rd on the west, Adams St. on the north, Dimmock St. on the south, and the MBTA tracks on the east.

It was acquired by the city in 1968 when it was decided to widen Upland Rd. But, after the widening, it was left over.

The problem with selling it to W. B. McGonigle Jr. Inc. of South Easton for a townhouse condominium complex is that such a development, by law, requires 100,000 square feet or 2,500 less than the city owns.

Mayor Hannon has proposed that the city swap the land with the MBTA, adding that "nobody complained when we made a land swap for McIntyre Mall [between City Hall and the MBTA Quincy station]."

Retorted Dr. MacLeod:

"The fact is, the city has never acquired McIntyre Mall. It was paid for out of MBTA funds and is an integral part of the station complex."

"The condominium proposal on Upland Rd has two major defects:

"One, it would be built on 14 feet of MBTA land and, two, it would be placed against a non-buttressed retaining wall which would collapse. That would be one way to get the [MBTA] Red Line out of Quincy Square."

"The land does not meet the planned unit development [PUD] zoning requirement, hence it was improperly rezoned in 1971 so it reverts back to its original Residence A zoning."

"Here again we have a slight problem since Upland Rd was widened, the land does not now conform to Residence A zoning of 85 foot widths so single family homes cannot be built there."

"Freedom Park Association respectfully suggests that the City Council step in and bring order out of chaos by zoning the land a public park."

"By happy coincidence, Freedom Park Association has placed two such council orders before the ordinance committee of the City Council."

The officers of the Freedom Park Association are:

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, chairman; former Mayor Thomas Burgin, vice chairman; Dorothy C. Campbell, coordinator; Donald C. MacLeod, secretary; Gretchen MacKay, recording secretary; William Flavin, historian; and Russell Hodgkins, public relations.

Groups which have voted their support for Freedom Park include:

Quincy Citizens Association, Presidents Cranch Hospital Hill Association, St. Moritz Association, Sea Side Garden Club of Squantum, Wollaston Garden Club, South Quincy Civic Association, South West Community Council, Germantown Garden Club and Quincy Historical Society board of directors.

In a related action, the Quincy Citizens Association took a backhand slap at the condominium proposal when it called upon the City Council to cease implementation of the Hilgenhurst plan for downtown Quincy until the plan itself is accepted by the Council.

Said Association President Pasquale S. DiStefano in a letter to Council President Arthur H. Tobin:

"Inasmuch as the City Council has not accepted the Hilgenhurst Plan it is inappropriate to proceed with any parts of the plan, i.e. condominiums on Upland Rd. vs. open space..."

GD Wins $96 Million Gas Tanker Contract

General Dynamics announces it has received a $96.3 million contract for the construction of a 125,000-cubic meter liquefied natural gas tanker for its Quincy Shipyard.

This brings to eight the number of identical LNG ships now under contract at Quincy.

The new contract was awarded by Cherokee V Shipping Corporation and the U.S. Maritime Administration will issue a mortgage guaranty for the tanker under Title XI of the Merchant Marine Act.

When completed, the new tanker will be chartered to a subsidiary of Energy Transportation Corporation, which will operate all of the LNG tankers being built at Quincy. The keel for the first of the LNG tankers was laid Dec. 1, 1973, and that ship is scheduled for delivery in late 1975. Under present contracts, production will extend well into 1978.

General Dynamics, a diversified corporation with headquarters in St. Louis, had sales in 1973 of $1.6 billion.

City Workers To Choose AFL-CIO Or Independent Union

By DICK MATTULINA

City hospital, library and clerical workers will vote May 30 to recognize either an independent union or an AFL-CIO affiliate as their collective bargaining representative.

More than 500 workers in five separate units will be asked to choose between the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, and the newly-formed Quincy City Employees Association.

Polling hours will be as follows:

● Library employees -- Adams Shore Branch 11 a.m.-noon; North Quincy Branch noon-1 p.m.; Main Library 2-5:30 p.m.

● DPW, Water, Cemetery, Engineering, Public Building, HUD, Planning, Fire, CD, Sewer, Building Inspection, Wire Inspection, Shell Fish Constable and Police clerical employees -- DPW Building 9 a.m.-11 a.m.

● Park, personnel, recreation, Council on Aging, Public Health, Treasurer, Collector, Retirement, Purchasing, Veteran's Services, Auditing, Assessors, City Clerk -- Council Chambers 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

● Hospital clerical, maintenance, technical and power plant -- Hospital Board Room, 7 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The five groups -- Library, clerical, hospital technical, hospital maintenance and hospital power plant -- will vote as separate units.

It is possible, therefore, that both unions could wind up representing one or more group of workers.

And employees also have the option of rejecting both unions.

All were under the auspices of the Service Employees International Union until last April when members petitioned the international to investigate the practices of the local, union spokesmen said.

Investigation resulted in the removal of the local's officers [Cont'd on Page 29]

Revised Plans Due Soon

Controversy Simmers Over Southern Artery Median Strip Proposal

By BOB HOOKWAY

A controversy is simmering between businessmen and the City Council Public Works Committee with Southern Artery the battlefield.

The dispute centers around the city's plan for improving the Artery by means of a redevelopment proposal featuring a median strip.

Fears that business -- especially the smaller ones -- would be badly hurt were expressed during a Quincy Sun survey of the area this week.

Robert Pitts, manager of Dunkin Donuts said the businessmen are very much in favor of improved traffic regulation and higher safety standards on the artery. He noted however that the fast food business on the road would suffer in that drivers would not be willing to bear the inconvenience of the new left turn system and would drive on rather than stop at the establishments on the Southern Artery.

Pitts also contends that the construction time involved, approximately two construction seasons, could put some establishments out of business.

Greenhouses.

"Very frankly it's [the median strip] going to hurt business," said Reinstein. "It's going to cause more commotion than is out there already."

"It's going to hurt the small business very badly. Ninety per cent of the businessmen are very much against the strip. Once it's in, it's in. We're going to have to live with it. They're not going to say they made a mistake and dig it up."

Flags To Flutter In Downtown

For the first time in 14 years, downtown Quincy will be decked out in flags for Memorial Day Monday, announces Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Henry J. Williams, Quincy Veterans Council Flag Chairman reports that the national colors will be flown from the entrance of the Ross Parkway along School and Granite Sts., through the downtown area to the Quincy Police station, from City Hall to the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts.

In all, 192 colors will be up over the holiday. Flags - a 3 by 5 cotton bunting on a 6-foot wooden pole will be fastened with a double adjustable bracket to a utility pole.

The display is made possible through the funding of the City of Quincy and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Williams also acknowledged the cooperation of Richard Koch, executive Secretary of the Park-Recreation Board and John Koegler, Forestry Department superintendent, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., The Massachusetts Electric Co. and the Quincy Veterans Council.

Williams expressed hope for an expanded display of flags on future days of national observance and requests interested parties and organizations to contact him through the Veterans Council. A display of national and city colors will be ready for a formal dedication ceremony in Quincy by July 4th.

Williams said it is hoped that eventually Hancock St. will be flagged to Wollaston and Norfolk Downs.

Germantown Cleanup 'A Huge Success'

By STEVE FERRARA

Almost 50 workers using five trucks and a front-loading tractor helped make last weekend's "Operation Cleanup" a "huge success," according to organizer Mrs. Jean Kennedy of 37 Quarterdeck Rd., Germantown.

Operation Cleanup was organized to collect and remove rubbish and discarded household appliances from cellars in the Riverview and Snug Harbor Germantown housing projects. Almost all of the 580 units' cellars were cleaned out, according to Mrs. Kennedy, as a result of the operation.

The projects have been hit by 11 fires this year, three of them in one night last month, in which several persons were rescued, many of them involving rubbish in the cellars.

Members of the organizing committee, Mrs. Carmen Bouchard, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Mrs. Clara King and Mrs. Thelma Rogers, chairwoman of the Harborview Residents Committee, recruited workers from the Germantown housing projects, Quincy Housing Authority Maintenance Department, Public Works Department and 187th Brigade of the U.S. Army Reserve.

Fifteen residents, two trucks and six men from the Q11A, eight men, three trucks and a front loader from the Public Works Department and 20 men from the 187th Brigade worked all day Saturday and Sunday hauling debris to the city dump.

Residents left their cellar rubbish on sidewalks to be picked up over the weekend. Workers entered cellars to remove large items and to clean cellars of people unable to do the work themselves.

Coffee and doughnuts and supper, provided by the Housing Authority, were served in the Kennedy's back yard.

OPERATION CLEANUP WORKERS from the 187th Brigade of the Army Reserve look on as Public Works Department worker Robert Galante leads another truck with rubbish collected from cellars in the Riverview and Snug Harbor Housing Projects in Germantown. Fifty volunteers worked all last weekend to clean up the cellars in an effort to halt the number of fires that have plagued the housing projects this year.

55 RSVP Volunteers Give 525 Hours

The South Shore Retired Senior Volunteer Program [RSVP] has enlisted about 55 volunteer workers and volunteer hours have risen to about 525, reports Win Pulsifer, director.

RSVP is a federally sponsored organization to help older people volunteer for jobs in their communities. It is based at 1354 Hancock St., Quincy, with an office in Braintree and another due to open in Weymouth.

"All types of volunteer work are represented," said Pulsifer but so far about 50 per cent appear to be along clerical lines, that is our people have helped with mailing, filing, typing, etc.

"One of the assignments we would like to see more fully covered is the 'Friendly Visitor'.

"It is absolutely amazing to us here in RSVP the number of shut-ins who rarely if ever have a visitor.

"Many times when one of our volunteers spends a few minutes just talking to one of these seniors their whole day is brightened because once again they feel that someone cares enough to bring them into a conversation.

"Surely there must be retirees 60 years of age or older who themselves feel they are in a rut. These are the people we want to get together."

Brownell In Sheriff's Race Even If Hedges Runs

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If Sheriff Charles Hedges finally decides to run "one more time", where does it leave Deputy Sheriff John Brownell of Quincy?

Well, it leaves Brownell very much a candidate.

When Brownell announced his candidacy a couple months or so ago, he said that if Hedges got into the race, he would get out.

But Hedges, who now has nomination papers in circulation, still hasn't announced he is a definite candidate for re-election. The last report:

"I'm getting the papers ready just in case. I'm really still undecided. I'm right on dead center. I could go either way."

While Hedges wrestles with his decision, Brownell says he cannot wait any longer—he's in the race to stay.

"I'm at the point of no return," he says. "It's too late for me to get out now. I owe it to the people who are working with me."

Brownell already has more than 1,100 Quincy signatures certified on his nomination papers. He still has papers in circulation elsewhere in Norfolk County and expects to file something like 6,000 names by the June 18 deadline. Only 1,000 certified names are required.

Brownell, of course, is a Democrat and Hedges a Republican. If Hedges runs again and Brownell should win the Democratic nomination it would mean Brownell would be up against his boss in the November finale.

MEANWHILE, Hedges seems to be acting like a candidate. He's getting around in political circles. Or is he just tuning in on other matters—like the gubernatorial race.

He has a "warning alert" out to Governor Sargent, for example. He told Sargent in a recent letter that: "In my recent travels throughout Norfolk County, meeting and talking with people, you are in serious trouble."

He told the Governor that at a May 15 conference of convention delegates, committee members and others from the Dedham senatorial district, a straw poll was taken for governor preference. Sixty-nine votes were cast for governor. The results, according to Hedges: 48 went to Carroll Sheehan, Sargent got 13 and 8 were undecided.

Hedges had earlier dashed off a letter to Sargent [Dec. 20, 1973] which he called a warning letter "written solely in an effort to be helpful." The Governor didn't answer it.

COUNTY Commissioner George McDonald opened his campaign headquarters for sheriff at Hancock St. and Hancock Ct., Quincy Center, Sunday and reports more than 1,500 persons from the South Shore area dropped in between the hours of 4 and 9 p.m.

McDonald also says more than 1,000 signatures were obtained on his nomination papers during those hours. The former City Councillor says his campaign will be concentrated in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton during June and that various functions are being lined up to allow him to "meet personally" with voters throughout Norfolk County.

FRED SISTI of Liberty St., South Quincy, who lost the Ward 3 City Council seat by a close margin to John Koegler some years back, is returning to the political arena. Sisti says he will seek the state representative seat now occupied by Thomas Brownell.

Sisti thinks the House of Representatives could use some mature thinking. "I certainly believe in encouraging young people to seek political office," he says, "but I believe in having men with mature thinking weighing and judging every bill before it is passed making it certain it will benefit the greatest majority."

Incidentally, Sisti says he plans to campaign by bicycle and "not spend a nickel on my campaign to see if it's possible to win."

BEAUTY AND BRAINS: Anne Minukas of Sherman St., Wollaston, pretty administrative assistant to Mayor Walter Hannon, has been named Alumna of the Year by Aquinas Junior College. And, His Honor was scheduled to be on hand Wednesday night to present the award. She is responsible for the coordination of special projects in the mayor's office.

Anne was selected for the award for her achievements in the professional field and her contributions in Alumnae activities. She is corresponding secretary of the Aquinas Organization and a member of the Alumnae Board.

SOMETHING TO THINK about dept: Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Pelican Rd, Adams Shore, who was selected to serve as "Mayor" during Senior Citizens Government Day, is one of the sweetest gals you'll ever meet. To give you an idea, she says her mother taught her years ago that the two best friends you can have going through life are "please" and "thank you." And they're still her buddies.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Rotary Club newsletter: "A smile never goes up in price or down in value."

People once believed that wearing their coats inside out would ward off evil!

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Funds for the staff of the senior citizen hot lunch program are scheduled to run out June 30 and I for one would like to see the city continue the program.

However, the city should take this opportunity to re-evaluate the present program and at the same time make a commitment to seniors throughout Quincy to expand the program, in the long run, to at least four or five centralized sites across the city.

The present program at Martensen St. is attended by approximately, less than 100 persons each day. Yet, the senior citizens who have contacted me indicate that they and many others would take advantage of the hot lunch program if it was more accessible to them. In some cases, seniors have a 30 minute bus ride to and from Martensen St., while others live in neighborhoods without any direct bus service.

The hot lunch program is essential for the good health of many senior citizens who are unable to prepare their own meals or who are often unwilling to prepare a complete meal for themselves alone. The hot lunch program provides a nutritious meal at reasonable cost and is also a chance for seniors who are not members of senior citizen clubs to get together.

In addition to the Martensen St. site, the city should look into the possibilities of expanding the program to centralized sites in churches, community centers or schools. Furthermore, if the program was operated in cooperation with the schools' central kitchen at the former Lincoln School, the hot lunches could be trucked to secondary sites equipped with only minimum kitchen facilities.

The city of Quincy is recognized throughout Massachusetts for its excellent senior citizens housing. Yet, its hot lunch program reaches only a handful of the people it was meant to. Other cities in Massachusetts shared in a $3.4 million state and federal grant in January while Quincy was passed by.

I think the hot lunch program is an area where Quincy should take the lead by reaching out to the many senior citizens who can benefit from it.

Living, Today

'LOVING AND LOSING'

"Better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all." Do you believe that? One who has loved and lost may have his/her doubts. Basically, I think it's true.

Here's Betty ... now widowed four years after a marriage to Leon for 15 years ... a marriage she describes as "just short of perfect." Betty tells of the wonderful trips they made together ... the way they handled problems with the children together ... the way they entertained friends together ... the ways they celebrated holidays ... birthdays ... events which meant much to each of them. "We never knew a day of loneliness," she said. They were truly in love. Betty lost ... death separated them. But ... she says ... "I have no regrets ... I'm not feeling sorry for myself ... it was 15 years of love and job." Betty's dating again ... not looking for another Leon ... or is she? That's the difficult part. Everyone needs someone to love.

John tells a different story. He was married to Rachael for twelve years ... both educated ... grew up in the same town ... three children ... Rachael had lost her father when she was four ... divorce. Her mother was bitter ... taught little Rachel to despise men ... not to trust them. John's mother and father were a loving couple and he remembers the affection his father showed his mother ... their pillow talk at night ... their understanding ways of handling him and his two sisters. This is what he thought marriage and family life was all about. Rachel had no such example.

Rachael began to drink heavily ... to degrade John ... emasculate him with words and by confusing all their relationships. He tried to "live with it" ... got counseling help ... tried to overlook her drinking and emasculation. She wouldn't cooperate in any way. He threatened to leave ... finally he did. Now, five years later you can still see his eyes moisten as he speaks of Rachael. He loved her so deeply ... perhaps he still does. Yet he knows it's all over. He loved and lost.

What does one do when one loves and loses? Volumes have been written to tell the other person how to handle his/her problem of loneliness. Most of us must find our own way. We must not let the past have such a hold on us that we can't break from it. Nor can we expect the future to be a repeat of the past. Be patient with yourself. Do not withdraw from life and the companionship of others. Do not feel sorry for yourself. Love originates in your own heart. It is not dependent upon the object of love. There are always new objects of love waiting to be loved.

Quincy's Contribution To Our Heritage

[The following essay won first prize in the essay contest sponsored by the George F. Bryan VFW Post on the subject, "Quincy's Contribution to Our American Heritage."

Quincy's glorious history dates back almost 350 years, longer than most cities can claim. In 1614 11 Pilgrims, 3 Indians, and Squanto, an Indian guide, explored the Moswetuset Indian settlement. The name of our state, Massachusetts, originated from this Indian tribe.

In 1625 a trading post was established by Captain Wollaston at Passonagessit Knoll, later named Mount Wollaston. It was at this settlement that Quincy originated. In 1634 Mount Wollaston was annexed to Boston and in 1640 became the Town of Braintree. On February 22, 1792 this part of Braintree became a separate town called Quincy. Almost a 100 years later it became a city.

As early as the Revolutionary War, Quincy has contributed men, women, and supplies. In 1776 Quincy sent about 550 men to fight. In the Civil War, 1861, Francis L. Souther answered the call when President Lincoln asked for volunteers. Souther was killed, becoming the first man killed on the Union's side. With 974 serving, 105 men died. Quincy's services in the Spanish American War contributed 110 men of whom three paid the supreme sacrifice.

World War I broke out and 1,666 men and women served in the armed forces and 71 died. In World War II 8,000 served and 238 died. Quincy has contributed its fair share of people, arms, and technology for the building of our ships.

Quincy's contributions to our American heritage are great in number and I'm very proud to live in such a great city, Quincy.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS She doesn't carry grudges

By DOROTHY ST. JOHN JACKSON

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I am 80 years old. Three years ago, we sold our home to come here and keep house for our middle-aged son, who is a bachelor. We are not used to being bossed around, and we are thinking of moving out to a place of our own. My wife is 80, also, and both of us are physically and mentally capable. What do you think?

C. W.

Dear C. W.:

"Relative"ly speaking, a separate roof is good judgment.

You have apparently tried to do your part to get along with your son, during the past three years. The light pressure of your writing says that it is not your nature to carry grudges and nurse hard feelings.

As seen in the upward slant of your t crossings, you are generally a cheerful person and you try to make the best of a situation. The tapering of letter m (and other letters not shown) indicates your knack for handling others tactfully and your ability to "work things out." It is easily concluded that you have done everything possible to avoid any real friction.

But, now, enough's enough. Your back's beginning to bristle. The rigid beginning upstroke on m shows that you do not like to be imposed upon or taken for granted, and your cheery disposition is beginning to take on another look. You are not one to "give in" when you are being pushed about or bossed around against your will, seen in the tent-shaped t's.

I hope you can get a place of your own, and still stay close to your son. He needs you, and you need him.

Seems that family togetherness has a way of shining brighter from the house down the street than it does under the very same roof.

D. J.

Selected letters will be answered in this column. To obtain the free pamphlet "Your T's Tell", write to Dorothy St. John Jackson, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Enclose long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Super sandwiches make hit in Little League

By SUSAN DELIGHT

Throughout the baseball season it's mom — not the Little League kids — who really carries that ball.

During the season, many mothers will tell you there is no such thing as a regular family dinner hour. There may be two dinner hours every day of a game or practice, but rarely just one.

Poor Mom has to feed the nonleague players (her husband and all other nonathletic children) and then turn around and repeat the ritual for the promising Babe Ruth, either earlier in the day or long after the regular dinner hour at 6 o'clock.

Think about supper, super sandwiches. They can solve several problems.

The Little League player will find a hearty sandwich a welcome prelude before the game. Hearty sandwiches also can be served as a light supper to the remaining family members.

Today's recipes can stand alone or, to satisfy bigger appetites, can be served along with a hot soup and a salad.

OLIVE PEPPER AND SAUSAGE HEROES

1 pound sweet Italian sausage, thinly sliced Water
2 medium onions, sliced
1 large green pepper, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
½ teaspoon basil leaves
4 long rolls (about 7 inches), heated

Place sausage in large skillet with water about one-inch deep. Simmer uncovered until water evaporates, then saute sausage until lightly browned. Add onion, green pepper, garlic, olives and basil; cook over low heat until vegetables are tender, stirring occasionally. Serve in rolls. Makes four servings.

OLIVE HAM AND CHEESE HEROES

½ cup mayonnaise
One-third cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives

FAMILY PLEASERS — Little League baseball may be fun for the kids, but it presents problems for mom, who is never quite certain when the family will be eating dinner. Super supper sandwiches solve several seasonal problems while Junior takes his turn at the bat. Try these Olive, Pepper and Sausage Heroes for a family pleaser.

2 tablespoons chopped onions
4 hero rolls, 7-inches long, split
8 slices Swiss cheese
2 small tomatoes, sliced
8 slices cooked ham
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Combine mayonnaise, olives and onion; mix well. Spread top and bottom halves of rolls with mayonnaise mixture. On bottom halves layer sliced cheese, tomato, ham and egg. Top with remaining roll halves. Serve garnished with additional olives. Makes four servings.

BASEBALL HERO SANDWICH

1 large round or oblong loaf
French bread
½ cup soft butter
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
One-sixteenth teaspoon dried dill or basil

Mayonnaise
Crisp lettuce
Sliced assorted luncheon meats
Sliced assorted cheeses
Crisp alfalfa or bamboo sprouts
1 ripe avocado, sliced
Seasoned salt

Cut bread in half, crosswise. Blend together butter, mustard and dill (or basil). Spread over cut surface of bottom layer of bread; spread cut surface of top generously with mayonnaise. Arrange lettuce on bottom layer. Stack luncheon meats and cheeses on lettuce. Top with crisp sprouts, then sliced avocado. Sprinkle with seasoned salt. Cover with top of loaf, pressing down firmly. Cut in wedges to serve. Makes six servings.

POINT OF VIEW

TV for children being improved?

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

ming has been significantly reduced in the past two years."

HOLLYWOOD — "It's 'Popeye' or perish," declares the top man of a chain of television stations in regard to children's programming. Tried and true shows for the kids, in short, along with characters who do a lot of slugging, is what brings in the ratings.

Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, speaks before the annual symposium on children's television conducted in Washington, D.C., by ACT (Action for Children's Television), a New England women's group of considerable influence. Sue the FCC for "non-action" on the ACT petitions to alter TV, Nader tells the group — and do it, Nader urges, before the outfit has to be renamed "Action for Grandchildren's Television."

At hearings on TV violence before that sharp-tongued watch-dog and senatorial skeptic, Rhode Island's John Pastore, one of the networks presents a study indicating a three-year drop in "aggression" in kids shows.

Contrarily, a Chicago-based soap company executive goes before Pastore and his Senate subcommittee and presents a lengthy documentation of what he terms TV-associated crime. "Television," he snaps, "is nothing but gore."

And a professor of psychiatry at New York State University at Stony Brook stands before Pastore and insists: "So far as I know, there is no scientific evidence that the prevalence of TV violence on network dramatic program-

As puzzled as the rest of us, Pastore replies: "I'm beginning to wonder what the answer is here — it's getting more perplexing by the second."

It is, at that, this whole issue of children's programming and violence. But this much is evident. The three major networks seem to be moving in the proper direction. "By fall," says one of networks' top men, "all of the junk in the children's programs should be gone." It is true that the Saturday morning network schedules for 1974-75 will bring a marked increase in live-action as opposed to animated shows, as well as more variety.

The trend leans to more sophisticated production techniques and also some degree of expert consultation for every new show. Just about all of the children's shows, the network people say, will include educational and informational content. And all three networks have increased their budgets for the kids shows.

The networks have seen fit to boost their commitments, both financial and creative, to kid shows and that is, of course, encouraging. In the words of CBS's Allen (Duke) Ducovny, director of children's programming: "All of this goes beyond the principle of a commitment of dollars, it's a risk and the success depends very largely on how the schedules are received this fall. It's a roll of the dice and we hope it works."

Britons love baked beans

The British eat more baked beans than any other country in the world, importing 80,000 tons of beans a year, mostly from North America. Research at Cambridge University has developed an all-British baked bean capable of being grown in the home garden, though the type suitable for canning may not be available for 10 years. —

SNACK TIME

During the last few decades, Americans have radically changed their way of eating with snacking and smaller meals becoming more prevalent. — CNS

You can have a strong voice in our efforts to reduce your electric bills.

Ask your Congressman to help.

Keep a couple of things in mind when you ask for the new legislation we're going to need to help lower electric costs here in New England.

First, remember the real problem. Residual fuel oil, now used to generate over 70% of your electricity, has jumped from $3.44 to over $10 a barrel.

These prohibitive prices have brought an astronomical increase in your fuel adjustment charge...and, incidentally, not one penny's worth of profit to your electric company! All of this money goes directly to our suppliers.

We are hopeful that fuel oil prices eventually will go down. And, if so, any and all decreases will be reflected automatically in your fuel adjustment charge.

But this is small consolation to our customers and we can't simply wait for lower oil prices - particularly since there are more immediate answers.

Coal is one and a good one...once we're able to burn it! Lower cost, higher sulphur fuel oil is another... again, given the go-ahead to use it.

And that's where you can help. By urging your congressman to support reasonable modifications in the Clean Air Act so that we can purchase and burn lower cost fuels.

We believe that through the reasonable use of these fuels, we can lower your electric bills and still meet primary air-quality standards.

This is one of several areas of vital interest requiring legislative action in which we are inviting our customers to help us gain congressional support in our efforts to provide lower cost electricity.

We urge you to clip the attached coupon and mail it to your congressman now. Your voice will be heard!

Sir: The excessive fuel costs our electric company has been forced to pay in order to provide reliable service have resulted in higher electric bills for both residential and commercial customers. I urge your support of pending legislation to modify the Clean Air Act of 1970 to permit the use of lower cost fuels to generate lower cost electricity.

Junior Prom June 7

By RENE LEARY

The North Quincy High School Junior Prom will be held June 7 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the school gym.

There are two different themes this year. The musical theme is "Reflections of my Life", and the theme for decorations is "Stairway to Heaven".

All decorations are in pastel shades of pink, blue, yellow, green, and orange. Entering through the door the people will pass through an archway covered with flowers made from tissue paper. The archway is about 6½ feet high and 4 feet wide. The centerpieces for the tables are abstract angels constructed from white paper.

On one wall of the gym will be a hand painted castle with a stairway leading to it. On the other main wall there will be foil letters with tissue flowers surrounding them, expressing the theme, "Reflections of my Life". A ball made of mirrors will be suspended from the ceiling and should reflect the light throughout the room.

The favors for the prom are hillbilly style jugs, in brown and beige, with the prom theme, the school emblem (Mr. Yakoo), and the class sponsoring the occasion printed on them. The band, Three Plus One will provide the music. Refreshments, consisting of baked goods and fruit punch will be served, but people attending the prom go out to eat, in a place of their choice.

Tickets will be $3 or $8 depending on class social fund payments.

LITTER-ALLEY UNSAFE

Litter isn't merely ugly - it's unsafe. Land pollution goes beyond being an eyesore; it's the "match" that lights thousands of home fires each year, costing homeowners and insurers an estimated $140 million in fire losses. In addition, litter is a highway hazard and a danger to boating and swimming.

In the home, litter starts approximately one out of four fires. On the highway, litter causes untold numbers of accidents. In Connecticut alone, over a three-year period, 621 auto accidents were caused by cars swerving to avoid objects on the road.

The situation has become so bad in Los Angeles that helicopters and television cameras have been put to work to keep expressways free from hazardous debris. The helicopters maintain surveillance and dispatch emergency patrol equipment to clear roadways.

MONEY TALKS

You Are The One To Rebuild Pride In Self-Government

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

"No doubt Watergate will have many consequences, but quite possibly its biggest historical impact will be this -- that it demonstrated once and for all the moral bankruptcy of existing campaign financing practices."

This is the opening gun of a report, "Integrity in Politics", by John Gardner and his Common Cause, the national citizens' movement that has been described as the best organized and most professional movement of its kind in history.

Under Gardner's inspiring leadership, Common Cause has grown to become a strong voice for the average citizen toward preserving the values of our democratic structure and restoring confidence in its procedures.

Currently, under the theme, "Rebuild Pride in Self-Government", Common Cause is marshaling its forces in support of public financing of election campaigns, as issue now before the House of Representatives.

Common Cause documents that under the present system of financing elections, money flows to incumbents of both parties by 2 to 1 over their opponents. "Power resides in incumbents," says Gardner, "and no one knows better than the special interests, who gave incumbents $3 for every $1 they gave to challengers."

He cites the answer given by Maryland Congressman Edward Garmatz, chairman of the House Maritime Committee in 1972, when questioned about the heavy political contributions he received from the maritime industry: "Who in the hell did they expect me to get it from? You get it from the people you work with, who you helped in some way or other. It's only natural."

Gardner notes that the Majority and Minority Leaders in the U.S. Senate have endorsed public financing, and on November 27, 1973, a clear majority of Senators voted for public financing of both Presidential and Congressional elections. An Administration-supported filibuster defeated their efforts.

Common Cause supports a mixed system of public financing that would combine public funds with small private contributions. The cost of public financing will be modest; moreover, it will eliminate indirect costs to taxpayers and the favors special interests win from government. [Witness, for example, the $500 to $700 million more paid for milk after the dairy producers made their large contributions to the Committee to Re-elect the President and the Administration immediately raised milk price supports.]

Common Cause espouses no political party; concerned citizens of all persuasions are among its membership [annual dues of $15, payable to Common Cause, 2030 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036]. Whether or not you belong, you can join the vast majority of Americans who in a Gallup poll last year strongly supported public financing of elections.

Write your U.S. Representative today [House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515], urging reforms of campaign financing that will provide public funds for Congressional and Presidential candidates, an independent enforcement agency, ceilings on contributions, and limits on campaign spending.

It's your democracy. Only you can keep it clean.

A CHECK FOR $1,408 was presented to John McGowan (left), General Chairman of the Quincy Heart Association by Quincy's Special Events Chairman Richard J. Koch and Raymond Cattaneo (center) of Quincy. Wollaston Congregational Donates $1,000 To Protestant Social Bureau

The Wollaston Congregational Church has given $1,000 from its mission reserve funds to help the Protestant Social Service Bureau eliminate its $13,000 deficit.

Rev. Lloyd F. Martin, pastor of the Wollaston church, told members of the 90 Protestant churches that support the bureau, that the agency is a valuable instrument of peace and healing and should be "protected and preserved".

He said late payments from the state and low fees charged for family and marriage counseling plus rising costs have produced "acute financial shock waves to threaten the bureau's stability."

Edmund C. De la Cour Jr. of Donner House, the bureau's home for boys in Wollaston, recently appealed for another member for the house staff, which, he said, is now putting in 60 and 70 hour weeks.

The bureau is supported by churches in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Randolph and Holbrook.

Flukes served as chairman of the Quincy campaign last year. For the first time since Quincy became a part of the United Way campaign Flukes led the community over the top with better than 100 per cent of its goal. Quincy received the United Way community cup which is currently on display at City Hall.

The award was made to the community which had conducted the most outstanding drive among the 66 communities which comprise the Mass. Bay

United Way.

Powers Asks Traffic Lights Removal

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers has asked that traffic lights on Beale Street at Greenwood Street and Old Colony Ave. be removed.

In a letter to Mayor Hannon, Powers called the lights "a waste of taxpayers' money, whether it be federal or state dollars which were expended."

The lights, he said, create a massive bottleneck, disrupting traffic on Beale St. and causing "an unnecessary inconvenience to both the public and the merchants."

"I suggest that you relocate these lights in another area of the city where a need exists and where they can control rather than impede the flow of traffic," he said.

"Until this problem is resolved, I request that these lights be regulated in such a way as to bring rather than remain operational on a red and green light basis."

July 4th Field Day For Wollaston

At a recent meeting of the newly formed Wollaston Community Association plans were made to co-sponsor a 4th of July Field Day at Pageant Field for the youngsters of Wollaston.

The event will be co-sponsored by the Wollaston Juniors.

An active committee headed by Kathy Roberts and Pam Spring will run the Field Day.

The festivities will begin at 9 a.m. with a doll carriage parade, bicycle parade and horrible parade. They will be followed by races and contests for boys and girls of all ages.

Ice cream, tonic and balloons will be distributed free to all the youngsters.

Chairwoman Kathy Roberts said:

"This is the first time in many years that a 4th of July celebration has been held specifically for the youngsters of Wollaston. We are delighted to be able to hold it at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park. For years Pageant Field was the focal point of the city's 4th of July celebrations with fireworks and huge bon fires.

"We hope that this is the first of many 4th of July celebrations to be held for the youngsters of Wollaston."

Condominiums attract young

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

The continuing growth and popularity of condominiums is changing the life-style in many American cities, and pulling a more youthful flow of home buyers back into the cities.

The younger population — marrieds and singles — are seeking condominium units in increasing numbers. The relatively easy and undemanding life-style offered in such developments is becoming an "in thing" with the young set.

Recent studies reveal the overall average age of condominium buyers to be about 32, it was reported by R. Stanley Dybvig, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. That reflects a significant youthward trend.

He predicted the condominium boom will continue for a long period. "Because of movement to retirement communities, increasing interest by young buyers, and other factors, the condominium market is just beginning to churn," he said.

The attraction of condominiums to young home buyers is injecting new youthful zest into central areas of cities. It is changing oft-sounded dire predictions of urban blight into one of urban "light." It's creating a new concept in city living where increasing opportunities for work and leisure are within, rather than outside, the city.

The trend toward a more youthful city population will continue for several years, many experts agree. "The postwar baby crop is now part of our housing scene, and many of these young adults are now choosing the city to plant their first roots," said Robert W. Gaber, president of Conco Mortgage Co., who recently researched such housing trends.

"The median age in cities will be under 30 years by 1975," predicted Gaber, whose firm is a San Francisco-based national mortgage banking organization.

"In viewing this trend, I foresee exciting opportunities for business. New forms of high-density housing, recreational and entertainment facilities, shopping arcades and services for city dwellers — all these are now fertile areas for innovative exploration by builders, developers, financiers and planners."

All indicators point to a more interesting and stimulating mode of life in cities across our country, as young home owners assume more active and responsible roles of community leadership.

100th Career Win

Today's Tennis Players Much Better, Says Mitchell

Bill Mitchell has coached Quincy High's tennis teams for 15 years and recently gained his 100th career win when his Presidents defeated Xaverian, 3-2.

Mitchell, an active player himself, sees much improvement in the calibre of schoolboy tennis in recent years and credits the emergence of indoor courts in Quincy and many surrounding towns which permit boys [and girls] to play year-round.

"It's funny, but when I first came here as coach, I was taking over for a half-year to see how I liked it," says Mitchell, whose record going into this week's matches was 100 wins, 57 losses and eight ties. "It was quite a struggle at the beginning but things soon came around."

Mitchell also credits extensive TV coverage for the vast improvement in the quality of the players and the many more boys and girls who want to play the game.

Quincy has indoor tennis at the Boston Marina and Braintree, Hingham and Randolph are among the nearby towns with indoor courts.

"Tennis is now a city-wide thing and you have kids from all over Quincy playing at the various courts, in West Quincy, North Quincy, Faxon Field, Merrymount and other places," he said. "And, of course, the courts are vastly improved thanks to the efforts of the recreation department."

When Quincy presented Mitchell with his 100th win last week, Dennis McCarthy and Kevin Sullivan won their singles matches for a 2-1 lead and the doubles team of Mike Menconi and Dave Kerman clinched the victory.

In its previous match Mitchell had been thwarted when Quincy bowed to Abp. Williams, 4-1. Williams, ironically, is coached by Steve Myatt, who formerly played at Quincy for Mitchell.

Going into this week's matches Quincy and North Quincy were tied for the Independence League lead with 4-1 records. The Quincy-North match had been postponed twice "due to rain and was to be played this week."

Bill Willoughby's North team defeated B.C. High, 4-1, to stay tied with Quincy.

North's Paul O'Malley and Bob Grazer were singles winners and the Raiders swept the doubles with Glenn Williams and John Powell, then Eddie Coutts and Dan Finn winning.

Koch Club Girls Win State Senior Candlepin Title

The Koch Club, Senior Girls Bowling team won the Massachusetts Bowling Association State Senior Girls Candlepin title recently at the Fairway Sports World in Natick.

The girls, who range in age from 14 to 16, rolled a total of 1481 pins to finish 14 pins ahead of the runner-up team. The Koch Club girls rolled strings of 503-449-529.

Team members include:

Adrienne White, Debbie Bursey, Jackie Little, Marie Nestor and Sarale Cobban. White led the girls with a 311 total while Cobban had a 302, which included a 122 single string. Little 292, Nestor and Bursey a 288.

A trophy and gift certificate was given to each girl at the recent Annual Koch Club Bowling Banquet held April 23.

N.E. Legion Baseball Regional Playoffs Set For Here

On June 9 Quincy will be the scene of the annual New England AAU track and field championships when the top amateur trackmen in New England try to qualify at Veterans Memorial Stadium for the national championships and a meet with Russia.

Then, in August, 1975, as part of the city's bicentennial celebration, the New England Regional American Legions baseball playoffs will be played at Adams Field.

Morrisette Post 294 will be host for the annual tournament which will include the champions of the six New England states, the Eastern New York titleist and the host team.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon initiated the proposal to bid for the big tournament in January when he called into his office Richard Koch of the Park and Recreation Dept., John Comer, state department Legion vice commander, and Ray Cattaneo of the Park Dept., present Morrisette coach.

Letters of endorsement were obtained from various civic clubs, the mayor, city council, Cong. James Burke, Chamber of Commerce, Station WJDA and the Quincy Business and Professional Association.

The brochure was put together along with pictures and dimensions of Adams Field and a letter from Eastern Nazarene College, which agreed to house the visiting teams, and was sent to American Legion headquarters in Indianapolis April 1 to be voted upon April 30 by the National Americanism Commission.

On May 2 Morrisette Post received a telegram informing it that it had been accepted to host the tournament.

A pre-tournament dinner will take place at Morrisette Post home the night before the opening games.

Lights were installed at Adams Field in 1972 and a new set of bleachers along the first base side last year. This year's plans call for new bleachers on the third base side, a scoreboard built by students at Quincy Voc-Tech School, and dugouts which will be donated and installed by Bersani Brothers.

Charles Ward of Milton, Norfolk County chairman of Legion baseball, will form a committee to work with Morrisette in running the tournament.

Atherton Wins Street Hockey Playoffs

In the finals of the Quincy Recreation Department city wide street hockey playoffs, a strong Atherton Hough team defeated a scrappy Quincy School, 4-2.

Quincy led 2-1 after the first period on goals by Tom Geary and Bill Doyle with only Robbie Craig countering for Atherton Hough.

Atherton Hough moved into the lead to stay in the second period on two goals by star defenseman Tom Brennan. The score at the end of the period was Atherton Hough 3 Quincy 2.

The third period was marked by good defensive play by both teams. Atherton Hough's final goal was scored by David Burke who with 10 seconds left fired the ball into an open net.

New Quincy Track Club Another 'First' For City

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy this summer will be the first city in the state to have a chartered city-sponsored track club and anyone in the city from nine years of age and up can join.

It was officially announced Tuesday that the Quincy Track Club will begin operations in about a month and will conduct weekly track meets at Veterans Memorial Stadium throughout the summer.

There is a large board of directors including a cross-section of Quincy businessmen, school and city officials and clergy.

The board includes Supt. of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Quincy Court Clerk Dennis Ryan, Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Dept., School Committeeman Hal Davis, Recreation Director William F. Ryan, Joseph Burke, chairman of the Park and Recreation Dept., Peter Gallagher, Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, Henry Bosworth, publisher of the Quincy Sun, John Murray, executive director Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Also Rt. Rev. Edward Flaherty, St. Ann's Church; John Brown, Dr. Isadore Schwartz, Rev. Joseph R. Graham, Mary Pratt and Mary Lydon, physical education directors in the Quincy schools, Ralph Colson, chairman of the New England AAU; John Jacoppo, chairman of the women's New England AAU, and Frank Rull of the NEAAU.

"I think this is a great step forward for the city and you can give much of the credit to our high school track coaches, Tom Hall and Lou Tozzi," Leone said. "They came forward some time ago with a suggestion for such a club and everyone in the city is interested and willing to give us a hand."

Colson and Jacoppo promised their full cooperation to the project and Colson said he hoped "every resident of Quincy" will come to our big NEAAU championship meet June 9 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, which is co-sponsored by the Quincy School Dept.

"This is a qualifying meet for the national AAU championships and an up-coming duel meet with Russia," Colson said. "The top amateur trackmen from New England, including many record holders, will be in this meet."

Colson mentioned the Junior Olympics for those 13 to 19 which will start with the Massachusetts trials, the New England trials in Falmouth, the Regional meet including New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey at Brown University and the nationals at Lincoln, Neb.

"You know, there is more interest among girls in track now than there is among the boys," Colson added. "Last weekend more than 1,000 girls took part in the state regional meet at Blue Hills Regional High School in Canton and there were some really outstanding performances."

Girls track next year will become official at Quincy and North Quincy High schools but Peter Gallagher has coached the Quincy girls on an unofficial basis the past three years and he had five entries in last week's regional meet in Canton. Most of his girls are still in junior high.

Kelly explained that it is hoped to outfit and enter the better runners in outside competitive meets by mid-July.

"The club will be restricted to Quincy residents, and businessmen, but we hope in the future we may invite those from neighboring towns to join," Leone said. "We have had inquiries from other communities who want to follow us and form similar clubs."

All those at the official announcement Tuesday agreed that participation and not championships is the main object of the club. "This will give hundreds of boys and girls as well as men and women a chance to take part in track and this is our major aim," Leone said.

Not only will youngsters as young as nine get a chance but also those over 40 and maybe even over 50. Colson pointed out that the big meet in Quincy June 9 will include events for men over 40 and he has had a number of entries in them.

With such coaches as Hall and Tozzi and such prominent track officials as Colson and Jacoppo handling things, it is hard to see how the Quincy Track Club can miss.

"You can thank Hall and Tozzi for the strides track has made in this city and interest further zoomed when we got our all-weather track at the stadium," Leone went on. "This is one of the finest tracks in New England."

In addition to weekly meets Hall and Tozzi hope to conduct clinics and instructional periods once or twice a week throughout the summer.

"We will have a registration day at a date to be announced soon and I hope we are mobbed by boys and girls wanting to join the club," Leone concluded.

Raiderettes Defeat First Ladies, 7-6

Neither the Quincy nor North Quincy girls' softball team will make the state tourney this year but when they meet the games are typical Quincy-North games.

Last week's game was no exception as North Quincy held on for a 7-6 win over the First Ladies.

The Raiderettes scored twice in the fifth for a 7-5 lead when a double steal worked, forcing a costly Quincy error. The First Ladies came back with a run in the sixth on Cindy Tozzi's single but it took game-saving catches by Lynne Tabor and Jonlyn Riley to wrap up the game and give Elaine Shea the pitching win.

Quincy is 4-6 and North, following a defeat at the hands of Weymouth South, is only 3-7.

North Moves Closer To Tourney With Quincy Win

North Quincy's baseball team moved to within one win of qualifying for the state tournament when it topped Quincy, 4-2, Monday night in the first game played under the Adams Field lights before a large crowd.

North hoped to make the tourney when it played at Somerville yesterday [Wednesday]. The Raiders go to Chelsea Friday and if they still need a win to qualify, they will play Abp. Williams next week in a replay of a rained-out game.

Quincy hosted Everett yesterday and finishes up against Revere Friday at 1 p.m. at Adams Field.

In avenging an earlier defeat at Quincy's hands, North hiked its record to 13-4 [12-4 in the Greater Boston League] and Tim Clifford raised his pitching record to 8-3.

North scored twice in the third and added single runs in the sixth and seventh, while Quincy had runs in the fifth and seventh.

Clifford gave up eight hits, struck out 13 but kept himself in trouble with nine walks.

Quincy's Mark Dwyer yielded 10 hits, struck out six and walked only one.

Clifford was at his best in the final two innings. In the eighth Quincy had runners on second and third with no outs but Clifford struck out two and retired the other batter on a chopper in front of the plate. In the ninth he struck out one and threw out the other two batters himself.

In the seventh North right-fielder Dennis McGuire threw a Quincy runner out at the plate with a spectacular throw and the following inning Dwyer made one of the year's top defensive plays when he threw out a North runner on an attempted squeeze play.

North's tourney quest was stalled last Friday when it dropped a 1-0 squeaker to Everett despite the three-hit pitching of Clifford, whose record dropped to 7-3.

Another of his defeats was a 2-1 decision to Quincy. The Raiders were held to two hits by Nick Farrante.

The only run scored in the sixth inning when, with two outs and a runner on second, Mike Marchese hit a towering pop fly which was caught in the wind and dropped untouched just out of the infield.

Clifford struck out 13 while Farrante fanned 10.

Quincy saw its record fall to 7-9 [6-8 in the league] when it lost to Malden, 6-4. Sophomore pitcher Steve Infascelli pitched well enough to win, but four infield hits led to five runs in the sixth inning. Paul Vespaziani had a triple and single and John Riley a double and single.

Earlier in the week North topped Revere, 9-4, with John Lawlor the winning pitcher with late inning help from Clifford, and Quincy bowed to league leading Medford, 10-5.

The day before Medford had pounded North, 13-5, in a makeup of a postponed game.

Donovan, McCann Win

In the mixed Scotch Foursome last week at Furnace Brook Golf Club, John Donovan and Ginny McCann shot low gross of 43.

Low net went to Mr. and Mrs. Matt Smith with 32, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Lou Cugini, 33; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Spinello, 34; Walter Hennicks and Elaine Walsh, 35, and Mario Serafini and Joyce Robbins, 36.

Mr. and Mrs. Cugini and Ed O'Neill were in charge.

In the Furnace Brook Women's weekly tourney, Jeanne Doherty had low gross and Mel Corbin low net. Rena Hodges had second net and Rena Roche the least number of putts.

Jeanne Doherty and Pat Cugini were in charge.

North Looks Like Tennis League Champs

Bill Willoughby's North Quincy boys' tennis team loomed as the Independence League champion as it took a 6-1 record into Tuesday's match with the Raiders Memorial.

The Raiders dimmed the joy of Quincy Coach Bill Mitchell's 100th win by handing the Presidents a 4-1 defeat last week when the rivals finally got together after two rain-outs.

North's Dan Lewis topped John Pagnoni and Bob Grazer defeated Kevin Sullivan in singles while Quincy's Dennis McCarthy gained his team's lone win by defeating Paul O'Malley. In doubles North's Glen Williams and John Powell defeated Steve Feldman and John Rice and Ed Coutts and Dan Finn defeated Mike Menconi and Dave Kerman.

North hiked its record with a 3-2 win over Abp. Williams and Quincy topped Catholic Memorial, 5-1. North then defeated Xaverian, 3-2, while Quincy was defeated by Williams, 3-2, to just about drop out of title contention.

A-N Wins 2 More

Atlantic-North's baseball team is still unbeaten in the Quincy Junior High League with a 5-0 record, following two more wins last week.

A-N defeated Sterling, 5-1, with Bob Stack the winning pitcher. Jim McGinley had two hits and scored a run on Ed McElaney's single. McElaney's single turned into a three-base error allowing him to score. Jim May singled and scored Sterling's only run on Lenny Picot's single.

Central topped Point, 7-2, with Dan Cuddy the winning pitcher.

Earlier in the week Atlantic-North defeated Broad Meadows, 4-1. Joe Gill had a no-hitter going into the seventh inning but gave up his only hit in the final inning. He also had a home run. John White had two hits and Mac McGinley a run-scoring double.

Sterling rolled over Central, 24-6.

QJC Wins 3rd Conference Title

For the third year in a row Dave Burke's Quincy Junior College baseball team is the Massachusetts Junior College Conference champion although not finishing first in regular season play.

QJC, which had to be satisfied with a third place finish, swept to two straight playoff wins to again earn the title.

The Collejuns nipped Worcester Junior College, 2-1, in the semifinals, and wound up with a 7-4 decision over Wentworth Institute.

"The Worcester game may have been the best game I've been involved with since I came to Quincy Junior College in 1969," the pleased Burke said. "The game went two extra innings with all the runs in the ninth inning. Jim Rogers pitched well, allowing only three hits and striking out 13."

In the title-clinching game Quincy pounded out 16 hits and had little trouble. Bob Niles had a triple and three singles, Skip Haddix, Ken Baumeister and Rogers a double and single each, Bud Sullivan, the winning pitcher, three singles, and Mark Gillespie a home run.

"This was one of my most satisfying championships because we had only three veterans," Burke said. "The boys really came through in fine fashion and deserve an awful lot of credit."

Rogers was selected as the conference's Most Valuable Player and he also was named the MVP for the playoffs. He had a 5-1 pitching record and hit .415 as he played in the outfield when not pitching.

Rogers, Gillespie and Haddix were named to the conference all-star team.

The South Shore 16-18 Babe Ruth League Inc. continues to grow by leaps and bounds and this year will consist of three leagues of 12 teams each, 18 more teams than a year ago.

Quincy's entry is sponsored by Data Services, 2 Park Square, Boston, and is managed by Mike O'Connor, a former Triple AAA pro player from California, who now lives at 12 Presidential Drive, Quincy.

He invites all Quincy boys 16, 17 and 18 years of age to the final tryout Saturday. For the time and place boys are asked to call O'Connor at 471-6097 or 328-2472 or John McDonnell at 479-5478.

DEAR CITY OF QUINCY WORKER:

The AFL-CIO is pleased to endorse and support your present union, the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, and urges that you cast your ballot in the crucial election on May 30th to determine continuance of the SEIU as your collective bargaining agent. Only in this way will you be guaranteed a strong voice in improving your wages and working conditions.

Everyone knows the prestige and strength of AFL-CIO Unions. Your best assurance of success lies with the support of millions of AFL-CIO fellow workers in a common cause.

No Independent Union can make this claim. Independent Unions lack the back-up resources and expertise to achieve the best possible collective bargaining agreement. They stand alone and are unable to muster any cooperative assistance when most needed.

There can be no substitute for experience and proven leadership. It is imperative that you be sure to vote on election day for an overwhelming victory for the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO.

Fraternally yours,

Franklin J. Murphy

Tomatoes: Will You Love Them In August As You Do In May?

Now is the time for all good gardeners to set out their tomato plants, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA).

Memorial Day is traditionally considered the starting point for tomatoes in the Bay State, because danger of killing frost is presumed to be past.

Though one may be hard put to predict either the date of Memorial Day (this year it's May 27) or the time of the last frost hereabouts, you may consider it safe to plant tomatoes now. But spring enthusiasm should be tempered. The May planter mercifully forgets the problem of the August harvester: how to get rid of an overabundance of tomatoes, brought about by having planted a single variety.

Different varieties of tomatoes have differing maturities; some ripen in about 80 days, some in about 100. If you don't want all your tomatoes begging to be picked and consumed at once, plant more than one variety. Ask at your nearby roadside farm stand or nursery for an assortment that will spread your harvest, and hopefully assure a reasonable but continuous supply of fresh tomatoes.

Excellent supplies of Massachusetts-grown flowering plants abound for the holiday. Ageratums, hanging petunias, hanging fuschias, begonias, coleus, garden and hanging geraniums and pansies, as well as many assorted annuals are found at farm stands across the state.

Vegetable plants, too, are in abundance, especially peppers, cabbage, lettuce, and, of course, tomatoes.

Voc-Tech Wins Buffet Prize In Food Show

The cooking team from Quincy Vocational Technical School has won first prize for its cold buffet in the annual Hotel-Motel and Restaurant Show for the second time in three years.

The 40 culinary arts students, 22 boys and 18 girls, under the direction of Edmund Repucci, coordinator of foods, took a full week to prepare their entry in the food display contest.

Features of the Quincy entry were a chess set made of pastry dough and sugar, a suckling pig garnished with decorative truffles, a 15-pound lobster, a 10-pound Alaskan king crab, and a huge 350th anniversary cake frame as centerpiece of the display.

The food, although fully cooked and prepared, was judged on appearance only. The judges did not sample the entries.

Quincy Vocational-Technical won the title for the first time in 1972 after second place finishes in 1968, 1969 and 1970. It did not participate in last year's competition.

LOTS OF BOLOGNA

It takes 10 slices of bacon, ¼ pound of sausage, ¾ franks and six 1-ounce slices of bologna to provide 20 grams of protein—about one-third of the recommended allowance for a 20-year-old man. — CNS

Scientists find food supplies in antarctic

A team of explorer-scientists returned to England recently with reports that a vast area of rich food resources has been discovered under the desolate frozen wastes of the antarctic.

Their findings reveal an astounding and hitherto unknown quantity of marine life around Antarctica, but Dr. Richard Maitland Laws, director of the British Antarctic Survey said it is too early to say just how vital the discovery will be toward helping feed the world's people. — CNS Life styles change. Traditions and customs change. So does funeral service. Today, no two funerals are alike, because no two families are alike. Today a competent funeral director must provide a broader spectrum of services than ever before. It's a challenge. Funeral directors affiliated with National Selected Morticians meet this challenge with a wide selection in a broad range of prices so each family may choose what best meets its needs. As members of NSM in this area, we helped bring it about. We believe in matching the service to the need. It helps make us someone to count on, every time.

Controversy Simmers Over S.A. Median Strip

"I'm not opposed to safety. I have children of my own. I'm in favor of the system of traffic signals without the strip."

Said Wesanen:

"We feel it's going to hurt our business. It will be more difficult for customers to cross the street. People will not go to the next intersection. There will be no better safety factor."

"We have to service cars and boats right off the pier and this will make it harder for us."

"A median strip will just make the artery more of a speedway than it already is," said Quint. "I would like a stop light installed. There is a problem with Quincy Oil trucks pulling onto the artery."

Fred Bergfors, Jr. of Quincy Oil Co., expressed concern for the small businessman.

"We would prefer a series of lights and speed signs; a rubble block median strip," he said. "We would support the claims of the small businessman. Why couldn't off-street parking be provided for small businessmen?"

"We will have some trouble with our 60-foot tankers moving in and out of the yard. I think Quincy Oil will survive."

"Correction in traffic could be made by slowing down the traffic, and enforcing the laws."

"It will reduce business. It's definitely a difficult proposition for the small businessman."

Support for the Median strip came from Albert R. Cobb, owner of Albert R. Cobb Bathroom Remodeling Specialists, 749 Southern Artery, said that he seemed to be "the only one" in favor of it at a recent public hearing.

"The city of Quincy has neglected the Southern Artery for a long time," he said. Many people won't come here because of the traffic problem."

"Right now the artery is a speedway. I feel a median strip would make it easier for people to come to the Southern Artery because they won't mind making turns by using cut-offs."

At a meeting on May 9, many of the businessmen involved voiced their displeasure with the plan to Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, chairman of the Public Works Committee.

The plan calls for a seven-inch high grass median strip to be constructed on the portion of the Southern Artery between McGrath Highway and Washington St.

The strip would be eight feet wide in the area where many businesses are located and would taper down to six feet in width in the more residential section toward Washington St.

The proposal calls for left turn lanes on either side of the strip, and installation of eight sets of traffic signals along the route. The pavement on the Southern Artery would also be resurfaced.

The main objective of the median strip plan is to improve traffic safety conditions on the heavily travelled Route 3A. The grass median is also designed to beautify the road.

The complaints of several of the merchants involved are that such a proposal would limit customer access to their establishments and that the construction time for such a project would seriously interfere with business.

Kelly, citing the desperate need for improved traffic safety on the Southern Artery, says "the businessmen are being given every possible consideration."

Kelly added that speed control on the route is long past due and pointed to the number of serious accidents due mainly to irresponsible driving on the artery. He said that the effect of the median proposal would be reduced speed which should eliminate drivers' fears of making a left turn into the various businesses along the road.

The next step in the proposal is that the Public Works Committee will make public revised plans for the construction project.

Kelly said he hopes at that time the businessmen and residents of the Southern Artery will view the plans and that they will make any desired changes known in writing to Geoffrey Davidson, Director of Planning and Community Development.

Kelly said he expects the revised plans to be ready for public inspection soon.

Shipyard Strike In 68th Day As Talks Break Off

By STEVE FERRARA.

The General Dynamics Shipyard strike entered its 68th day today with no immediate settlement in sight after federal mediators recessed talks when the Shipbuilding Workers Union, Local 5 rejected an offer of $1.25 per hour increase over the three-year life of the contract.

The company offer, which was tied to productivity increases, would have increased the base rate for first class mechanics from $4.19 per hour to $4.69 in the first year of the contract. The hourly rate would go over the $5 mark in 1975 and reach $5.44 in 1976.

Arthur Batson, president of Local 5, said the increases "still keep us down lower than the wages of most shipyards."

Quincy Shipyard President and Manager P. Takis Veliotis released identical figures and added that the proposed contract provides wage increases for first class mechanics of approximately 30 percent over the first 27 months. He said:

"This contract would bring the top rate for the general trades to $5.44 per hour and $5.52 for first class welders, and would make Quincy employees among the highest paid in the industry."

Batson said the union proposed formation of a committee to work out production changes that would be mutually agreeable to the company and union during the life of the contract. He suggested the various skills within the trades be developed rather than encouraging specialization.

Said Veliotis, "The union has contended from the outset that the economic issues of wages and benefits are the basic issues of the strike. I have said repeatedly that the basic issues are work practice changes that will allow us to increase productivity of the yard."

"We are not asking for concepts that are new to the shipbuilding industry in this country. Other shipyards, including some represented by IUMSWA, have contract language relating to productivity that is far broader than what we have proposed."

William J. Usery, head of the Federal Mediation Service said some progress had been made during the last six days when "practically day and night sessions" were held.

"The company made a new wage offer, but a major problem is productivity... work practices which the company feels it needs to produce ships economically," he said.

Veliotis said he did not "understand why an agreement has not yet been worked out that would allow our employees to join management in making the Quincy yard the thriving, successful, expanding yard it could be."

He said he hoped that when negotiations resume, the union will be prepared to negotiate on the productivity issue.

Veliotis released the following statement to the news media:

"I am disappointed at the failure of the negotiators to reach an agreement after six days of intensive bargaining at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Services Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

"While progress was made in certain areas, it is abundantly clear that the basic issues are still not being negotiated realistically.

"The Union has contended from the outset that the economic issues of wages and benefits are the basic issues of the strike. I have said repeatedly that the basic issues are work practice changes that will allow us to increase the productivity of the yard. We are not asking for concepts that are new to the shipbuilding industry in this country. Other shipyards, including several represented by IUMSWA, have contract language relating to productivity that is far broader than what we have proposed.

"I personally participated in the discussions on this point in Washington in an effort to get the Union officials to appreciate the seriousness of our position.

"We offered the Union negotiators a three-year contract providing for wage increases, for 1st class mechanics, of approximately 30 percent over the first 27 months. Specifically, the offer we put on the table in Washington provides for two increases this year - 11.9 percent and 5.3 percent respectively - with 4.0 percent more after another nine months and a final 5.8 percent just eleven months later.

"This contract would bring the top rate for the general trades to $5.44 per hour and $5.52 for 1st class welders, and would make Quincy employees among the highest paid in the industry. We think this is a fair and equitable settlement - one that would permit our employees to share in the benefits that will result from the productivity changes we've been talking about, and still allow the yard to realize the bright future it can have if we ever get back to work.

"Frankly, I find it difficult to understand why an agreement has not yet been worked out that would allow our employees to join management in making the Quincy yard the thriving, successful, expanding yard it could be. Instead, they are still left without money for food, mortgage payments and clothing. It takes two to bargain. We have stepped up to the economic issue. Now it is time to step up to the productivity issue. I hope that when we get back to the bargaining table we will be able to negotiate a contract we can all live with so we can get back to work."

Council O.K.'s $41,741 For Bicentennial

The City Council has approved a $41,741 budget for the Quincy Bicentennial Committee for 1974-75.

The action, said Committee Chairman Rev. John R. Graham, "places Quincy in the forefront of Bicentennial efforts."

"The funds appropriated by the Council will be multiplied by matching grants," he said. "If all the grants are approved, the $41,741 will become a program totalling over $165,000 in the next year."

A picture book depicting the historic sites and recreational opportunities in Quincy is expected to return some $25,000 to the city, he said, "thus reducing the $41,000 appropriation to only $16,000."

Pay Tribute To War Dead With Equal Dedication, Asks Cassani

Capt. Henry Cassani, Monday called on several hundred parade marchers and Air Station in South Weymouth, spectators assembled in the Mt.

Wollaston Cemetery to pay tribute to American war dead with the same dedication the latter gave in defending their country.

The Quincy native, principal speaker for Quincy's Memorial Day services, spoke from the World War II podium in the cemetery at the climax of the city's parade under the auspices of the Quincy Veteran's Council.

The text of his talk follows: "As a native son, I am especially pleased to return to Quincy this morning to take an active part in the memorial services at Mt. Wollaston cemetery and to pay tribute to our fallen American servicemen who lie here today, some of whom, incidentally, I had personally known.

"Memorial Day, to many, means 500 mile automobile races, opening summer cottages for the upcoming season, the first family picnic before the ants arrive. A day of relaxation. To those of us here at Mt. Wollaston this morning, it is a day devoted to honoring those who died in their nation's defense.

"Memorial Day, originally known as Decoration Day, was first officially observed on May 30, 1868 by the Grand Army of the Republic in honor of its comrades who died during our Civil War. Today we are reminded of all those who have laid down their arms at Valley Forge, The Alamo, Gettysburg, The Little Big Horn, San Juan Hill, The Argonne Forest, Bastogne, Iwo Jima, Port Chop Hill and the Mekong Delta. All these men believed in an important cause - and paid for that belief - with their lives.

"When the going was rough, American servicemen have traditionally refused to give in or give up. They have expressed their refusals in many ways. During the Battle of the Bulge, for example, General Anthony McAuliffe, when surrounded at Bastogne, simply replied "Nuts" to surrender demands.

"At The Alamo, Colonel Travis said, 'I have answered the demand [to surrender] with a cannon shot and our flag waves proudly from the Walls.'

"Captain John Paul Jones, from the bridge of his sinking Bon Homme Richard, shouted to the captain of the Serapis, 'I have not yet begun to fight.'

"The brave men of Bataan and Wake Island during the first bitter days of World War II gave up their lives in fierce battles so that we in the United States might have the precious time to arm and prepare for battle. Few men face death gladly but these men and women who lie here have known in their hearts that the defense of our nation's great principles was - and is - well worth their ultimate sacrifice.

"For them the risks were acceptable in the unending struggle for freedom, equality, and enduring peace. For them, as for us, the end to be gained made bearable the possibility that they might sacrifice their lives in the cause they considered just. They were prepared to make that sacrifice for our continued liberty and freedom.

"By every standard of comparison, Massachusetts is the cradle of that liberty and freedom, for the spark of freedom was ignited in the breach of an old flintstone musket only a few miles northwest of here nearly two hundred years ago when men stood on the bridge at Concord and fired the shot for liberty that was heard around the world.

"I ask you then, when you lay your wreaths and flowers today, to please do so with the same dedication that those who lie here did when they laid their most precious possession - their lives - before the altar of their country.

"Please do so with the same dedication that other Massachusetts sons have done - men like John Quincy Adams, [Cont'd on Page 3]

Germantown Fire Station To Be Dedicated Sunday

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will officially dedicate the Germantown Fire Station Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

The station was put into operation in January by Mayor Hannon after a series of mysterious fires and false alarms threatened homes in the Germantown area.

Renovation and conversion of the station, located at the site of the former Quincy Housing Authority heating plant, began last May.

Facilities inside the newly completed station include a combination activity room - kitchen, Officer's quarters, three bedroom dorm for firefighters, communications room, and garage area for fire engine.

The station will be staffed on a round-the-clock basis by one officer and three firefighters - for each shift, with a total of 16 fire personnel assigned to the station. At present a 1,000 gallon hosewagon has been designated by the department for use at the Germantown station.

"There has been a need for a station in the Germantown area for a number of years," Hannon said, "and in the few short months it has been in operation it has proved to be invaluable in the prevention of serious fires and the saving of lives."

The station will be open to inspection by the public and all residents are invited to attend the dedication ceremonies.

Over 500 City Employees Vote Today On Union

More than 500 city hospital, library and clerical workers will vote today [Thursday] to recognize either the Service Employees International Union [AFL-CIO], or the newly-formed Quincy City Employees Union as their collective bargaining agent.

They can also decide against either.

Meanwhile John J. Keefe, president of the new independent union, took issue with statements made by representatives of the international union in last week's Quincy Sun.

Representatives of S.E.I.U. said that officers of Local 576 had been removed from office and that the local had been placed in the trusteeship of Guy Lucia as a result of an investigation by the international.

Keefe called the statements false.

Keefe claimed Quincy workers disaffiliated with the S.E.I.U. when it allegedly tried to force the Quincy union into Local 285 of Boston without consulting Quincy members.

Since then, he said, the international has petitioned state courts five times to get control of the local's money and assets. He said they total approximately $30,000, and are being held in escrow by Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn pending a federal district court ruling.

The local union contends that the international union has not represented the employees since June, 1973 and that the dues being held in escrow should be returned to the employees.

Opposes 300-Foot Extension

'Quincy To Be No Storage Yard For MBTA Trains', Says Hannon

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has flatly told the MBTA that he doesn't want Quincy Center "to become a storage yard for MBTA trains."

The mayor sent a letter to the MBTA Board of Directors and General Manager Joseph E. Kelly opposing its contract with Modern Continental Construction Co. to extend the MBTA Red Line in Quincy approximately 300 feet.

The mayor contends the extension will be used for storage of MBTA trains.

The mayor noted that the opening of the Red Line in September, 1971 has caused parking and traffic problems in the downtown area. He added, "I don't believe we need any additional problems in the center of our city."

"The MBTA has proper storage facilities in Cambridge and that is where the Red Line Trains belong," he declared. "Any additional train storage in Quincy Center would create a serious visual pollution and vandalism problems."

The mayor urged the MBTA to abandon any future plans for additional train storage in Quincy Center and called on officials to "concentrate efforts on getting the Red Line out of Quincy Center."

The text of his letter follows:

"It has come to my attention that the MBTA will soon proceed on a contract with Modern Continental Construction Company to extend the Red Line in Quincy Center approximately 300 feet. The purpose of this extension is to provide additional storage space for MBTA trains in Quincy.

"The City of Quincy has had to live with the terminal of the Red Line in our downtown since September of 1971. The traffic and parking problems this situation has created are burdens we will obviously bear for months and years to come. I don't, however, believe we need any additional problems in the center of our city. Specifically, I don't want Quincy Center to become a storage yard for the MBTA trains. The MBTA has proper storage facilities in Cambridge and that is where Red Line trains belong. Any additional train storage in Quincy Center would, in my opinion, create serious visual pollution and vandalism problems.

"I urge that the MBTA cancel any plans for further train storage in Quincy Center and instead concentrate efforts on getting the Red Line out of Quincy Center."

Tax Hike $9.90 Without Pay Raises

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The city's 1974 tax rate is still pretty much up in the air—figuratively and literally both.

Just what the actual figure will be depends now on how much of a pay hike city employees get.

Reliable City Hall sources who know how to work a pencil, figure at this moment the tax rate hike would be $9.90. That is without any pay raises.

In other words, if the new rate were to be set today—without taking pay raises into consideration—the tax rate would be $164.20—up $9.90 over last year.

Each $100 across the board pay raise for city employees would add 92 more cents to the tax rate.

Thus a $300 pay hike would equal $2.76, and $500, $4.60.

The new tax rate then would be either $166.96 or $168.80. Or higher if the pay increases are more than $500 across the board.

And that figure would be literally pretty much up in the air.

And if you think that is bad, wait'll next year. City Hall observers predict 1975 will see another big tax jump—even though it is an election year.

THE SPECULATION CORPS is just about convinced that Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington will challenge Rep. Joseph Brett this fall.

Harrington, they feel, will make the run this year fully aware that Brett is a strong incumbent. And if Harrington should not win it, he will use the experience to analyze what has to be done to win it the next time. As he did against Ward 6 Councillor Vincent Smyth.

"LA RAIJA" bumper stickers are beginning to blossom around Quincy, and they should be good for a new guessing game. What are they for? Is City Councillor Joseph LaRaia running for the Senate [against incumbent Arthur Tobin] or is he warming up early for a mayoralty bid in 1975.

Political observers feel he would have a better shot at mayor than for the Senate because he has been involved in municipal issues. How well he could do in Braintree, for example, is a big question.

MEANWHILE, Robert Cerasoli is the first candidate for state representative to actually file his nomination papers. He seeks the First Norfolk District seat being vacated by Clifford Marshall to run for Sheriff.

Cerasoli's camp reports some 2,500 nomination signatures have already been gathered. And a large number of them filed at both Quincy City and Weymouth Town Hall.

WJDA's Herb Fontaine is back in action after a seven-day siege of the hiccupps. They kept him off the air most of that time.

Fontaine got a number of cards and calls from listeners, offering a variety of sure cures for the hiccupps. The most popular recommended: drinking water from the opposite side of a glass. [That can get pretty wet].

But it was a doctor who finally cured them with a tranquilizer drug.

DICK MAC KENZIE, the assistant city Building Inspector, is still walking on clouds. And, why not? How many guys actually come up with that golfers' dream—a hole in one?

Dick, playing in an Adams Heights Men's Club tourney at Lost Brook Golf Course in Dedham, popped in his big one on a 190-yard hole.

And in the grand tradition of the fairways, he ordered a round of drinks for 40 members of the Adams Heights Men's Club.

Member Bob Tobin made it all worth while, though. He had the ball placed in a plastic cube for posterity.

ARTHUR CIAMPA, executive director of Cerebral Palsy, South Shore Area, Inc., is at Massachusetts General Hospital, for back surgery. He's in Room 517 in the White Building.

LOOK ALIKES: If you catch them at the right side view—Pat Hannon, Quincy's First Lady, and singer Florence Henderson.

WHICH REMINDS US: How anyone can see any resemblance between Foster Furcolo and Rep. Joseph Brett is a mystery to us. Every once in a while there's a report that someone mistakes Brett for Furcolo in a State House corridor. And down through the years, Brett has gotten pretty good mileage out of it.

HAVE A QUOTE via the Quincy Kiwanis Club news-letter: "You never get a second chance to make a good first impression."

Quincy Heritage Committee To Coordinate Bicentennial Plans

Quincy's bicentennial celebrations will be coordinated by a new committee known as Quincy Heritage.

Rev. John R. Graham has resigned as minister of historic First Parish Church to become director of Quincy Heritage which is a combination of the 350th Anniversary Committee of the Founding of Mt. Wollaston Committee and the Quincy Bicentennial Committee.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon said the new committee will begin operations July 1.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon, former chairman of the 350th Committee, will serve as general chairman of Quincy Heritage.

One of the first jobs of the committee will be to form a Council of Historic Sites to coordinate the programs and plans of each of the city's historic sites. Rev. Graham indicated that the committee will be looking for support from the business community.

A slide-tape program is being developed to show all the programs planned for the celebration. Called "Quincy's Pride: Patriots, Presidents, Possibilities," it will be available for showing in September.

A book honoring Quincy's 350th birthday will be printed with Quincy Historical Society President H. Hobart Holly as editor.

A "Quincy Night" is planned for next April at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph. Two commemorative medals will be issued in limited edition next April honoring Quincy's role in the American Revolution and the founding of Mt. Wollaston in 1625.

Mayor Hannon said, "I'm delighted at the immense progress these two groups have made thus far. Quincy's rich history is now receiving the attention it deserves."

"I am particularly impressed by the concern which is being directed toward the development of tourism in the city. At a time when there is a shortage of jobs, tourism can be one of the greatest economic benefits to Quincy."

1,600 Local Fishermen Support 200-Mile Limit

Over 1,600 "concerned voters and members" of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Clubs have filed a petition with Congressman James A. Burke, supporting the extension of American territorial waters to the 200-mile limit.

The petition filed with the assistance of Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy], is part of an effort to ease the severe economic hardships which are currently plaguing the fishing industry. The current crisis is due in part to the intervention of foreign fishing vessels into American fishing waters.

In a letter to Congressman Burke, Brownell cited foreign fishing trawlers which use illegal nets, equipment and methods to pilfer East coast fishing grounds.

"Something must be done soon before fish life along our Massachusetts coast becomes completely depleted," he said.

PERSONAL Tell son nonsense is ended

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Our son is 28 divorced, and the father of a lovely son. After his divorce, he moved in with us "temporarily." That was three years ago. My wife and I are retired and the financial burden created by his living here is becoming difficult. We have suggested that he give us some money to help cover expenses but he has ignored our suggestion.

His appetite is great and he never goes out. Even though he is our son, we would like privacy once in a while. His former wife tells us that he is a lazy bum and lived off her for years. Up until now both my wife and I felt that our son was the injured party. Recently, however, we are beginning to understand why his wife threw him out. What can be done about a person like this?

Pop

Dear Pop:

If you have been putting up with his nonsense for three years, your son sees no reason to change. After letting his wife support him, he trotted home. Give him two weeks to find an apartment and pack his bags. You will be doing yourself and him a big favor.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Three years ago my son and daughter-in-law moved to our town. Ever since then I have been a free babysitting service. At least twice a week they drop in and leave two healthy, active children. My son always calls and asks if I will watch the children, but I am beginning to feel that he is taking me for granted. I want to see my grandchildren, but these late hours and constant visits are getting me down. How can I get the idea across to my son and his wife?

Granny

Dear Granny:

Don't be so available. The next time your son calls, tell him that you are tired and cannot keep the children. Perhaps he doesn't realize that two active children can exhaust even the most loving grandma.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Does anyone have a happy home? I don't. My mother is gone all day working and so is my dad. When they are home all they do is work around the house. I realize that they both must work but I need to talk with them. My mother is on her feet eight hours a day and when she comes home she cleans house. Dad also works hard. We realize that this is for the three of us, but we need their companionship too. Give us the answer.

Three Musketeers

Dear Three Musketeers:

When you get home from school do your mother's cleaning and your father's yard work. If the three of you pitch in, it shouldn't take too long. Then you can all spend the evening together. Try it, your parents will love it and so will you. Good luck.

COOKING CORNER

Barbara Rush cooks while she travels

By SUSAN DELIGHT

Living out of a suitcase for actress Barbara Rush can be a pretty heavy scene.

Her suitcase — one of them — contains many of the appliances found in a modern, well-stocked kitchen.

When Miss Rush is traveling around the country and the world doing stage work or television filming, she also brings along a vertical broiler, a toaster oven, a blender, an electric frying pan, an electric water boiler and her trusty crock pot.

"I never eat out because I cook better than they (restaurant chefs) do. I think eating out can kill you," she says. "Restaurants put too many preservatives in their foods."

Miss Rush also has another reason for doing her own cooking in kitchens and kitchenettes around the world. A hypoglycemic with an abnormally low supply of sugar in her blood, she must watch her diet.

Cooking comes naturally for her, she says, and she has "been interested in it all my life."

She sometimes cooks for the show cast of "Father's Day," in which she has been appearing on stage, and, each night, prepares dinner for herself and her daughter, Claudia, age 10.

Miss Rush, whose Beverly Hills home includes a small herb garden, has brought along 16 different herbs for cooking stints on her tour.

While she loves cooking, she emphasizes she doesn't like to spend countless hours at it. She is always searching for new ideas on delicious but relatively fast menu ideas.

The actress also feels a certain reverence for salads.

"I think a salad should be a treasure hunt," says Miss Rush.

For a tossed green salad, she's apt to add some fresh green uncooked peas, grapes, raisins, pecans and, sometimes, artichoke hearts. She then adds some herbs to a vinegar and oil dressing laced with a bit of Worcestershire sauce. "That is the best salad," she says.

In between acting roles, Miss Rush says she will often take a day or two in her Beverly Hills home and do a lot of advance cooking. She then freezes the foods for future use.

Below are samples of the actresses quick menu ideas.

SOUP TRIO CHICKEN

- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 1 can cream of celery soup
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup dry white wine
- 4 chicken breasts, split
- Slivered almonds
- Lemon-Pepper Marinade
- Parmesan cheese
- Salt to taste

Combine soups with the white wine. Add salt and lemon-pepper marinade. Place chicken breasts or other chicken pieces in a shallow baking dish sprayed with vegetable oil. Pour soup blend over pieces. Add slivered almonds and Parmesan cheese. Bake in a 350-degree oven for one hour or a little longer until chicken is cooked and cheese is lightly browned. Might cover with foil for the first half hour. Serve over cooked rice. Serves four to six.

LIME PIE

- 1 can (14 ounces) sweetened condensed milk
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup fresh lime juice (must be fresh)
- 1 can (13½ ounces) drained, crushed pineapple
- 2 or 3 drops of green food coloring to make mixture pale green
- $\frac{1}{2}$ pint whipping cream
- 1 tablespoon powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Sweet chocolate shavings
- 18- or 9-inch baked pie shell

Combine first four ingredients and set aside. In another bowl, whip cream and add powdered sugar and vanilla. Pour the lime juice, milk and pineapple mixture into the baked pie shell. Top with whipped cream. Add sprinkling of shaved sweet chocolate. Chill for approximately three hours before serving.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS 'Kittenish' wife too demanding

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I have been happily married for five years. Suddenly in the last six months, my husband has changed completely from a loving, considerate person into a snarling, hateful man. It's no use to enter into a conversation with him. He won't talk to me about anything. Does my handwriting show any weakness of which I am unaware?

B.A.

Dear B.A.:

The tighter you hold, the snappier his snarl! The small loop on capital H is causing you no end to trouble. It keeps you watchful and suspicious, always fearful that you might lose him to someone else. Then, the larger lower loops cause you to imagine all kinds of little things that might happen when you're not looking.

The light pressure of your writing, the upswing endings on words, and the low t crossings keep you "kittenish." You are plenty cuddly, but, also, very demanding of your husband's affections. The beginning hooks on your words keep you reaching out for any material signs of his love, and it takes daily reminders to satisfy you.

The low t crossing, also, keeps your eye on today and the personal attention you can get right now. You are failing to consider the pressures of your husband. The consistent retraced strokes have kept you from analyzing this serious business of marriage.

To make your marriage go, you have to do it all. Love him, trust him, and try to stand on your own two feet. Make him proud of you as you strive toward some kind of accomplishment. And, incidentally, involving yourself in a worthwhile cause will give you something to "purr" about, too.

Every man loves a kitten — but, after five years, it begins to scratch.

Selected letters will be answered in this column. To obtain the free pamphlet, "Your T's Tell," write to Dorothy St. John Jackson, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Enclose long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

He won't talk to me about anything

BOAT EXPLOSION HAZARD

Every summer, the boating industry has its share of accidents, many are fatal. But the most terrifying of all boat disasters is the explosion that can demolish an inboard motor boat. How does this happen?

When a battery is being charged, it gives off highly explosive hydrogen gas. The gas is lighter than air and can get trapped under a closed hatch. All it takes is a spark to set off the holocaust.

Here's a tip from the Boating Industry Association. Whenever you charge the battery of an inboard or inboard-outboard motor boat with an external charger, leave the engine compartment open or ajar.

Any storage battery should always be well ventilated while being charged to prevent the buildup of explosive gas. And extreme care should be taken to keep sparks and flame away from it.

Native Eggs Plentiful And Selling At Low Prices

Native eggs made news last week as the market hit a long-time low, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA].

With jumbos retailing for under 90 cents a dozen, and a good price spread between sizes, this is some kind of a record in these times when one must run faster every day just to stay even.

Prices are expected to hold steady for a while, as egg production remains high.

The hens and pullets of the Bay State make rather vast quantities of eggs - some 550 million annually, or about 100 eggs for every potential customer in Massachusetts. Egg production is a 20-million-dollar business in the state.

Complete figures for 1972 show that 535 million eggs were produced in Massachusetts - and 534 million were sold.

Presumably, the other million broke on the way. It took 2,297,000 layers, working 240 to 260 days, to produce them. They rested the other 100-odd days.

With native asparagus increasing in supply daily in the market, you have an excellent potential combination with eggs: Poached eggs and asparagus, scrambled eggs and asparagus, asparagus and egg casserole, to name a few. A bit of imagination - and quick reference to any good cookbook - will produce new and interesting meals for the family, and equally to the point, at reasonable cost today.

Massachusetts farms are bringing in the first-of-the-season fresh produce in good supply this week. The first arrivals of bunch radishes were recorded last week, with supplies increasing; and native rhubarb, scallions and spinach.

This has been a good planting spring so far, says the MDA, with the ground not too wet for tilling, as several prior springs have been. Last year was disastrous for planting, throughout the country as well as in Massachusetts. The only crop disaster reported to date this season was a four-day torrential rain last week in parts of the midwest, wiping out the first plantings of wheat and soy beans. But the farmers will re-plant, and hope for good crops springs eternal.

Crisp Crust Or Tender? Have It Your Way

Do you like your bread with a crisp crust, or do you prefer it tender? If you bake your own, you can take your choice, say the bread baking experts of Rhodes Bake-N-Serv, leading producer of frozen bread dough. For a soft, bright, tender crust, brush the baked loaves with butter. For a crisp crust, let the bread cool naturally - do not butter the crust.

If you like a glazed crust, brush the dough before baking with a mixture of one slightly beaten egg yolk and four tablespoons of water.

The Wollaston Glee Club took first place in the recent 54th annual concert and contest of The New England Federation of Mens Glee Clubs.

The Wollaston Glee Club is one of the oldest mens glee clubs in the country, in continuous operation. Comprising men of all ages, religions and walks of life, the group meets each Monday evening at 8 p.m., September through May in the basement of the Wollaston Methodist Church, Beale St. Men who enjoy group singing are always invited, and auditions are not held, by tradition.

The prize songs were a German Hunting Song "Dawn Through The Woods is Creeping" and the American Traditional shanty ballad, "Shenandoah". The concert after the contest was directed by Robert C. Prince. Host club was the Highland Glee Club of Newton, and the event was performed at the Aquinas Junior College in Newtonville.

plans to pursue graduate studies in economics.

The basic concept of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" is to provide a democratic, national basis for recognition of outstanding campus leaders.

The directory has appeared annually since 1934 and now includes listings from over 1000 colleges and universities in all fifty states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign nations in North and South America. Students represented in "Who's Who" are selected by committees on their campuses and are able to make use of reference and placement exclusively for members.

OPEN HOUSE

What's sought in a home?

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

In seeking out the right home, the average American family first looks for a neighborhood close to their preferred school for the kids. The family will then look for an attractive one-level ranch home with a well-planned interior traffic pattern. A spacious, efficient kitchen is particularly important.

These key preferences were revealed by real estate brokers responding to a survey questionnaire on today's home-buyer tastes, desires and requirements.

In addition to proximity to schools, most modern families zero in on neighborhoods that are convenient to the church of their choice, shopping and amusement facilities. They are also concerned about other homes in the neighborhood of their prospective new residence. They want them to reflect the same or higher price range.

Also regarding the location, today's home buyer is sensitive to the need of adequate zoning to protect the residential character of the area. They also seriously consider the congeniality of neighbors and the reputation of the local school district.

One location factor that is rapidly increasing in importance is accessibility to public transportation — stimulated by the shortage and cost of gasoline.

As for the house itself, the one-level ranch home is still tops in popularity. Colonial styled architecture takes second place, followed by bilevel and split-level styles.

Adequate heating and air conditioning are key construction requirements for most families. A well-constructed roof and wall insulation are also vitally important. A sound electrical system with sufficient outlets is a must.

Smaller Or Larger Home Trend?

Q. Does the current trend point to larger or smaller homes in the next year or so?

A. Like automobiles, homes are also getting smaller and more compact. They're shrinking in size for the same basic reasons — energy shortages, skyrocketing costs of materials, labor and financing and the diminishing size of today's families.

In fact, the two-bedroom home, once a tough item to sell, is suddenly becoming quite popular with buyers in most areas of the country.

Q. We think the information included in our credit bureau report may have prevented us from obtaining a new home loan. Is it possible to see what's in that mysterious file?

A. Yes. The law allows any individual to inspect his credit bureau file when he requests such an inspection and properly identifies himself. This provision is incorporated in the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Q. Where in the U.S. are real estate loans most secure?

A. Hawaii is the proud holder of this prize. This fledgling state has the lowest overall mortgage delinquency rate in the country — on one to four family residential properties.

Chelsea Shatters North Hopes

It didn't seem possible two weeks ago that North Quincy's baseball team could miss out in a long-awaited state tournament berth but it happened again.

With a 12-3 record, the Raiders had to win only two of their last five games to give Coach Charlie Bunker his first tourney spot since taking over as North coach five years ago.

North dropped a 1-0 squeaker to Everett, then defeated

Quincy, 4-2, leaving only one win necessary. But Somerville pounded the Raiders, 12-7.

Monday, North replayed a rained-out game with Abp. Williams and lost, 2-0, as Tim Clifford suffered his fourth defeat against eight wins. Two of his other losses were 1-0 and 2-1.

Tuesday North replayed last Friday's rained-out Chelsea game and the Raiders lost, 2-1, to end their tourney hopes. North had only one hit while John Lawlor, who had a 4-0 record and three saves going into the game, dropped his only decision.

It was a tough way for North to wind up its final Greater Boston League season. Rain also played a part in failing to make the tourney as the Raiders were leading Abp. Williams in their early-season meeting, 9-4, only to have the game rained out in the fourth inning.

●Raiders League Champs

North, Quincy In Tennis Tourney

Tennis Coaches Bill Willoughby of North Quincy and Bill Mitchell of Quincy had twin reasons for being happy this season.

Willoughby's Raiders last week finished its final Independence League season by clinching the championship and qualified for this week's state tournament.

Mitchell, who earlier had captured his 100th coaching win, saw his team upset North in the season's finale after the Raiders had wrapped up second place and also qualified for the tournament.

In the season's finale for both teams, Quincy avenged an earlier defeat by topping North, 4-1.

North's only point came in singles when Dan Lewis defeated John Pagnano. Quincy's Dennis McCarthy defeated Paul O'Malley and Kevin Sullivan defeated Bob Grazer.

In doubles the Presidents'

John Rice and Steve Feldman defeated Ron Colon and Glenn Williams and Dave Kerman and Mike Menconi defeated Jim Connolly and Dan Finn.

Earlier in the week North clinched the title by topping Catholic Memorial, 5-0, while Quincy took second place with a 4-1 win over B.C. High.

North Quincy finished with a 9-2 record and Quincy was 7-3. Both schools next year enter the strong Suburban League.

A-N Wins 6th Straight, Sterling Bombs BM

There appears to be no stopping the Atlantic-North baseball team, which last week rolled to its sixth straight win without a loss, topping Point, 3-0.

Mac McGinley pitched a three-hitter for A-N, while Jim McGinley and Eddie McElaney led the attack.

Sterling walloped Broad Meadows, 15-5, with John Sylva the winning pitcher, striking out seven batters in three innings of outstanding relief. Jim Maze, Brian Kelly, Tony Luongo and Dave DiBona had two hits each for Sterling.

The scheduled Point-Sterling and Central Broad Meadows games were postponed until yesterday [Wednesday].

This magnificent, white, pillared Georgian Colonial, circa 1826, is a house for gracious living. Hingham will always call it, "The Governor's Mansion".

During the term of Massachusetts' Governor, John Albion Andrew, 1860 to 1865, the great of the nation gathered here. The huge parlors echoes to the sentiments of those who urged the Abolition of Slavery. The lovely First Lady, Eliza Hersey Andrew, daughter of a prominent Hingham family, presided at the tea table in her hoops skirted gown made of damask from the Orient.

Enter through the pillared portico. The drama of these 12 beautiful rooms begins in the gracious hall with its bridal staircase. The double living room has two fireplaces of black Etruscan marble and tapestry brick. A marble bust of Governor Andrew looks down from one mantle, and one can almost hear the sweet tones of a minuet.

The banquet-dining room has its own fireplace and is served by a modern, all appliances, 30 ft. kitchen. Part of this kitchen has been made into a comfortable family room with huge windows bring in the beauties of nature, golden sunlight.

Many of the 7 bedrooms have a fireplace and are king sized, with baths. Two floors in the front section, three in rear make for privacy. Closets abound.

Those who have enjoyed this house have given it special care all through the years. Today its stately white pillars gleam in the sun. Its 2 1/2 acres have a 3 car garage, 2 other barns for horses, storage. Its apple blossoms still produce snow white blossoms in the spring, red fruit in the fall. A Special Salute To Class Of '74 - - Pages 18 - 27

Dr. Creedon Sees:

'Graduates Reject Violence, Militancy'

By TOM HENSHAW

High school graduates of 1974 "are a more introspective generation and thus are more at peace with themselves, their peers, their parents and those in positions of authority," says School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

In remarks prepared for delivery Wednesday night at the joint commencement of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and Quincy Vocational Technical School at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Dr. Creedon said:

"There are unmistakable signs that the unrest, militancy and violence that had come to be associated with youthful behavior over the past several years has passed and that we are on the threshold of a new, more constructive renaissance.

"However, make no mistake about it. Today's young people, in turning away from the radicalism of the recent past, are not seeking to reconstruct the world as it was when the parents among us here this evening were young.

"From among those characteristics which distinguish the young people of today from those of other years and times is their realization that their actions can no longer be justified by a 'Do Your Own Thing' code of conduct than by a blind adherence to values passed on to them from a still earlier period.

"What is emerging, and I welcome it, is a rebirth of the Rousseauian notion of personal development from within.

"It is an emerging realization that in our technologically based open society each person must individually structure a conceptual framework upon which a code of conduct and thus life-style can be built and lived.

Trinity Lutheran Church Memorial For Dr. Djerf

Trinity Lutheran Church dedicated a plaque and renamed its child development center in honor of the late Dr. Charles Djerf at ceremonies Sunday at the church.

The plaque in the church nursery school reads: "To the Memory of Charles Djerf, M.D.

"June 3, 1910 - February 13, 1973.

"A distinguished citizen, a friend and benefactor of Trinity Lutheran Church. A scholar, physician and a humanitarian whose service above self was unselfishly centered towards his fellow men and his children."

The inscription was written by Dr. Ensio Ronka, a member of Trinity Lutheran Church for many years, a close friend of Dr. Djerf, and former director of Quincy City Hospital.

Dr. Djerf, a pediatrician, member of the Quincy School Committee and a founder of Survival, Inc., was instrumental in starting the nursery school program at the church.

At the same time, the church council announced that the Roberts Street Child Development Center for three and four year olds will be renamed the Dr. Charles Djerf Child Development Center.

Next Move Up To Hannon In Garbage-Trash Controversy

The next step is up to Mayor Walter J. Hannon in the mounting controversy over mixing garbage and trash in the Quin. city dump.

The City Council went on record Monday night in opposition to the Mayor's plan to combine the two collections and save the city an estimated $280,000 a year.

The Council, which has never announced its opposition to saving money, opposed the plan on grounds the garbage would be a health hazard and a nuisance to residents of Wards 4 and 5 who live near the dump.

The Mayor could choose to ignore the Council's resolution and combine the collections by executive order, thus batting the ball back into the Council's end of the court.

The Council, if a majority of the nine members felt strongly enough on the subject, could then hire a lawyer and seek an injunction to halt the combined

'Atmosphere Good' As Shipyard Talks Continue

Negotiations in the 75-day-old strike of 1,800 production workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard picked up steam this week and a high union official said:

"The atmosphere is better than I've ever seen it."

General Dynamics and Shipbuilding Workers Local 5 resumed negotiations Monday for four hours and then went back into session at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Braintree.

Following the Monday meeting the two sides issued a non-committal joint statement saying that they "are hopeful that negotiations will be productive and will lead to a settlement of the strike."

Negotiations have been hung up over what the company calls

"production improvement" clauses in the new contract which would replace the five-year agreement that expired at midnight March 16.

The union views the "production improvements" as an attempt to break down craft lines and set up the category of "shipyard mechanic," who is required to do several jobs as they occur.

The latest company wage offer was a $1.25 an hour increase spread over a three-year contract which would bring the average hourly wage for a first class worker to $5.44 in 1976.

Shipyard President P. Takis Veliotis said in a letter to striking union members that, if the offer were accepted, the workers at the Fore River yard would be the highest paid shipbuilders in the area.

The claim drew immediate rebuttal from Local 5 President Arthur Batson who said that by the time Quincy workers reached the $5.44 level, workers in other yards would be making $6.25.

And Charles M. Johnston, former president of Local 90 [clerical employees], said in a letter to Veliotis that workers in the General Dynamics Groton, Conn., yard are already making $4.94 an hour "with another raise coming soon under their agreement."

The current base rate for a first class worker at the Quincy yard is $4.19 an hour, which would rise to $4.69 during the first year of the new contract offered by General Dynamics.

QCEU WINS BUT . . .

SEIU May Appeal Union Election

A bargaining election victory by the newly formed Quincy City Employees Union on May 30 apparently is going to be challenged by the losers, the Service Employees International Union [AFL-CIO].

A spokesman for the SEIU's Boston Local 285 said Tuesday "it appears that an appeal will be filed" contesting the QCEU's 230 to 73 victory in the State Labor Relations Board election.

He referred callers to Union Trustee Guy Lucia for more definite information and Lucia was not available for comment.

Either side in the election has until the close of business today [Thursday] to file an appeal but a spokesman for the State Labor Relations Board said late Tuesday that no appeal had yet been filed.

He added that 44 challenged ballots in the Technicians Unit still have to be opened. Since the unit voted 28-25 for the QCEU, he said, there is a possibility its members may go with the SEIU.

In all there were 67 challenged ballots and 37 votes for no union.

The QCEU was formed in June 1973 by members of the SEIU's Quincy Local 576 after a disagreement with the international. The international then placed Local 576 in trusteeship.

QCEU President John J. Keefe, former president of Local 576, said the Quincy workers left the international because it was trying to force Local 576 into the Boston local without the consent of the Quincy, members.

The vote by units in last week's election was:

- CLERICAL UNIT
- QCEU - 127; SEIU - 40; No Union - 28; challenged - 23.
- TECHNICIANS UNIT
- QCEU - 28; SEIU - 25; No Union - 3; challenged - 44.
- MAINTENANCE UNIT
- QCEU - 22; SEIU - 0; No Union - 4.
- POWER PLANT HOSPITAL UNIT
- QCEU - 8; SEIU - 0.
- LIBRARY UNIT
- QCEU - 45; SEIU - 8; No Union - 2.

Tobin Says:

Policemen Taken For Granted

"You do your job so efficiently that we don't really see you -- we take you for granted."

It was City Council President Arthur H. Tobin paying tribute to the men of the Quincy Police Department Sunday at Mount Wollaston Cemetery on the occasion of their annual memorial service for fellow officers who have died in the service of the city.

"You are closest to us when we're in trouble," said Tobin.

"Your encounters are with crime and human misery.

"You spend much of your time with that one or two per cent of our citizens who cause the problems, who are often surly with the police and who delight in heaping ridicule on your efforts. Your days are indeed difficult.

"One may wonder why you're so willing to put on a uniform day after day and risk your lives for our safety.

"It's easy for us to remember you when we think you should have answered a call sooner. But we casually forget that you are protecting and serving us 24 hours a day, all year long.

"You alone are the government's representative closest to the people. In the eyes of many of us the way you perform your duties is how the people see the city. It's not always pleasant to be so visible.

"In a day when so many are thoughtless, negligent, and utterly irresponsible, you continue to do your job."

collections. Since the Council has no funds with which to hire a lawyer, the curious spectacle would arise of Councillors digging into their own personal funds to hire a lawyer to fight the Mayor's order.

"I hope he doesn't look upon this as a personal challenge," said Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers, who with Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets introduced the resolution in opposition to the Mayor's plan.

"It looks to me like he is on a money hunt. He's looking to free money that had already been budgeted for waste disposal to create a fund for the Mayor to draw on.

"If this was such a good money-saving idea, why wasn't it brought up when the budget was before the City Council?"

There is a city ordinance which bans the mixing of garbage and trash but, said the Mayor, it may not apply if it is handled in a manner that does not create breeding places for pests.

Wife needs an allowance

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What do you think of a husband who refuses to allow his wife to purchase makeup, go to the beauty shop, or buy new clothes? If my friend didn't give me home permanents, I don't know what I would do.

Before I was married I worked as a secretary, wore nice clothes, and kept my hair well groomed. We've been married two years and I don't think I can stand another two.

Fed Up

Dear Fed Up:

Every wife should have an allowance. She should feel free to spend a few dollars as she pleases. Tell your husband exactly how you feel.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

This is my second marriage and I'm determined to make it a success. However, Karl is making things all but impossible. When he gets home from work he goes to the bedroom to watch TV. He does come out long enough for dinner and then it's back to the bedroom. I watch television in the living room because Karl says he would rather be alone. He shows me no affection but is polite and makes a good living.

Karl is 32 and I am 28. I simply refuse to accept another failure.

J. C.

Dear J. C.:

It takes two to make marriage a success. You can't do it alone. What you have now can hardly be called success. Unless Karl is willing to see a counselor, the outcome of your marriage is doubtful.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My problem began eight years ago when I married Jim. I was only 17. He was in the Navy and gone quite a lot. I was very lonely and made a bad mistake. I went out on my husband; however, I did nothing really wrong if you know what I mean. It was only one time and I never did it again.

When my husband came home, I told him exactly what had happened and how unimportant it really was. He made a mistake and told his family what I had done. They arrived in a group, took our small son, and my husband put me on a plane to return to my home in Kansas. As soon as I got home, I got a job in order to make some money and get my baby back. Within three weeks my husband called and begged me to return and said he was sorry. Our relationship has been great. His family is another story. They say terrible things to me and about me. They call me names you couldn't print and ignore my children. We now have a little girl as well as our son.

What can I do about my in-laws?

Vicki

Dear Vicki:

I am afraid there isn't much help for people like your in-laws. There is no magic key for handling such ingrates. Make friends of your own and avoid the family. Tell Jim you love him dearly but refuse to tolerate any further rudeness on the part of his family.

Inform your in-laws that what happened eight years ago is ancient history and that you don't care to have it mentioned again.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Riding a bike tells your age

By ANN RUDY

If you are wondering about somebody's age, just watch the way they ride a bike.

Those under 6 and over 65 usually ride the three-wheeled kind, but for those in-between ages, here are a few tips more reliable than crows' feet in strong sunlight.

You can be sure the bike rider is between very young and young if he rides no-handed and leans back on the seat while looking around at passing scenery. That kind of cool and balance comes from terrific coordination and a lack of experience.

Once such a rider hits a rock or has a tricky wheel turn sideways with him, sending him heaped into a pile of pain, he has usually moved into the next age bracket — young adult.

These people ride holding on, but fast, to compensate. They come up behind you if you're walking and pass you like the north wind. The men are all tanned and heavily muscled from riding after the girls who are just tanned and that's enough.

And when the young adults catch up with each other and become young marrieds, the peddling goes on but with time out to buy a kiddie-seat for the handlebars or rear fender. Then, they ride a little slower, but not as slowly as the middle-aged.

The middle-aged couple, out

for a little exercise, ride very carefully. I mean, if a woman's husband has paid $400 to have her front teeth capped, he is going to tell her to be careful.

And she would be anyway, because she remembers the time she tripped and fell in front of the post office and nobody came up to her but a Labrador retriever who found her perfume irresistible.

So, if you are not afraid of giving away your age, ride a bike to keep fit — and well-balanced.

Car accidents lead in child death cause

Automobile-related accidents are the leading cause of death and disability in young children in this country.

Available national statistics show that in 1970 alone automobile accidents resulted in 6,000 deaths among children under 14 years of age, with about 2,670 of these deaths and 145,500 injuries involving children riding inside a vehicle. — CNS

Dear Dorothy:

I'm having a real problem. My children who are now married don't seem to particularly like me anymore. Notice that I do not use the word "love," because, thank God, I feel quite secure in this. However, our old comradery and good rapport is vanishing. I have to really think before I say the normal, usual things. What's going on?

from going overboard. Your children have been a part of this racking strain. You have demanded much of them, seen in the slanted t crossings, in order to bring acclaim to yourself. When they were young, they had to accept. Now, they are grown and feel a right to live their own lives.

Because your bid for the show is always projected with finesse and good taste, your children can't help being proud of you. You are their star. They love you — and like you, too. They simply want their chance, as adults, to shine in their own light, just as you do. Keep on making them proud. Keep letting them see you in lovely gowns and dramatic action. But don't nag them to see things your way. They'll only resist you.

Release them to live normal lives — and they might just return as your strongest supporting cast.

D.J.

Dear K.L.:

You're always on stage. Your desire for attention, seen in the upswing endings, keeps you projecting yourself into the limelight of every activity. Your children don't have a chance. You are always reacting, seen in your forward slant, and you won't give up until all have recognized you for what you want to be, seen in the long down-strokes.

You have even found it necessary to employ a bit of caution, now and then, seen in the straight final stroke at the end of the line of writing, to keep

Health High-Lights

A BOLT FROM THE BLACK

With every second's tick of the summer clock, 100 giant bolts of lightning, moving 30,000 times as fast as a bullet, strike somewhere on earth. In the average square mile there are 40 to 80 hits per year. In a typical lightning accident, up to 100 million volts of electricity may be generated. It can burn, jolt, paralyze and kill. In fact over 150 persons are killed each summer from lightning.

With lightning lurking, the most dangerous places to be are on a high spot on a golf course, in a boat, atop a hill, at a beach, near a metal clothesline, or riding a bike, tractor or horse. About one third of all lightning victims lose their lives when sheltered under isolated trees, which in themselves attract bolts. The safest place in a thunderstorm is probably in an all-steel closed car. Keep the windows closed.

Why Not A Higher Rate Of Return For Savings And Loans?

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hallowell
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursday

Why should savings and loans be allowed to offer a higher rate of return to savers than banks? This is a question that we in the industry are often asked.

There are several good and valid reasons which even some bank officials are ready to admit. One of these is that the savings and loans are in business to provide financing principally for the construction and purchase of homes by U.S. families. The giant home construction industry depends for its vitality upon savings and loans as the primary source for the capital that enables American families to buy the homes it constructs.

As the author "Adam Smith" notes in his best-selling Super-money, "When the Congress wants to encourage something, it writes a favorable tax law." He adds that "as a social objective Congress wants everybody to own his own home, so it triple-subsidizes personal housing, which incidentally makes a house one of the best investments you can make."

The three ways he mentions in which Congress encourages home ownership are 1) by establishing an agency like the savings and loan industry and an insurance-supportive agency like the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, 2) by allowing deduction for income-tax purposes of real estate taxes and the interest paid on mortgages, and 3) by deferring capital-gains taxes when the house is sold if another is bought within a year at comparable or higher price.

A review of accounts at any S&L will reveal that these institutions are used principally by rank-and-file Americans.

Commercial banks initially lent almost exclusively for business purposes, though they have become increasingly interested in providing credit to consumers.

Savings and loans are restricted in the investment of their deposits almost exclusively to personal housing. Banks can invest their deposits in a total range of business and personal ventures that offer higher levels of return than are found in home mortgage loans.

Though Washington remains interested in home investment by American families, it can-and sometimes does-forget itself. What happened, for example, when the Federal Reserve System removed the limits last year on interest rates paid on four-year savings deposits under $100,000? Money poured out of the S&Ls and into the banks at such a rate that bank savings deposits tripled between July 25 and September 12.

The Government further muddled its thinking by competing with the S&Ls through the offer of Treasury bills in low denominations at extraordinary rates, intensifying the raid on S&L funds reserved for financing of housing. Happily, Congress put a stop to what one commentator called a "Texas-style poker game" by a resolution forcing Federal agencies to place ceilings on all classes of consumer savings accounts and certificates.

We have noted the warning of the chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board that if housing collapses this year, "it could take the whole economy down the drain with it." What is needed for the housing industry is not a lower but a higher savings rate differential of one-half per cent between S&Ls and banks.

At Pre-Primary Convention

Quincy's GOP Delegation Backs Nixon, Sargent, Quinlan

By PAUL HAROLD
(Quincy Sun Correspondent)

Quincy's delegation to Saturday's non-binding Republican pre-primary convention voted with the convention majority supporting President Nixon, Francis Sargent for Governor and John Quinlan for Secretary of State.

The convention was held at the Boston University hockey rink to endorse a slate of candidates for state-wide office. State Committeeman Roy Lawson of Wollaston saw the convention as basically two contests: Sargent vs. Sheehan for Governor and Quinlan vs. Burton for Secretary of State.

Donald Dwight for Lt. Governor, and William Cowin for Attorney General were unopposed, though Cowin faces a tough fight with Josiah Spaulding and Charles Cabot in September's Republican primary.

The race for Treasurer turned out to be surprisingly close, with Erna Ballantine as the winner. And at the last minute, Charles Greer was grabbed from the Cambridge delegation as the nominee for Auditor.

The two most surprising votes of the convention was the overwhelming support for the resolution supporting President Nixon and Sheehan's strong showing against Sargent.

Quincy City Committee member Lou Curl commented that both votes were a direct reflection of the conservative ward and town committees - the groups which elect delegates to the convention. The "support the President" vote was not reflective of the new Massachusetts Republican Party, she said, and she felt that most of the Sheehan votes were in fact anti-Sargent votes.

The Quincy delegation voted for the Nixon resolution and Anneli Johnson of South Quincy remarked that she thought the patriotic feeling in support of the President "was great".

The Norfolk delegation [Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook] also voted overwhelmingly for Sargent, 44 to 8. Helen Kelley of West Quincy was among those voting for Sheehan because she thought the challenge would be awakening to the Governor.

Joyce Baker of Wollaston, candidate for state representative, was chairman of the Quincy delegation and floor manager for Sargent. She said she was delighted with the 79% vote for the Governor.

However, Agnes Costello of Wollaston said she was amazed at the number of delegates who switched to Sheehan. "It was much more than expected," she said. "Some of the Sargent people switched at the last minute."

The Norfolk delegation also voted overwhelmingly for Quinlan, 40-9 [2 delegates had left]. Peter Gacia of South Quincy, co-chairman of the Quincy delegation [with his wife Norma] was also co-ordinator for Quinlan.

Reactions to the day-long event were mixed, but everyone agreed that the site was terrible. Acoustics were poor and by 3 p.m. the dampness from the ice rink concrete floor had seeped through the canvas covering.

For City Committee chairman Thomas Blacklock of West Quincy, it was convention number six. He noted that to a certain degree Saturday's event was more lively than past conventions.

Another delegate commented that all conventions are a waste of time and are too confusing. "It should all be done by mail," he said, "then we'd have time to think."

State Committeewoman Peg Andrew of Adams Shore disagrees. "Conventions are the only way to develop a platform," she said, "which is necessary to separate where the two parties stand."

One of those serving on the platform committee was Martha Reardon of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. A delegate from Cambridge, she wrote the transportation plank, which stressed the need to extend the MBTA south of Quincy Center.

School Committeeman Francis McCauley of Hough Neck said that he thought the convention was good as long as it was not binding. "The fights in the primary," McCauley noted, "will help stimulate interest and will help with registration."

Atty. John McGowan was attending his second convention Saturday and he remarked that he was disappointed because there was not much evidence of a change of faces in the Quincy group.

But he said, "These are hard times to get grass roots change in the Republican Party; something is needed and it will come, and it will come in Quincy."

Dean Paul Nicastro of Quincy Point took time out from studying for the bar exam to serve as delegate. And John Slomkowski, president of the Quincy Young Republicans was pleased with the final slate, because in his words, "We finally have candidates other than the Governor who have a chance of winning this year - Cowin for Attorney General and Quinlan for Secretary of State."

Q H S Re-elects Holly, Elects 5 New Curators

H. Hobart Holly was re-elected president of the Quincy Historical Society recently and five new curators were elected at the annual meeting at the United First Parish Church, Quincy Center.

Other officers re-elected were William A. O'Connell, first vice-president; Gordon F. Nelson, second vice-president; Mrs. Robert W. Justis, corresponding secretary; William P. Farrar, treasurer; Mr. Rudolph O. Oberg, librarian; and James R. Cameron, historian.

Mrs. Hall B. Carpenter was elected to succeed Miss Helene D. Johnson as recording secretary.

New curators elected for a three-year term are James D. Asher Jr., Fred E. Bergfors Jr., Henry W. Bosworth Jr., Robert W. Gardiner and Mrs. Louise S. Meredith.

Dr. George Horner was officially designated society archaeologist.

Newcomb Will Get Hospital Post In July

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Insiders report that City Purchasing Agent Richard Newcomb definitely will be named to a top post at Quincy City Hospital.

Newcomb, they say, will become assistant director of the hospital in July in charge of non-health departments such as maintenance, finance, housekeeping, etc. This was predicted here April 4. The job will reportedly pay about $17,000.

Miss Constance Lundy, now assistant director to Harlan L. Paine will soon be retiring. Whether her job and the one Newcomb will fill will be combined remains to be seen.

SHERIFF Charles Hedges is still insisting he's undecided about seeking re-election but he's getting closer and closer to being a candidate. Some of his nomination papers have already been filed at Quincy City Hall. The deadline isn't until June 18.

LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER hat is in the First Norfolk District state representative ring. Patrick Faherty of Faxon Park Rd has nomination papers in circulation. He ran against Clifford Marshall for city councillor last year.

MEANWHILE, James Papile and Tom Williams, two earlier announced candidates, have filed their nomination papers for that state representative district seat.

A FRIENDSHIP DANCE is being held for Councillor Joseph LaRaia June 18 at Morrisette Legion Post, from 8 p.m. to midnight. Tickets $2.50 per head. And, of course, the Speculation Corps is wondering what that's all about. Is it a fund-raiser to help pay the legal costs in the court suit filed against him by former Cemetery Supt. Anthony Famigletti? Is it to raise funds to challenge Senator Arthur Tobin this fall? Or to start building a campaign chest for a mayoralty bid next year? The June 18 date is interesting though. Just a coincidence that it's also the deadline for filing nomination papers for the Senate?

THERE ARE REPORTS of phony $20 bills being circulated in the area. Vin Contrino, the South Quincy barber, was certain he got one of them the other day.

If you examine a $20 bill closely, you'll note that Andrew Jackson has a cloak drawn about him with one finger showing. On the back of the bill are the familiar words "In God We Trust". The windows in the White House seem to be open, a flag flying above is somewhat drooped and there are a lot of trees and shrubs on the grounds.

Contrino got another $20 bill that looked a lot different. Like: Jackson has two fingers showing from under the cloak. The words "In God We Trust" do not appear on the back of the bill. The windows in the White House look closed; the flag is flying full and there are fewer shrubs and trees on the White House grounds.

Contrino took the bill to a bank to report he had gotten one of the phony ones. But, he was told the bill was a good one. That's what they said.

WHAT MUST BE the first local clambake of the season is being held by the Adams Heights Men's Club Sunday, at Romuva Park, Brockton. Chairmen Robert Foy and James Dugan have a full day of activities planned with gates opening at 9:30 a.m.

JAMES HUNT of Dorchester who is challenging Sonny McDonough for the Governor's Executive Council seat in this area has been around lining up Quincy support. Plans a determined bid to unseat McDonough in what could be a David and Goliath battle. Hunt a Democrat, has an active Quincy Republican as a relative: Kathy Roberts, his cousin.

BOB LUNDBOHN, popular manager of Kimberley's, underwent surgery Monday for a back ailment. He's at Carney Hospital, Room 208, his condition "good".

TRIBUTE DEPT: Quite a gal, Wollaston's Ann Gaffey. She's been around awhile and is still as spry and active as ever. She hasn't missed a Democratic political event in years.

So, it was quite natural for Edward Moore, administrative aid to Congressman James A. Burke to remark when he arrived at Saturday's Democratic caucus at The Tara in Braintree: "Well this [caucus] must be official. Ann Gaffey is here."

Another Major Milestone

Granite Co-operative Opens New Main Office In North Quincy

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

White trailers trimmed with aqua rightly belong in the mountains of Maine or in crowded campgrounds of Cape Cod.

But a mobile trailer - white and trimmed with aqua - has been conspicuously parked at 440 Hancock St. in North Quincy since September of 1973. The trailer is not an exemplar of the newest, fandangled conveniences in camping; it has been the temporary headquarters of the Granite Co-operative Bank.

But that trailer will soon vanish from the street. By next Monday [June 10], Mrs. Mary Holmes, chief executive officer, and employees of the Granite Co-operative Bank will have moved next door into what Mrs. Holmes calls "a bright and shiny bank".

"It's a beautiful building enhancing the area," she added.

A new, customer parking lot will accommodate 46 cars. Mrs. Holmes laughingly remarked, "That means we can have 46 customers at once, but if we do, we'll drop dead."

The new bank main office, boasts two new service conveniences to customers. Modern-installment, on-line equipment - translated from bank jargon into understandable vernacular, that phrase means new electronic equipment - will "expedite banking services for the customer," according to Mrs. Holmes.

In addition, Mrs. Holmes reports that the bank will provide safe deposit boxes for the customer's convenience and peace of mind, thus initiating "a service much needed in the area."

It is another major milestone for the fast growing bank that was born in a movie theatre just 21 years ago.

The Granite Co-operative Bank was established May 29, 1953 under the name of the North Quincy Co-operative Bank. The building formerly housed the Regent Movie Theatre which was then reconstructed and redesigned.

In 1965 the bank changed its name to the Granite Co-operative Bank and also opened a branch office at 100 Granite St.

Last fall the building was razed and construction began on the new 17,600 square foot structure. Today the Granite Co-operative Bank reports assets in excess of $13 million. In addition, the bank boasts mortgage clients in nearly 90

Ham, Philodendrons And:

You Can Win A Week's Trip To Bermuda For 2

If you've bought dozens of tickets to The Game and as yet remain luckless, the Granite Co-operative Bank can offer consolation while you wait for fortune to change.

To celebrate the June 10 opening of the new headquarters of the Granite Co-operative Bank at 440 Hancock St., North Quincy, literally tons of ham will deck the kitchen and dining room tables of Quincy area residents. A deposit of $250 or more on a new or existing account earns, as a gift from the bank, an eight-pound can of Premium ham.

If you are still unconsoled, there's more.

Any adult visiting the bank during the grand opening, can carry home a philodendron. There's only one catch: you must rank among the first 3,000 people walking through the bank's doors.

And to top off the celebration there is a one-week expense paid trip for two - including fare and accommodations - to Bermuda.

You need not deposit money, merely an entry blank at the Granite Co-operative Bank or at the following members of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association participating in the bank's opening-day festivities:

Mister Sub, 64 Billings Rd; Hancock Bank, 415 Hancock St.; Curtis Compact Food Stores, 48 Billings Rd; Cammy's Delicatessen, 53 Billings Rd; Quincy Savings Bank, 371 Hancock St.; Nesco TV, 423 Hancock St.; Stan's Card and Gift Shop, 41 Billings Rd; Doran and Horrigan, 19 Billings Rd; President Real Estate, 44 Billings Rd.

communities in the surrounding area.

The new red-brick office, surrounded by a landscape of shrubbery and greenery, bears the title of headquarters for the Granite Co-operative Bank. Mrs. Holmes regards the bank "as competitive as any other in the industry."

"I foresee new services and innovations within the very near future," She prophesied, too, a someday "checkless society" - a society where money will flow directly from a company, corporation or business into the bank of the depositor's choice.

Mrs. Holmes has held the twin-title of treasurer and chief executive officer since the bank's birth in 1953. Reflecting on her long experience in the field of banking, Mrs. Holmes said, "I have better insight into people's problems. When a man and woman sit down in front of me, I know what they can afford."

She remarked, too, that in her experience, it is the woman "who has the dollar in her hand," it is the woman who grapples with the finances of the home.

Mrs. Holmes noted that banking hours at the main office run from 9-3 o'clock Monday through Thursday and from 9-5:30 Friday. The bank's downtown branch at 100 Granite St., Quincy, boasts Saturday service hours.

Although Mrs. Holmes admits that the trailer headquarters was confining and cramped, she emphasized that the atmosphere was always friendly.

"We're on a first-name basis with most of our customers," said Mrs. Holmes. "We have good rapport with them."

And there is no reason why that rapport should not accompany the switch from that white trailer trimmed with aqua to the new, red-brick home of the Granite Co-operative Bank.

President's Message

'We Are Proud To Be Part Of The Community'

The following is a special message from Bernard C. Cohen, president of the Granite Co-Operative Bank on the occasion of the grand opening of the bank's new main office in North Quincy.

It is only fitting during the grand opening celebration of our new main office that I express my personal appreciation to the people who have made the growth of the Granite Co-Operative Bank possible.

Ours is a neighborhood bank; the only bank headquartered in North Quincy. We are proud to be part of the North Quincy community and to have been able to contribute to its growth.

But banks and communities can only grow with the help and support of the people who live in them. This is where the Granite Co-Operative Bank has been fortunate. We have made investments in North Quincy through mortgage loans and in return the people in the area have given us custody of their savings. This arrangement has led to prosperity and growth for all concerned.

In the future we look toward a greater alliance with our depositors, more investment on our part in the South Shore and progress in banking convenience. We continue to pay the highest interest allowed in the state. This has been, and will be, the policy of the Granite Co-Operative Bank.

The bank staff and I hope that we may all join in continued success in the years to come. We hope that you will allow us to be your regular depository for savings and that you will consult us when you require a loan.

Visit our new office. We are happy to present you with a gift as a token of our appreciation.

Student Speakers Express Concern For America's Future

Concern for old and new friends, for the present day, and for the future of America were expressed in the commencement day addresses by students from the three Quincy high schools.

The talks were delivered by Stephen Lawlor of Quincy Vocational Technical School, Kathleen Sheehan of North Quincy High School, and Helen Johnson of Quincy High School at graduation exercises Wednesday.

Here are excerpts from their addresses:

STEPHEN LAWLOR

"I've been just three years in high school, each year a new group of people to get to know. After leaving high school, we can look forward to the old cliché of climbing to new horizons. It seems as if our lives are just starting.

"Friends that we've known for a great deal of time become synonymous with our education. All the knowledge we apply to our everyday happenings can be seen in our everyday friends.

We've learned much from the people we grew up with.

"To many of us this is an extremely sad time, since many of the smiling faces we've looked forward to seeing won't be there anymore.

"Next year we'll have to start from scratch learning how to make friends again. Many teachers and students will be sorely missed when September rolls around. We won't realize what many of the people have meant to us until they are only a vision of the past."

KATHLEEN SHEEHAN

"The dramatist, William Saroyan, once said: 'Most people spend their lives waiting for something, but they never know what that something is! We must put the dreams we have into action.

"Some people let optimism control their lives and find themselves in a world of fantasy. It is commendable to hope and look for a better world, a better life, but it is evident that life demands a realistic outlook in order to cope with existence.

"To sit back and wait for life to perfect itself would truly be a waste of time. We must live each day doing as much as we can to make it complete. We must now wait for tomorrow, for there may never be a tomorrow."

HELEN JOHNSON

"Americans believe a mass of contradictory statements, half of which cancel the other half and all of which add up to the most confused set of ideals that any nation has fallen heir to in the history of the world.

"Americans are unsure of what they are aiming for. Imagine that you are on an archery range. Tell me, what would you aim at - the center of the target or the outside of the circle? Obviously, everybody aims at the center.

"Americans have been guilty for too long of aiming at the outside circle. It is time to set our sights on one target and move ahead in a unified and positive fashion. We must eliminate the inconsistencies and doubts of the past."

'Young Person With Desire Can Achieve Wonders,' Says Reardon

George D. Reardon, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, says that about 45 per cent of the area's unemployed "realistically would not take a job if offered one."

Reardon was the keynote speaker May 29 at ceremonies awarding diplomas to 62 post secondary students of Quincy Vocational Technical School at Broad Meadows.

"Today, generally, the desire to accomplish a task to the best of one's ability is sadly lacking," he said.

"A young person today with a genuine desire to work can achieve wonders for there are literally hordes that don't have the desire to work or take responsibility.

"A local self-made successful manufacturer told me just recently about a young man who applied at his plant for a job. The applicant's first question was: 'What are the fringes?'"

"The exasperated manufacturer, as he closed the door of his office on the young man, said: 'If the fringes are more important than the job, you don't want to work here.

"We say America is so preoccupied with leisure time and so-called good things in life [real Gusto, etc.] as displayed every minute of the day on TV and in the Press that we have forgotten that work was the ingredient that made it all possible.

"Work has become a necessary evil, not a service of pride. Work is something you do little of, for the most possible money."

Beaton's Dream Wins Squantum Race

By JAMES COLLINS

Traditional New England spring weather conditions left most of the yachts in Quincy Bay stranded in smooth waters Saturday and Sunday.

In the only race Saturday Jim Beaton's Dream Awhile of the Flying Scot Class at the Squantum Yacht Club led the fleet of seven boats to the finish line.

The lead boat finished the five-mile windward and leeward course in 1 hour, 46 minutes nosing out Norb Kulga's Betty Ann. Brandy skipped by Gabe Perez finished third 29 seconds later.

Light air stranded the Mass. Bay Interclub Race at the Cottage Park Yacht Club off the Winthrop shoreline on a glassy smooth sea often shrouded in fog. None of the boats were able to cross the finish line within the three hour time limit.

The summary:

1 - Dream Awhile, Jim Beaton, 1-46-00.

2 - Betty Ann, Norb Kluga, 1-46-01.

3 - Brandy, Gabe Perez, 1-46-30.

4 - No. 1611, John Brown, 1-48-30.

5 - No. 414, David Glynn, 1-50-30.

6 - No Nuffin', Art Sweeney, 1-51-00.

7 - No. 2422, Bob Montgomery, 1-52-00.

Bay State Hockey Camp At Quincy Arena In August

The Quincy Youth Arena will be the scene of the Bay State Hockey Camp to be conducted in two two-week sessions, the first the weeks of Aug. 5 and 12 and the second the weeks of Aug. 19 and 26.

The camp administrators will be Dave Morse, former Hingham High and Harvard All-Ivy League hockey and baseball player, and Bill LaMarche, former Harvard All-East and All-Ivy League hockey player.

Morse, also co-founder of several other successful hockey camps, is currently deputy director of the Boston Youth Activities Commission, where he founded the Boston Neighborhood Hockey League. LaMarche plays for the Framingham Pics and has had much experience in youth hockey programs in the Boston Area.

An outstanding staff will instruct the boys, including Ed Connors, former highly successful Hingham High coach and now coach at Bridgewater State College; Don [Toot] Cahoon, star forward on Boston University's Eastern and National championship teams of 1971 and '72 and now coach at Lehigh University; and Frank Quinn, coach at Abp. Williams High who has wide experience with youth hockey programs.

Also, Tom Aprile, former Arlington High all-star goalie and Boston College standout and coach for the past eight years at South Boston High; Kevin Hampe, former Dedham High all-star who excelled at Harvard and made the ECAC all-star team and received Harvard's top athletic honor, the William J. Bingham award, and Bob Reardon, former Charlestown and Malden Catholic all-scholastic who later captained Boston College.

"We want to stay away from the pro players and select who we think are the outstanding teachers for youth groups," Morse said. "I feel we have one of the finest groups of instructors of any hockey camp."

The camp's objectives are to provide the boys with individual and specialized instruction in power skating, shooting, passing, positional play, team play, competitive sportsmanship, physical conditioning and the rules of the game.

A feature will be a six-man soccer program similar to that of the Russian and European hockey programs. It is keyed to developing footwork and team play and also provides a beneficial diversion from the on-ice training schedule.

Specialized attention will be given to all goalies through unique drills, films, lectures and a special goal tending instructor.

A new innovation will be the institution of instant replay equipment which will enable the coaches to tape drills and scrimmages and replay them to the boys instantly, providing on-the-spot instruction.

Morrisette, Quincy, Wollaston Open Legion Season

By TOM SULLIVAN

The American Legion baseball season gets underway Monday and Zone 6 will have three Quincy teams for the first time in more than 15 years.

Wollaston Post has returned to the baseball wars for the first time since the late 1950's to join Morrisette Post and Quincy Post.

Morrisette, a perennial Zone 6 champion who barely missed its 19th championship a year ago, opens Monday with a 6 p.m. game at Hingham and Quincy hosts Weymouth in an 8 p.m. arclight game at Adams Field. Wollaston, originally scheduled to open Sunday, will get underway Tuesday against Morrisette in another 8 o'clock game at Adams. The scheduled opener with Canton at Adams will be played Saturday, June 15, at 8.

Wednesday it will be Baintree at Morrisette, 8 p.m., at Adams, Quincy at Hingham and Wollaston at Milton at 6.

Ray Cattaneo is back as Morrisette coach and appears to have the "cream of the crop" among Quincy and North Quincy High players.

Morrisette appears to be especially strong in pitching with seven boys who should keep the team up with the leaders.

They include the two top North Quincy High pitchers, Tim Clifford and John Lawlor; Quincy's ace, Mark Dwyer; Mike McBride of Abp. Williams, Dennis McGuire of North Quincy, Steve Infacelli and Paul Vespaziani of Quincy.

Steve McKinnon of North is one of the outstanding schoolboy catchers and Mike MacKenzie is another fine receiver who also plays outfield.

Morrisette has some outstanding infielders in Bob Benna, Dwyer, and Vespaziani of Quincy, Jack Rabel, Lawlor and Jim McCabe of North, Jim Roberts and Dave Perdios of Abp. Williams.

In the outfield Cattaneo has Mike DePaolo, Infacelli and MacKenzie of Quincy, McGuire, Frank Miceli and Lee Watkins of North.

"I think we have a good representative team and I am especially pleased with the pitching," Cattaneo said. "If games begin to pile up later in the season due to rainouts, we should be all right."

Bill Corcoran, like Cattaneo a former Morrisette star himself, is back as pitching coach and the veteran Connie Carozzi, former Morrisette, Quincy and Abington Legion coach and current Abp. Williams skipper, has returned to the scene as another Morrisette aide. Tom Malvesti is manager, Gus Russo athletic officer, Dan DiFederico trainer and Frank Osborne scorer.

Wollaston, coached by Dave MacIntosh, who has had a wealth of experience in Junior and Babe Ruth League ball, has a young squad with only one boy not returning next year. Several of the players are high school junior varsity players and MacIntosh admits, "We have a tough road ahead with Morrisette and other teams having much more experience. But, I can promise a hustling team and I think we will pull a few surprises."

Bob Jordan is Wollaston's manager and Bill Roberts business manager. Jordan had high praise for MacIntosh and Roberts, saying, "Bill Roberts is one of the hardest workers I have seen and is very important to us. Dave is an ideal handler of boys."

Like Morrisette, many of the players will play at different positions.

For pitchers Wollaston has Pete Fallon of North Quincy, Jim Ferris from Sacred Heart of Weymouth, Mike Holleran, Warren Jordan, Mike Kelly, Rich Marino, Rich Magnarelli, Steve Marinelli and John McKinnon, all of North Quincy, and Chuck McLean of Abp. Williams.

Ken O'Sullivan of North, Paul Ferris of Quincy and Martinelli are all capable catchers.

In the infield will be Bill Driscoll of North, Fallon, Jordan, Jack Hatfield and Roy Widman of North, Bob MacIntosh of Quincy, Martinelli, Tom McBride of Abp. Williams and McKinnon.

Playing the outfield will be Driscoll, Ferris, Hatfield, Holleran, Kelly, Magnarelli, Paul Stack of North and Widman.

"Right now I feel Ferris, Jordan, Fallon and Magnarelli are our top pitching hopes," MacIntosh said.

Quincy this year is coached by Jerry O'Leary and George French is again manager.

Over 300 Entries

AAU Senior Track Championships Here Sunday

The 85th annual New England AAU senior track and field championships will be held Sunday at Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium beginning at noon.

Ralph Colson, NEAAU chairman, expects a number of records to be broken in Quincy's biggest sports event in some time.

"We have a wonderful list of entries with the top track and field competitors in New England and I honestly feel several records will be broken," Colson said.

"The entrants will be trying to qualify for the national championships and an up-coming dual meet with Russia and I will take some tremendous performances to qualify. Knowing the high standards for the nationals, they will have to turn in some record-breaking performances so it looks like a great meet."

Carl Leone, athletic coordinator for the Quincy Schools, is the meet director, and he expects a banner crowd.

The mile run is named after the late Munroe MacLean, long-time Quincy coach and athletic director, and Mrs. MacLean will be the starter for this event, Colson announced.

The meet gets underway at noon with the 16-pound hammer throw, followed by the discus, shotput and other field events.

The six-mile run will start at 1 o'clock, followed by the 120-yard high hurdles.

Colson has received more than 300 entries, a new record, with 25 high schools and 17 colleges represented. Among those entered are the first two members of the new Quincy Track Club, John MacFarlane of Quincy High in the triple jump and Geoff Hennessey of North Quincy High in the hurdles and mile walk. The new club is also expected to have a relay team entered.

Tim Walker, 16-year old schoolboy from Rogers High in Newport, R.I., who has done seven feet, is a good bet to break the high jump record and the 100-yard dash and hammer records are in jeopardy.

Mike Kee of Rindge Tech High, who has done 9.4 seconds, and Bob Hazard of E. Providence, are expected to break the 100-yard mark of 9.6 and Jack McDonald of B.C. and Hal Stelzer of Scituate could break the longest standing record, the mile mark of 4:09, set by the fabulous Gil Dodds way back in 1947. The hammer throw record could also be broken by the current holder, Al Hall, and Boris Djerassi of Northeastern.

"One of the entries I'm looking forward to is that of Roger Oliver of North Scituate, R.I.," Colson said. "He wrote me to tell me he is 28 years old and never competed in a track and field meet but feels he can do around nine seconds in the 100. He asked if he could compete and I sent him an entry and he will be in the meet Sunday."

Colson will present a trophy to the college, school or club scoring the most points, five for first place, three for second, two for third and one for fourth in all events.

"This is an ideal setting for our meet with Quincy having one of the finest all-weather tracks in Greater Boston," Colson pointed out. "With good weather we should have a big crowd and it looks like one of our better meets."

Senior Babe Ruth

Quincy Faces Hanover

Quincy's entry in the South Shore 16-18 Babe Ruth League, Data Services, will face Hanover tonight (Thursday) at 8:15 at Adams Field. Quincy opened its season Tuesday against Randolph.

Data Services is managed by Mike O'Connor, a former Triple A pro player from California. John McDonnell is assistant manager.

The Quincy roster includes Fran Schular, Gerry Bugden, Dave Power, Tom Cooney, Gerry Gavin, Mark Jaehnig, Paul Coner, Joe Kinnally, Bill Pitts, Paul Cattaneo, Nick Anastas, Steve Sylva, Joe McConville, Michael DiMino, Paul Messina, Paul McGulgan, John Papile and Eric Carrera.

Weymouth and South Boston have three teams each in the league, with Quincy, Milton, Hingham, Avon, Randolph and Hanover having one.

The 16-18 program has expanded so rapidly that this year there are three 12-team leagues in the South Shore division. There are also Central and West Leagues.

Need For Moral Integrity Urgent, Says Dewitt John

Today's need for moral integrity is "one of the most obvious urgencies in our society," Christian Scientists from many countries were told at the denomination's Annual Meeting in Boston Monday.

"No nation could long prosper while drifting into a miasma of moral blindness, public and private," DeWitt John, the new Chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors, declared.

John, a Christian Science teacher from Lincoln, said, "Human thought today is widely afflicted with a deadening of conscience. Yet it's natural for the Christian Scientist to listen to the voice of conscience.

"Nothing can silence this voice. May we cultivate the spiritual sense which will enable us to hear and follow this silent inner voice, the guiding voice of the redeeming Christ."

More than 6,500 members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, were on hand, according to Mrs. Irene M. Larrington, the Assistant Committee on Publication for Quincy. A large number of local Christian Scientist attended the meeting, she said.

Native Spring Salad Lettuce Debuts

The price of iceberg lettuce, stable for some weeks, is rising now as the California crop dwindles.

At the same time, our own spring salad lettuces arrive in the market in good quantity, and prices for the local product are down, the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA] reports this week.

Boston, Romaine, Salad Bowl and Bibb lettuce are being harvested daily here, and are definitely the better buys. Lettuce is a cool-weather crop, starting from seed in very early spring, and maturing in about six weeks.

If you like hearts of lettuce salad, Boston is the choice, Romaine with its mild, sweet flavor and coarse, crisp leaves, makes good tossed salads. Salad Bowl lettuce is also used for tossed salads, while Bibb, with a broader leaf than the others, is an excellent sandwich garnish.

Boston has a round, tightly-folded head of smooth, tender leaves, with a rich, dark green color. Romaine is an upright plant, about 10 inches high, with a firm, conical head. Salad Bowl is a loose leaf type, each plant a decorative rosette of wavy, notched, dark green leaves, with thick, succulent mid-ribs, with the heart of loosely folded leaves, thick, crisp, sweet and crunchy.

This may be, of course, more than you care to know about the different varieties of native lettuce. One can always read the labels, or ask the clerk.

The long period of cool, rainy weather has slowed some planting in Massachusetts, says the MDA, but there have been enough dry periods to prevent the seeds already in the ground from rotting — always a danger in our prolonged, merky, wet non-springs. A couple of good, warm days should bang the new shoots right out of the ground.

The home gardener, on the other hand, is in good shape to start his vegetable planting right now. With all danger of frost gone, tender plants such as tomatoes, peppers, squashes and cucumbers can be put out. Nearby roadside farm stands are well stocked with all varieties of bedding plants, as well as good advice on how to plant and tend them.

Kids Will Love This Recipe For Making Pretzels

If the weatherman is predicting rain for the weekend, why not occupy your youngsters indoors with a project that'll be fun for you and them, good to eat when you're finished, and even educational? Spend an afternoon in the kitchen with them making bread pretzels.

There's no need to make hard work of it. Use frozen bake-and-serve white bread dough so that you won't have to mix or knead it. Rhodes frozen bread dough, for example, is available in a 2-loaf and an economy 5-loaf package. It's already mixed and kneaded, and made from unbleached flour with no preservatives.

To make pretzels, start the night before by putting the frozen dough, still in its original wrapper, in the refrigerator. When you're ready to start, the dough will be thawed but not yet risen. Cut open the wrapper and peel it off. Allow dough to warm to room temperature for easier handling.

Show the kids how to break off lumps of dough and roll them into pencil-thin strips 18 to 20 inches long. On a lightly greased cookie sheet, bend the strips into pretzel shapes.

Mix an egg yolk with four tablespoons of water. Brush the egg mixture onto the pretzels with a soft pastry brush. Sprinkle coarse salt on top of the pretzels. Bake them at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until they are golden brown. Cool them on wire racks — and then bring out a pitcher of their favorite beverage and let the kids enjoy their homemade pretzels.

Quincy Artists In Boston Common Exhibit of 120 Lenox St., and Elaine S. Spector of 953 Furnace Brook Parkway.

More than 2,000 feet of oils, watercolors, photography and charcoals, as well as sculpture and crafts of all kinds — many for sale — will be displayed along the paths of the Boston Common near Beacon, Tremont and Park Streets.

New Ways To Aid Home Buyer

By JAMES M. WOODARD

The rapidly increasing cost of homes coupled with sky-high costs of financing the purchase of a home is pushing the cherished goal of home ownership out of the reach of many families.

The rising cost of homes shows no signs of slackening off. Our inflationary market and shortage of some basic building materials are pulling prices up at a rate of nearly 10 per cent per year in most areas. Not much can be done about this until the string to our country's inflation kite can be pulled in. But help is on its way in the field of home financing.

Several new financing concepts are now being offered or proposed. They have been designed to make it possible for more families to qualify for home financing funds and still provide security and a reasonable yield for the lender.

Currently, home loan interest rates are bubbling along at record highs. This means record high monthly payments, which many families cannot afford after paying record high grocery bills and record high everything else. One proposal to reduce required monthly payments is to extend the term of the mortgage note.

In other words, instead of the usual 25- or 30-year mortgage, the loan may be amortized over a 40- or 50-year term. And, since the average family holds a home mortgage loan for about 12 years, the mortgage note could require a lump sum payoff (balloon payment) after 12 or 15 years. At the time of payoff, if the borrower still resided in the home, the loan could be reinstated or the home refinanced.

Another proposed plan, designed to keep monthly payments down to a liveable level, is the accelerating payment plan. This is particularly appealing to young families with a modest but growing income. The concept calls for interest-only payments during the first few years. Then the monthly payments will graduate up and will include increasing chunks of the loan's outstanding balance. This type of loan is already being offered, quite successfully, by a few lenders. More will soon follow suit.

Still another form of home loan that is bound to emerge soon is the "variable rate mortgage." This plan would make the loan's interest rate flexible, bending up or down with current market conditions. It is particularly attractive to borrowers in a market such as we are now experiencing, as they could expect their home loan interest rates to be reduced in the future when the prevailing rate settles down to a more liveable level. The plan has been seriously considered for several years, but never before has there been so much pressure for its implementation.

Noninstitutional home financing is also bound to pick up in today's market. Sellers will be carrying back financing (with purchase-money notes) in their own home sale transactions. The market will also stimulate trades and exchanges.

Q. What is meant by the term "sun rights" in real estate planning?

A. "Sun rights" is the assured right to availability of sunlight to a particular building or development. Several major new developments are planning to capture and utilize sunlight to produce solar energy. Their sunlight-collecting equipment would be of little use if another large building were constructed on an adjacent site, eclipsing the sun. Therefore, legally granted sun rights or a "solar easement" is a necessity.

Q. Is it legal for a local government to restrict land use to single family homes only?

A. Yes. In a recent test case, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a local zoning ordinance could restrict land use to single family homes.

Q. Is it wise to remodel rather than buy a new home if a family really can't afford a new property?

A. Remodeling can be a good solution to a housing problem, if the home lends itself to the project you have in mind, and if that project will make your home more appealing to a wide range of prospective buyers.

The home remodeling field is booming. About $19.3 billion was spent on such projects in 1973 — an alltime high. Quite a jump from the $12.2 billion total of just five years ago. The record is expected to be topped again in 1974.

Graduates Reject Militancy, Violence Says Creedon

"The actions of today's graduates seem to suggest that if they are to build meaningful lives for themselves they cannot fall prey to the vast array of conflicting values that they have witnessed swirling about them."

The graduates of whom Dr. Creedon spoke numbered 1,146 - 502 from North Quincy High School, 452 from Quincy High School and 192 from Quincy Vocational Technical School.

One out of three of them [461] won some sort of scholarship or academic award and about 65 per cent of them have indicated that they will go on to further schooling, ranging from apprentice course to four-year colleges.

North Quincy was the host school at the 6 p.m. ceremonies at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The welcome was extended by Brian Flaherty, president of the graduating class at North Quincy, and Carl Awed, president of the Class of 1974 at Quincy High, introduced Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who presented greetings from the city.

Student speakers were Stephen Lawlor of Quincy Voc-Tech, "Friendship or Farewell", Helen A. Johnson of Quincy High, "Our Challenge in a Changing America", and Kathleen Sheehan of North Quincy, "Today, Tomorrow: A Challenge."

The combined bands played the Processional, the National Anthem and a band selection under the direction of David Watson of North Quincy, Michael J. Cahill of Quincy High and Anthony C. Ferrante, coordinator of music education.

The combined choirs were directed in Brahms' "O God, Thou Faithful God" by Maurice Carboneau of North Quincy.

Lloyd M. Creighton, principal of Quincy High, read a letter from the White House.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. John J. Tierney, the prayer by Rabbi David Jacobs, and the benediction by Rev. Robert Helfrich.

The complete text of Dr. Creedon's remarks follow:

"A central theme of commencement addresses this graduation has been that there are unmistakable signs that the unrest, militancy and violence that had come to be associated with youthful behavior over the past several years has passed and that we are on the threshold of a new, more constructive renaissance.

"I concur and suggest to each of you here this evening that the class of 1974 abounds in its testimony to that new dawn. Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical School captured this spirit in the theme of their senior prom: Color My World With Hope.

"However, make no mistake about it. Today's young people, in turning away from the radicalism of the recent past, are not seeking to reconstruct the world as it was when the parents among us here this evening were young.

"From among those characteristics which distinguish the young people of today from those of other years and times in their realization that their actions can no longer be justified by a "Do Your Own Thing" code of conduct, than by a blind adherence to values passed on to them from a still earlier period.

"What is emerging, and I welcome it, is a rebirth of the Rousseauian notion of personal development from within. It is an emerging realization that in our technologically based open society each person must individually structure a conceptual framework upon which a code of conduct and thus life style can be built and lived.

"The actions of today's graduates seem to suggest that if they are to build meaningful lives for themselves they cannot fall prey to the vast array of conflicting values that they have witnessed swirling about them.

"In short they are a more introspective and reflective generation and thus are more at peace with themselves, their peers, their parents and those in positions of authority.

"Introspection and reflection are of little lasting value unless such mental exercises ultimately emerge in action, and please be assured that the members of the class of 1974 have acted in ways that regardless of what the future holds for them they will be able to nobly and nostalgically recall in the words of the theme of the North Quincy High School prom "The Way We Were."

"The way they have been as students in the Quincy Public Schools and now graduating full of hope has resulted in one out of three of them receiving a scholarship or an award - a total of 461 scholarships and awards.

"Approximately 65% of them will go on to further schooling, ranging from short apprentice or vocational courses to four-year baccalaureate programs.

"During this past year our graduating musicians performed in over 125 music programs ranging from football games and parades to exchange concerts and band competitions. In the process our North Quincy High School band took first place in the Mattapan Day Scholarship Parade while the Marching Presidents took 2nd place in the state-wide Band of the Year competition.

"In the theater arts our young dramatists at Quincy High School produced an exciting and memorable version of "Mame" while North Quincy High School just completed an excellent rendition of "Fiddler on the Roof".

"At Quincy Vocational Technical School the students in Metals and Machines served as apprentices to the school system's sculptor-in-residence, while those in Commercial Art produced much of the art work that will be used in Quincy's forthcoming 350th and Bicentennial celebrations and the Culinary Arts Division took a first prize in the annual New England Restaurant Show.

"At North Quincy High School 16 students distinguished themselves in regional and state-wide science fairs, while a member of the Quincy High School class won a coveted National Merit Scholarship.

"On the athletic field our young graduates distinguished themselves with Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School producing hockey and tennis teams that participated in state-wide tournaments along with a championship soccer team.

"At North Quincy High School the tennis and basketball teams entered tournament play with the basketball team finishing as co-champs in the Greater Boston League.

"This briefly indicates the way these graduating seniors were this past year and it is clear that they have been coloring their world with hope."

Ignores Council Resolution

Hannon Orders Combined Trash-Garbage Collection

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Walter J. Hannon ignored a City Council resolution Tuesday and ordered the combined collection of trash and garbage in Quincy, starting July 1.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, a leader of the opposition, retained counsel "to give legal advice and direction to the people" in his fight against the plan.

Sheets recommended that the City Council itself stay out of any legal confrontation with the Mayor at this time to avoid "destroying the cooperation necessary to give leadership to our city over the next year and a half."

The Council resolved in opposition to the mixed collection June 3 on grounds that dumping garbage at the disposal area in West Quincy would be a health nuisance or hazard to nearby residents in Ward 4.

In announcing the combined collections, Mayor Hannon said that the "separate garbage pickup is costing on the order of $280,000 per year. By combining garbage with the rubbish, essentially all of this amount can be saved.

"With the rapidly escalating cost of government and the ever-increasing tax burden, I cannot, in good conscience, allow this savings to be ignored.

"The separation of garbage from rubbish has been, until recently, a very sensible and desirable policy from both the public health and the resource recovery viewpoints.

"However, with the diminishing use of garbage by piggeries and the elimination of open dumping, this policy is no longer justified."

REV. JOHN R. GRAHAM

'I Want To Make Community Service Exciting'

Why Rev. Graham Is Leaving First Parish Church

"When you've spent all your life in buildings built last year and then come to a place which has endured the tests of time, it provides an unusual sense of serenity.

"To stand in a pulpit occupied by 19 previous ministers, to handle ancient communion silver - somehow the world's problems don't seem quite so great."

The words are those of Rev. John Rushton Graham, who resigned as minister of historic United First Parish Church. Why, then, would a man so deeply moved and awed by the heritage and history of this church, one of the most famous in the nation so suddenly resign to accept the directorship of Quincy Heritage?

With legs outstretched and propped on the edge of his office desk, Rev. Graham stared pensively through the open window overlooking Quincy Sq. Quietly he explained:

"To make that kind of a change took a lot of thought. Change is painful. There is even a parallel with death - a sense of loss of the familiar, of the predictability of things. It's scary, of course."

Yet Reverend Graham welcomes the challenge of his position as the director of Quincy Heritage, the committee coordinating both the bicentennial and the 350th birthday celebrations in Quincy. Reverend Graham sees himself as "oriented towards community life," and he views public service as "the highest calling." He said he decided to step down as minister of the First Parish Church after much thought and introspection. The Reverend explained, "Quincy deserves someone to do the job fulltime. I want to make exciting the idea of community service."

Reverend Graham does not merely advocate community service; he lives it as the following abbreviated list of offices held by him would indicate. He is president of the Board of Survival, Inc., president of the Board of Supervisors of Woodward School for Girls, vice-president of the Board of Directors of South Shore Council on Alcoholism, a member of the Board of Directors of South Shore Mental Health Association, a member of the Board of Children's Protection Services, and a member of the Advisory Committees of both RSVP [Retired Senior Volunteer Program] and Quincy School of Nursing.

Reverend Graham was appointed to his new position - $18,000 per year - by Mayor Walter Hannon. His

Hospital Controversy

'Politics' Raised In Councillor's Son Appointment

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

A union grievance has been filed over the selection of the son of a city councillor to fill a vacancy in the Quincy City Hospital admitting office.

Charges of "playing politics" were levelled and denied.

John J. Quinn Jr., 23-year-old son of John J. Quinn Sr., "Dean" of the City Council, is now "understudying" for the position according to Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine, Jr.

Mrs. Jean Leslie, chairman of the Bargaining Unit of the RN's Union at the hospital said, however, she has filed the grievance because "the position was filled inappropriately."

The vacancy in dispute is one created by the retirement effective June 1 of Mrs. Catherine Higgins, RN.

Although Paine said that young Quinn is "not officially appointed", he is working in the admitting office. The job is being referred to as both "admitting administrator" and "admitting officer".

The title held by Mrs. Higgins was "admitting officer". Under that title, the job starts with a salary of $10,200 and goes to approximately $12,000;

Young Quinn reportedly was to start at the same figure but his salary now is reported in abeyance.

Mrs. Ruth Paven, Quincy's representative in the Massachusetts Nurses Association, Boston, said: "The NA is grieving the city's failure to properly post and fill what we think is an RN vacancy."

Miss Dorothy Kelley of 151 Sea St., Merrymount, a 32-year employee at the hospital who seeks the job charges she has been told that it was "a political appointment".

She said the opening was not properly posted and that the job description is being changed to "tailor fit" Quinn.

Quincy Bill Would Exempt Seniors From Beano Laws

The Quincy State House delegation has sponsored legislation which would exempt from the lottery laws game of beano conducted solely by tenants of senior citizens housing projects for their own benefit and amusement.

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] said State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane and Charles Hamilton, assistant director of the State Lottery, have assured him that they will support the legislation.

Sponsors of the bill in addition to Tobin are Reps. Clifford H. Marshall Jr., Thomas F. Brownell, William D. Delahunt and Joseph E. Brett [all D-Quincy].

The legislation will affect beano games at Oceanview, Pagnano Towers, Martensen St., Fenno House, Clay St. and 1000 Southern Artery, the major housing projects for senior citizens in Quincy.

Burke Supports Flood Funding

Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) has expressed strong support on the floor of the House for full federal funding of the Quincy Coastal Streams Flood Control Study and the Weymouth-Fore and Town Rivers Flood Control Project.

Burke spoke during House debate of the Public Works Appropriations Bill for fiscal 1975.

Completion of the Quincy Coastal Streams Study, he told his colleagues, and implementation of its recommendations will eliminate destruction caused to homes and businesses in the area from serious flooding.

And completion of the Weymouth-Fore and Town Rivers project, he said, will result in increased commerce and navigation on these rivers, thus improving the economic situation of the South Shore.

communities in Massachusetts, including Milton, Boston, Braintree and Weymouth "utilize the combined collection system which is applicable only to sanitary landfill or incinerator operations."

"The city of Quincy," he said, "was granted an assignment in 1971 to maintain a sanitary landfill operation at Pike's Peak [the dump area]."

"Under the State Public Health laws, this allows the city to mix garbage and rubbish provided it follows the rules set down by the state which requires continuous compacting of the garbage and refuse and at the end of the day a compacted six inch earth cover.

"This operation has been greatly improved and perfected to the point where it is now one of the best landfill operations in the Commonwealth.

"A properly maintained sanitary landfill operation will not jeopardize the health of the people of Quincy and will not breed rodents or vermin."

The Mayor said the City Health Department will maintain inspection of the operation and the Public Works Department will work closely with the rubbish contractor to iron out collection difficulties.

"I appeal to all residents to help make this policy work," the Mayor concluded.

Even before the Mayor's announcement, Councillor Sheets retained Attorney Kevin Keating of the Boston firm of Crane, Inker and Oteri to continue his fight, possibly into the courtroom.

He said he has had meetings with three groups of about 100 people "who are interested in moving against the plan." One of their moves, he said, will be to raise money to finance the fight.

In a letter to Council President Arthur H. Tobin, Sheets said "only legal action can bring redress on behalf of the people.

"However, it is not my intention at this time to ask the Council to commence legal action against the Mayor.

"If these two respected public policy-making bodies were to engage in court-room confrontation it could permanently damage their relationship, destroying the cooperation necessary to give leadership to our city over the next year and a half.

It is also my belief that the people themselves want to make our cause their cause.

"They fear any legal action taken by the Council would be interpreted by the Mayor as simply another political maneuver, and that under such circumstances the people's true need, will and genuine concern would be lost."

He promised to "keep you and the Council informed as we move forward step by step in our efforts to uphold the will of the people in the city of Quincy."

City's Firefighting Upgraded Insurance Reduction Seen For Commercial, Industrial Property

Quincy has been upgraded from Class 3 to Class 2 in its fire defenses which will mean a possible reduction of 8 to 14 per cent on property insurance rates - but on commercial and industrial properties only.

Insurance Services Office of New York, which surveyed the city's fire-fighting abilities last fall, said the difference between Class 2 and Class 3 defenses is not enough to affect insurance rates on homes and dwellings.

"I disagree strongly with that," said Fire Chief Edward F. Barry.

Nevertheless, Chief Barry was pleased with the advance in efficiency rating.

"It's a real step forward," he said. "I don't know of any city that is ahead of us in Class 1."

The cities are rated on a scale of 1 to 10 on the basis of department size, types of equipment, availability of water supplies, pipe sizes, etc.

Insurance Services Office made several recommendations for improvement in Quincy fire protection. They include:

- Inspection of hydrants twice a year, in the spring and fall.
- Installation of 8 to 12-inch mains in commercial districts; 6 to 8-inch mains in residential areas.
- Hydrants at every intersection and not more than 300 feet apart in commercial areas.
- Annual inspection of valves.
- Construction of complete training facilities, including a structure in which fire may be built.

• A full-time assistant training officer so that drills and schools can be held in fire stations.

• More frequent building inspections.

• Five members, including an officer, on duty at all times with each engine and ladder company.

• Annual testing of all hose to 250 pounds per square inch.

• Gradual replacement of 2½ inch hose over 10 years; 1½ inch hose over five years.

• Appointment of an additional mechanic.

• Upgrading of repair shop facilities.

• Continuation of the apparatus replacement program.

• Expansion of the preventive maintenance program.

• Establishment of an additional chief officer response district.

• Additional fire boxes so that one will be within 500 feet of every building in commercial districts.

• Testing of all boxes every 60 days.

• Improvement in the reliability of the fire service communications system.

• Rearrangement of existing box circuits so that none will serve an excessive area.

• Adoption and enforcement of a complete code for adequate control of hazardous materials and situations.

• Amendment to the building code to include structural features necessary to safety.

• Complete inspection of old wiring.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Charm revealed in perky 't'

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst

Dear Dorothy:

A manager of a small food store is to talk to the owner about me as an employee when they have an opening. Will the owner be interested in having me work for him? I am 22 years old.

H.C.

Dear H.C.:

If the owner is a graphoanalyst, you'll get the job. You could lend a touch to that little store that could make it hum. If given enough freedom, you could have it looking like a "picture-book" store in no time at all. Your unusual aptitudes belong in big business, if you only knew it.

Your deep feelings, seen in the heaviness of your writing, and your concern for others, seen in the word endings along the line, keep you aware of and alert to the needs of others. So, you would serve customers like they've never been served before.

While you take your work very seriously, those perky t crossings, slanted upward, give you an outward image of light-hearted charm. Your personality and ability could "inflate" that little store.

But what about you? Your personal price tag is defeating you, seen in the low t crossings. You are looking at yourself through tinted eyes and you're blinded to your capabilities. An overdose of modesty is stifling you.

Your talent resources are so heavy that you'll have to reach higher than a small food store if you're going to move them. Seek a goal where you can make good use of your agile and skillful hands in creative endeavors, seen in the flat top r's, combined with your rhythmical writing, and your very rounded m's.

Then, blend those large lower loops, not shown above, and you add the tingle of fresh new ideas which you can bring into being in unique ways.

Better you spend time raising the value of your talent potential than the food prices on the shelf. With proper motivation, surprising things can happen to you. So, don't sell yourself short.

D.J.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Father deserves more than 1-day celebration

By ANN RUDY

Father's Day always get me thinking, and that alone is cause for celebration. What, I wonder, could the kids and I possibly give their Dad that he would really like?

Should we go to the store and charge an expensive gift for him? Should we bring him breakfast in bed when we know he hates to eat in bed?

A walk through the stores shows retailers have anticipated the yearly dilemma. There are special displays of gifts for fathers which are supposed to let them know just how much their families care: Battery-operated mini-vacuums to suck the crumbs off dad's vest. A bar of soap on a rope to hang around his neck in case of showers. Worry beads to finger and, when all else fails, ties that blind.

This year, we will fall for a gimmick or two as always, but this year we want to give Dad something every real father should have: a second glance.

Who is he, anyway? Is he that helpless, befuddled guy in the comics whose wife has him doing dishes in a flowered apron? Is he the mythical dad who never speaks above a platitude on that oh-so-perfect TV family series? Is he the man in the headlines who does desperate things under desperate circumstances?

"... ties that blind"

None is he. He is uniquely himself. And he brings all the things that make him our one, original, father-of-the-family into play everyday in so many ways, that I wonder if we could ever really know what a wonderful job of loving he has done.

But if we give him a second glance, not just on Father's Day, but every day, then maybe we might begin to see.

He is only a part of a big group of real fathers — they all deserve more than a one-day celebration and a bar of soap.

Let tots enjoy giving

By RIV TOBIN

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I sent a gift to my mother from my husband and me. I also sent one from our daughter aged 6 and our son who is 10. My mother wrote individual thank-you notes to each of us. The children were surprised because they didn't know I'd sent gifts in their names. Did I goof or did grandma goof? — Liz V.

Dear Liz:

You goofed. By shopping, wrapping and mailing gifts to a loved one you denied your children one of the joys of giving. Even a 5-year-old should share in this experience. A 10-cent package of gum, chosen after thoughtful deliberation, wrapped by little fingers and bearing a card that says, "I love you, Granny," means more than a $100 cashmere shawl.

Togetherness not too good for twins

A research team from Birmingham University in England has come up with the theory that twins may learn less than other children because they spend too much time in each other's company.

After studying the records of 2,000 twins and 48,000 single children born in Birmingham during the 1950s, the team found that twins scored "appreciably higher" in verbal reasoning tests if brought up separately. — CNS

'Kissy' husband makes wife uncomfortable

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do about my "kissy" husband? We have been married 30 years and he is still at it. I really wouldn't mind if he would confine his kissing to our home, but he'll kiss me in public or in the home of our friends. I find this embarrassing.

I've told him how I feel and he said, "You're my wife and I see no reason not to kiss you when I please." These are not passionate embraces but I still feel uncomfortable. What should I do?

Married 30 Years

Dear Married:

You should be glad your husband is still at it! And with you, I'll bet there are plenty of women who would love to change places with you.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

How will I know real love when it comes along? I went with Ken for six months and would have sworn it was the real thing. We broke up and I started dating Mike. Now, I'm in love with him.

He's asked me to marry him but I'm afraid I might change my mind again. If I did it once, I could do it again. How do you know the real thing when it comes along?

Millie

Dear Millie:

When you don't have to write me and ask.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My husband was in the army and is now home, and nothing is right between us. It may be partly my fault because I know I'm a different person than when he left. I now have a job I like very much. I've had two advancements and am soon to have another. My husband doesn't know my friends and isn't interested in them. I am accustomed to my freedom and find that my job absorbs the major part of my interest and energy.

Last week seemed to bring the final blow. Ed was complaining about the amount of time I spent at the office. When I didn't respond as he felt I should, he said, "Well, European girls certainly treated me better." That was all I needed to hear. I feel our marriage is hanging by a thread and I'm not even sure I care. How can people grow so far apart?

Irene

Dear Irene:

There's a great deal of adjustment to be done when two people have been separated for a long time. However, the two of you had something or you wouldn't have gotten married. Why not give counseling a try before becoming a statistic?

UNEXPECTED DROWNING

No one "expects" to drown, yet, unbelievably, more than half of the 7,000 persons who lose their lives annually from drowning never intended to go into the water in the first place. Their boats sink or they slip or fall accidentally into the water. Fishing, for instance, looks safer than water skiing. However, fishing accounts for nearly 50 percent of all fatal boating accidents; water skiing less than 5 percent.

The Red Cross estimates that 40-50 percent of those engaged in boating cannot swim well enough to save themselves and would drown if they had to swim over 50 feet.

The moral of the story is always "be prepared for an accidental dunking. If you're a boater and cannot swim, take the time to learn — and always carry life preservers in your boat. Drowning, my friends, is never a scheduled event.

Good Nutrition Guidelines

Poor nutrition is a problem which can sneak up on us. It can detract from our good health and well-being silently. According to a 1968 U.S. Department of Agriculture report, approximately 50% of all Americans have diets providing less than recommended amounts of one or more of the essential nutrients. The trend has been toward poorer quality diets in every segment of the American Society.

Activities associated with modern life styles such as eating on the run at fast food restaurants, snacking on foods with little nutritional value, and skipping important meals such as breakfast, have altered good eating habits appreciably. Many now substitute a hasty snack for a nutritionally balanced meal. They tend to settle for convenience foods which are calorie-rich but nutritionally poor.

There are six general categories of nutrients: proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins, minerals and water. All are important to us, and most foods contain various amounts of these nutrients. Probably the best single rule to follow in providing good nutrition is to put plenty of variety into menu planning — without relying too much on nutritionally questionable snack foods. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, your diet should include selections from these four basic food groups: (1) meats,

(2) milk, (3) vegetables and fruits, and (4) breads and cereals.

In the meat group, which includes lean meats, fish, poultry, eggs and cheese, two servings daily are recommended to provide a good source of protein, fat and certain vitamins. From the milk group, children should consume a quart of milk a day — one pint/day for adults — or the equivalent in other substitute dairy products such as ice cream or cheese which are good sources of protein, fat, calcium, phosphorus, and certain vitamins.

Four servings a day from the vegetable-fruit group provide an excellent source of certain vitamins and, to a lesser extent, carbohydrates and minerals. At least one of the servings should include citrus fruit or juice, tomato juice, or some other source of vitamin C.

To get the most out of South Shore National's NOW account, don't use it.

South Shore National Bank is pleased, but with reservations, to introduce the NOW account.

No doubt you've heard of the NOW account from one or more of the savings banks, who have had this type of account for some time now. It's a savings account that offers you a check-writing privilege (usually at around 10¢ or 15¢ a privilege).

To our way of thinking, the trouble with the NOW account is that it sort of encourages people to spend their savings. Which is exactly what you don't want to do.

And that's why we've always believed in two separate types of accounts: one for savings, one for checking.

Yet, on the other hand, when you're in a bind, and your money is tied up in savings, it's good to be able to get at it fast. And that's when a NOW account is nice to have.

So now, in addition to Multistatement and our broad range of checking and savings accounts, South Shore National Bank offers you the NOW account.

Not a giant step forward, perhaps.

But we wouldn't want it said there was anything you could get at a savings bank that you couldn't get at South Shore National Bank.

South Shore National is beating the savings banks at their own game.

THE MULTISTATEMENT PACKAGE:

FREE CHECKING, 10¢ REFUND OF THE PAID FINANCE CHARGES ON ANY INSTANTANEOUS LOAN OF $1500 OR MORE WHICH IS PUT ON MULTISTATEMENT WITHIN 90 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THE LOAN. MAXIMUM INTEREST ALLOWABLE BY LAW ON ALL SAVINGS. REQUIREMENTS: (1) MULTISTATEMENT CUSTOMER MUST HAVE CHECKING ACCOUNT AND AT

Extra Police Patrol Set For Wollaston Beach Area

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, chairman of the House Urban Affairs Committee, announces there will be a stepped-up police patrol in the area of Wollaston Beach by MDC law enforcement officers this summer.

Following discussions with MDC Commissioner John W. Sears, Brett revealed Sears has agreed to the assignment of an extra cruiser to the beach area between the hours of 8 a.m. and midnight. The cruiser patrol may be extended to an even longer period if needed, Brett added.

Between the hours of 4 p.m. and midnight there will be an additional motorcycle officer assigned to the area, and, for pedestrian safety and traffic control, more foot patrolmen will be assigned on weekends.

Brett, who has been urging the construction of an MDC police sub-station in the beach area, has agreed to evaluate the stepped-up patrolling program before proceeding further in his construction efforts.

Brett said he is pleased with the cooperation received from Commissioner Sears in working on the Wollaston Beach problem.

Dear Mr. Buccheri:

May 9, 1974

I would like to thank you profoundly for providing a wonderful turkey dinner to almost 100 seriously handicapped cerebral palsied and their companions at your lovely restaurant on Sunday, May 5, 1974. I also attended this special event and was completely overwhelmed by the amount and quality of food that was served.

The seriously handicapped cerebral palsied have little opportunity to go to restaurants or other public places, except when they are invited to a special event such as the one you sponsored.

Sabina obtained a piano player and singer who entertained the group. All the cerebral palsied asked me to extend my deep appreciation to you and your staff for putting on such a wonderful meal and hope that this will become an annual affair.

I will recount the special event in my Newsletter which I hope will be published in the near future. We are currently concentrating on our Open House which is scheduled for May 19, 1974 and I hope that you will be with us on that date.

Please extend to all your staff the deep appreciation of our President, Board of Directors and all the victims of Cerebral Palsy we serve for your very generous act.

Sincerely,

Burke Elected Delegate

The 'Ins' Take Charge At Democratic Caucus

By PAUL HAROLD

In contrast to recent Democratic Party caucuses, the congressional district caucus held in Braintree recently although dragged out, was well run, orderly and both sides agreed it was run fairly.

Chaired by Congressman James Burke, the caucus was held to elect four delegates from the 11th Congressional District to attend the party's mid-term convention in Kansas City next December. As was predicted weeks before, the four delegates elected were, Dist. Atty. George Burke of Quincy, Senator Joseph Timilty of Mattapan, Senator Joseph Walsh of Dorchester and Senator Anna Buckley of Brockton.

But for a while, it almost looked like the election would not be as cut and dried as originally forecast. A number of persons decided to challenge the "official" slate and they came within seven and a half votes of throwing the number four delegate spot into a second ballot. A second ballot could have changed things, because a number of delegates had left after they voted.

Basically it was a contest between the "ins" and the "outs," and the "ins" won. At the same time, however, political observers commented that the election was a test of strength for three politicians who have let it be known that they are interested in succeeding Congressman Burke, some day; namely, Burke, Timilty and Buckley.

Burke was pleased that he was elected and pointed out that he's been a delegate to numerous state conventions and to the national convention in 1968.

"Having served in public office for the last 18 years," he said, "I'll take this background to Kansas City to help develop a real sound platform for the Democratic Party and one that will benefit the people of this country."

One of the challengers to the slate was Pat DiStefano of South Quincy. DiStefano said that he decided to run because he honestly felt the need to have at least one or two grassroots type persons at the convention. "A slate of elected officials is not truly representative," he said.

The caucus lasted about 4½ hours and appeared to be a cross between a business meeting and a convention. While rules were being discussed or speeches being made, buttons, campaign literature and nomination papers for state-wide candidates were circulated.

Peter MacDonald of Quincy, campaign manager for Attorney General Robert Quinn, who is expected to announce for Governor today [Thursday] introduced delegates to Kay Keating, Quinn's sister. Tom Buckley of Germantown, Quinn's South Shore co-ordinator distributed red and white buttons that were released for the first time Saturday morning.

Thomas Sullivan, candidate for Lieutenant Governor and Ted Harrington, candidate for Attorney General also dropped by. James Hunt, candidate for Governor's Council campaigned with his Quincy co-ordinator, Jerry Ryan of South Quincy.

The caucus was for the whole 11th district, but Quincy really ran the show. Rep. Thomas Brownell was chairman of credentials, James McIntyre was parliamentary, City Clerk John Gillis served as clerk for the voting and William Dwyer Jr. and Matthew McDonnell were sergeants-at-arms.

Joyce Loeb and Mae Cuniff, both of Merrymount were tally clerks.

"It's very exciting and interesting," commented Mrs. Cuniff. "I think I'll run for delegate next time," she said. Mrs. Loeb said she was pleased that women were better represented this year than in the past.

Other tally clerks included, Terry MacPherson, Betty Swanton, Mary Gregoire, Jane Wallace, Jean Bean and Shirley Tobin, all of Quincy.

Ron Iacobucci, one of the youngest delegates, said, "It's a good experience; and a way to learn about the practical side of politics."

Veteran Richard Koch of North Quincy said that it was very orderly as compared to past conventions and caucuses. His praise of Congressman Burke's excellent job in conducting the meeting was echoed by most people. Senator Tobin also congratulated Burke for his selection of McIntyre and Gillis as parliamentary and clerk.

John Gillis and Ward 1 Councilor Leo Kelly noted the Quincy delegation's excellent attendance, with only two delegates absent. Kelly said that this was evidence that the people's interest is returning to government.

Ward 5 Councilor Warren Powers saw the caucus as a good beginning for encouraging the participation of a greater number of people in the future in political and non-political areas.

Quincy's 47 delegates to Saturday's caucus were elected at ward caucuses May 4.

- We're Not So Bad - - Really
- Down! Down! Down!
- Third Party Looming

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — It is a painful time to be an American. Domestic scandal abounds. Yesterday's absurdities are today's realities. To the North, our Canadian friends complain they are being "Americanized." To the South, the Latins whimper that we never help them enough. Our European allies accuse us of trying to dictate policy for them.

Perhaps this is a good time to remind the world how magnanimous we really are. A State Department document reveals that since 1946 we have given or loaned nations of the world nearly $164 billion. This is a truly mind-boggling figure. Most of it — $126 billion — has been an outright gift. The remaining $38 billion has been loaned, but less than half — only $15 billion — has even been repaid.

Our Latin American friends have received $13 billion. They have borrowed $6 billion but repaid only a little over $1 billion.

How about the Arabs, who think we spend all our money on Israel? Egypt has received $867 million. The Iraqis, those bitter American-haters, have been given $93 million. Lebanon has received $146 million. Oil-rich Saudi Arabia has gotten $327 million and the Saudis still owe us $51 million in loans. Syria has received $61 million.

And Europe? The French, eternally looking down their noses at us, have been assisted with over $8 billion; they have, to their credit, repaid their loans, with interest. England has received nearly $9 billion and they still owe us $1.6 billion in loans.

Maybe we're not such bad guys after all.

Down, Down, Down: An embattled President Nixon has been promising an economic recovery. The sluggish economy will pick up this summer, he has said.

Economists eagerly awaited the April Economy Index for the first sign of recovery. This is the government's gauge of economic indicators. It was supposed to go up, as a signal that the economy was improving. Instead, it went down.

Many economists are now convinced that the nation is slipping into a serious recession. The purchasing power of the average worker has dropped an alarming seven percent in the past 20 months. His wages simply haven't kept up with prices. This means he can no longer purchase as much as he used to.

This bursting inflation worries economists the most.

Some fear it could erode the very foundations of our economic system.

President Nixon recently told the nation that he had inflation under control. But the next day, the respected Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns warned that the gravity of inflation could hardly be overestimated.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler was asked about this discrepancy. He retorted sharply: "The President is right and Burns is wrong."

Well, Burns is an economist and the President is a politician. Increasingly, the economists, not the politicians, fear hard times are ahead.

Third Party Looming: There are clear signs that President Nixon, as he sinks deeper into the impeachment morass, may bring the Republican Party down with him.

He has polarized the party. Many bitter Republicans believe his cry that he is being hounded out of office by his enemies. These partisans have been bombarding Congress with angry letters.

There aren't enough Nixon supporters to elect Republican candidates who defend Nixon. But there are enough to defeat Republican candidates who desert Nixon.

Thus, the average Republican candidate faces disaster no matter which side he takes in the Watergate controversy. This has been compounded by a growing disgust with all politicians.

Sensing this, a record 46 Senators and Representatives have simply dropped out of the 1974 race. The Republicans are having a terrible time finding good candidates to run. The best candidates simply don't want to risk it. They don't want to go down with the Watergate wreckage.

We've spoken to many worried Republican leaders who fear their party could be destroyed by Watergate. Some are talking seriously of forming a new party, with a fresh, clean image, which might be able to win the confidence of the voters.

Such political stalwarts are Oregon's Governor Tom McCall, Michigan's former Governor George Romney and Minnesota's former Senator Eugene McCarthy are interested in a third party.

By 1976, there could be a drastic political realignment.

Behind Closed Doors: The television networks have been waiting impatiently to switch on the klieg lights at the impeachment hearings. Already, the networks have invested tens of thousands of dollars to redesign the hearing room to accommodate their lights and cameras.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, however, has refused to open the door on evidentiary hearings. He wants the members to hear the evidence against the President without having to picture the whirling television cameras.

At the closed-door meetings, the members have the opportunity to study up on the Watergate scandals. Many had only a sketchy idea of the dimensions of official wrongdoing.

We have spoken to most of the members. Almost without exception, Democrats and Republicans alike have been shaken by the magnitude of the scandal. It has been the cumulative effect, rather than any sensational new charges, that has sobered the committee members.

Behind the secret sessions is Rodino's determination to present the most telling case against the President. Rodino believes that televised sessions will be useful after all the evidence is heard.

Then, he hopes, the committee members will be less divisive and more knowledgeable. The public, he feels, must have confidence in the committee. Therefore, he wants the members to be fully prepared before the klieg lights are switched on.

Atlas, Poor Spiro: The once proud Spiro Agnew today is a forlorn figure. Gone are the glory days when his rhetorical rantings made him a household hero. No one wears Spiro Agnew watches anymore.

He has been disbarred as a lawyer and can't seem to find a steady job. The Justice Department is considering a law suit to recover the bribe money allegedly paid to him while he was Vice President. Some Justice Department attorneys even want to sue to recover his vice presidential salary. The Internal Revenue Service is after back taxes and his unreported income.

Agnew turned to novel writing to make a living. But his debts are outpacing his literary earnings. In desperation, he began scratching around for business opportunities. He flew to the Middle East in search of business deals.

The contacts he had made as Vice President opened many doors for him. But in most places, he found he had lost his clout.

He asked for an audience, for example, with Jordan's King Hussein. But the King, it seems, didn't have time to see a disbarred lawyer from Baltimore.

Rift Between Hannon And City Council?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Insiders report a rift seems to be developing between Mayor Walter Hannon and several members of the City Council.

According to City Hall sources, the relationship between His Honor and some of the councilors—especially the freshmen—has become somewhat strained.

The way they tell it, Hannon is making no bones about the fact he wants it known to one and all that he—not the council nor anyone else—is running the city.

And, on occasions when some of the newer councilors have approached him in regard to certain projects or other matters they are interested in, he has brushed them aside with a flat: "No! I'm the Mayor. I'm running the city."

Hannon's political style has always been to shoot from the hip. That's being candid and to the point in his book.

It lets people know where he stands but it doesn't win any diplomacy or popularity prizes. And sometimes it triggers resentment.

The councilors feel they have a big role in the operation of the city, too. And apparently they don't like being brushed aside with a "No!"

One of the freshman councilors got into an argument with the Mayor just recently and told him in effect: "O.K., if that's the way it is, the next time you want something out there [in the council chamber] I'll put six votes together to kill it." [Only his words were much stronger].

The trouble seemed to start, according to the sources, when the councilors took a meat cleaver to the proposed municipal budget. And they wound up in the news media getting the credit for keeping the new tax rate [yet to be set] from skyrocketing an estimated $30 or so.

The Mayor's latest proposal to mix the collection of rubbish and garbage for disposal of both in the land-fill city operated dump has only widened the strain.

Hannon says it will save the city $280,000. The council calls it a health hazard and nuisance to West Quincy residents. And if it did come about, they feel it would kill Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets' budding political career.

Hannon is trying to do a good job as mayor and as the city's chief executive he should run the show. But he can't be feuding with the City Council or the city will slide backward.

One veteran councilor thinks a major cause of the friction is that someone close to the Mayor is giving him "poor advice". In fact there are those around City Hall who feel that this has been one of the problems since Hannon moved into the mayor's office.

He wants to do a good job—has done a good job in many respects—but every once in a while finds himself standing barefooted in a hornet's nest by listening to the wrong person.

DON'T LOOK FOR any big announcement at that friendship dance for City Councilor Joseph LaRaia June 18 at Morrisette Legion Post. Though it falls on the deadline date for filing nomination papers, LaRaia smiles it off as "just a coincidence".

He says he definitely has no plans for running for the Senate seat now occupied by Council President Arthur Tobin.

Well, how about a bid for mayor next year?

"It's a little too early to think about that," he says.

THERE'S A BONNET in the Third Norfolk District state representative ring. It belongs to Mrs. Mary Collins of Landsdowne St., Squantum, who will challenge incumbent Joseph Brett. Mrs. Collins, mother of four, will be making her political debut but she's a quite active gal: Vice-president Squantum School PTO, treasurer Quincy City Hospital Social Services Committee, chairman of the Parents Advisory Council for School Food Services Program and a member of the Wollaston Women Juniors. She has nomination papers in circulation and says she will file them.

SPEAKING of Brett, he has sold his West Squantum St. package store to Dan and Robert McNiece, owners McNiece's Variety Store next door. Brett had the store for 42 years. And did you know that it started out in 1932 as "Brett's Sweet Shop"? Following the repeal of prohibition, it became a beer and wine store and started carrying a full line of beverages in 1960.

A RECEPTION FOR Rep. Clifford Marshall, candidate for Norfolk County sheriff, will be held Sunday, June 23 from 3 to 7 p.m. at State Street South indoor court, North Quincy.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "A good supervisor, someone once said, is a guy who can step on your toes without messing up your shine."

SMILE DEPT: Those new front doors at City Hall are still causing quite a stir among lovers of history and architecture. One wag calls them: "Pewter Pot Gothic".

Quincy Heritage Introduces New Celebration Symbol

Quincy Heritage has a new official symbol, one that combines the dual celebrations of the American Revolution Bicentennial and the 350th Anniversary of the founding of Mount Wollaston, announces Mayor Walter Hannon.

The symbol, done in blue and white and featuring a doublestar image, was created by Robert Brandt, vice president of S. Gunnar Myrbeck, Inc., the Quincy-based advertising agency.

"The design illustrates the joining together of the Bicentennial Committee and the 350th committee in a joint effort," said Brandt.

"The star concept and the blue and white colors were adopted from our national flag. The stars represent the states while the color blue points to the American values of vigilance, perseverance and justice.

"The white background is a reminder of the white hot fires of independence which have burned in the hearts of Quincy people since 1625."

The combined stars are designed to convey the feeling of movement, said Brandt, thus indicating the continued growth and development of the city.

The symbol contains the figures 200 and 350 and is surrounded by the words "Quincy Heritage Commemorates the American Revolution and the Founding of Mount Wollaston."

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, general chairman of Quincy Heritage, said the symbol will be used with all official celebration activities, including commemorative items produced in the next two years.

Over 2,000 Youngsters In Koch Club Flag Day Parade

Over 2,000 flag-waving youngsters aged 7 to 14 will take part in the 23rd Annual Flag Day parade and ceremonies sponsored by the Koch Club Friday.

A parade leaving from Coddington St. at 6:15 p.m. will precede the 7:15 p.m. Flag Day ceremonies at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The parade will proceed onto Washington St. to Hancock St., to Southern Artery and into the Stadium.

A flag ceremony will then be held, followed by a brief program. The Koch Club Scholarship Awards will be presented during the ceremony.

This year's $100 scholarship winners are:

Patricia A. Bleheen, 41 Cummings Ave. and Stephen J. DeRosso, Jr., 28 Flynt St., both graduates of North Quincy High School; Mary E. O'Leary, 15 Kilby St. and Peter DiBona, 29 Carter St., both graduates of Quincy High School.

Recipients of $50 scholarship awards are Karen E. Miller, 232 South St. and Stephen M. Lawlor, 86 South Walnut St., both graduates of Quincy Vocational Technical School.

This year's Flag Day theme will be "Quincy Youth on Parade in a Salute to Our Flag and City."

Rev. Thomas Kopp of St. Clement's Church, West Somerville, and a former member of the Koch Club, will give the invocation.

Although sponsored by the Koch Club, all military, veteran, civic, recreational and youth groups in the city and South Shore area are invited to attend and participate with a color guard and marching unit.

Assembly time for the parade will be 6 p.m. at Quincy Vocational Technical High School parking area on Coddington St.

Quincy Hospital Room Rates Up $6 Per Day

The cost of getting sick is going up like everything else.

Quincy City Hospital announces that its room rates will be increased by $6 a day and ancillary charges will go up by about 10 per cent.

The hospital's board of managers listed a long litany of financial woes behind the increase.

The hospital's budget for 1974-75 is up $138,000 but negotiations now going on with employee unions are expected to add at least a half million dollars to payroll costs.

"Because of the Economic Stabilization Act", the board said, "the hospital was not permitted during the last two years to increase its income sufficiently to match added costs of operation."

"The cost of living council restricted the hospital to approximately six per cent rate increase. However, most supplies and services purchased by the hospital are not under control and costs have increased far in excess of the amount the hospital was allowed to add to its charges."

The hospital said fuel oil has increased from $4.84 to $13.29 a barrel, thus adding about $80,000 a year to heating costs.

Paper products have increased 50 percent, electricity about 20 percent, food about 15 percent and drugs and X-ray film about 20 percent, the hospital said.

Plaque To Be Dedicated In Memory Of Dorothy Rae

A plaque will be dedicated Monday, June 17 in memory of Mrs. Dorothy Rae, one of Houghs Neck's most beloved residents.

Mrs. Rae, who lived on Rockland St., and served as a traffic supervisor for more than 20 years, died suddenly last month.

Youngsters at the Atherton Hough School where she protected them at the crossings donated toward the cost of the plaque.

They will be dismissed from classes at 1:30 p.m. so they can attend the ceremony.

The plaque, with stone base, will be dedicated on the lawn of the Houghs Neck Fire Station. Rev. Alicia Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, will officiate.

Among those attending will be Mayor Walter Hannon, Ward 1 Councilor Leo J. Kelley, Richard J. Koch, executive secretary Park Recreation Board, Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, Police Chief Francis A. Finn, a delegation of traffic supervisors and employees of Page's drugstore where she worked part-time.

Harrington Candidate For State Representative

Ward 6 City Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, 32, announces he is a Democratic candidate for the office of state representative in the September state primaries.

Harrington, an attorney, was elected to the City Council in the 1973 municipal elections after having lost a close bid for a council seat in 1971 when he first sought elective office.

Harrington in announcing his candidacy said:

"The legislature, in compliance with the law, has formed new representative districts for the entire Commonwealth. In doing so a new Third Norfolk District was created. The residents of Montclair, Squantum, North Quincy and the Wollaston Beach area who live in the new district will now, for the first time, have the opportunity to elect one representative to speak in the legislature on their behalf."

"It is crucial, therefore, that the representative elected from the new district be one who can and will act in the best interest of district residents. He must have knowledge of area problems, and the ability and energy to work toward solutions.

A representative must respond to area residents; but in order to do so, he must first be involved and aware. The projects and programs he advocates should not only be of benefit to residents, but be formulated by the representative's close contact with them."

Harrington announced that during the months to come he would bring his campaign to the homes of voters and demonstrate to them his strong desire to be elected representative from the new district.

Councillor Harrington listed the plight of the overtaxed home owners, re-evaluation, community schools, public safety, conservation, harbor pollution, expansion of programs for the senior citizens and the protection and improvement of residential neighborhoods as areas of great concern which must and can be controlled by the citizens through their elected representative.

Councillor Harrington attended Christopher Columbus High School in Boston. He majored in History at Boston College, graduating with an A.B. Degree in 1964. He received his Juris Doctor degree in Law from Boston University in 1967.

For more than five years he has practiced law in Quincy, serving both with the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office and the Attorney General's Office. He has been active in Church and civic groups and is an elected member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee.

Harrington was recently elected a delegate to the Democratic Congressional Caucus for the 11th Congressional District.

He is married to the former Ellen Boyd of North Quincy and they reside with their six children at 211 Billings St., North Quincy.

'Politics' Charged, Denied In Councillor's Son Appointment

Finance Committee observed: "That could be some people's opinion, but in my estimation the hospital has been under a fine administration."

Quinn also discounted any City Council involvement in the situation saying:

"We do not interfere with the inner workings of the hospital."

"The Mayor's office is involved in everything, let's face it," said Mayor Hannon, when asked for comment by The Sun.

"Mr. Quinn's son has been a unit manager for a number of years. He has taken courses in hospital administration. He attended Northeastern. He's not some stiff that just walked in off the street."

"He is qualified and we put him in there to train him in the job. It's as simple as that."

Joseph P. McParland Jr., the city's labor negotiator, said young Quinn "is not officially any place."

"We put him in there and we are training him," he said. "If he works out in the job, no doubt we will appoint him."

"Miss Kelley is doing a wonderful job in the position she is in now. We do not want to try her in the other job."

Miss Kelley has filed an informal complaint with Paine, contending that neither a vacancy notice nor job description was posted on the bulletin board outside the hospital cafeteria in accordance with the hospital's personnel handbook.

The handbook states that this bulletin board is "the official bulletin board for posting of notices, job openings, and Civil Service exams."

Furthermore, according to Miss Kelley, Article XVI of the Quincy City Hospital Employees Union contract states:

"Positions not covered by Civil Service, temporary positions, provisional positions, and new positions, which are promotional in nature, shall be posted for eight days and filled from among the qualified applicants, by seniority."

Miss Kelley also charges that, the description of the position of admitting officer has been altered to "tailor fit" Quinn.

The old job description

Quincy-Nantasket MBTA Bus Service Resumes

The MBTA will resume its summer bus service from Quincy Center to Nantasket Beach June 22.

Weekday mid-day service from Quincy Center to Hingham Center also was revised for the summer, effective the same day.

Buses will leave Quincy Center for Nantasket on weekdays between 9:15 a.m. and 10:35 p.m.; Saturdays and Sundays between 9:25 a.m. and specified an applicant must be a "graduate registered nurse, with at least one year of admitting experience in an accredited hospital."

Although Paine confirmed that the job description is being re-written, he said that the revision is still incomplete. Paine added:

"Even before Quinn came into the picture, we've been trying to eliminate nurses in admitting procedures, making them free to perform duties reserved solely for nurses."

Paine called it "a vast waste of nursing talent" to assign RN's to non-nursing positions which "can be filled by qualified lay people."

However, Miss Kelley, who is not an RN, said she is more qualified than Quinn if the job is not filled by an RN. She has been employed 32 years at the hospital, serving as a laboratory clerk-typist for 10 years, a clerk-stenographer eight years, principal clerk in the business manager-controller's office nine years and unit manager throughout the hospital for four years.

Miss Kelley complains that hospital personnel were not informed of the change in job description.

"My complaint is that the job was never posted," she said. "There were no new job qualifications listed."

Quinn has been a unit manager in the hospital for just under two years. He received his B.S. in Business Administration from Suffolk University and is now studying for his second degree in Health Care Administration from Northeastern University.

Prior to his position as unit manager, he worked as an orderly in the hospital for four years.

According to Paine, this experience would equip him with "a broad exposure to hospital operation."

Paine indicated that the admitting officer acts as the executive officer of the hospital in the absence of the director and assistant director.

He said, however, "I am not here to make judgements on the qualifications of individuals."

Miss Kelley received a verbal reply to her complaint addressed to Paine.

According to Miss Kelley Paine told her that the decision to appoint Quinn was made by an authority higher than himself.

Miss Kelley said she then asked, "By what higher authority, Mr. Paine? The Board of Managers? The City Council? The Mayor?" Paine, she said, replied, "All."

Miss Kelley said she now plans to issue a formal grievance through the Quincy City Employees Union. She will be in contact with the union's head John Keefe to take the proper steps in the grievance process.

Miss Kelley also filed an application with the city of Quincy on May 22, seeking the position of admitting officer.

John Quinn Jr., said he was unaware that the job description of admitting officer had not been posted on the hospital bulletin board and was equally unaware that the job qualifications had been revised.

He denied a report he planned to seek a $14,600 post as assistant to the assistant director later this year. He said, too, that he has the typing skills required by his new post despite Miss Kelley's contention he types with "two fingers".

Gino Marini, chairman of the hospital's Board of Managers remarked,

"We have never had this kind of a problem."

He said the board had no knowledge that the job opening and description were not posted. He said the matter would probably be discussed at the board's next meeting on Tuesday, June 18.

Marini added: "I'm sure that this will all straighten out."

Rev. Graham 'Oriented Toward Community Service'

directorship of Quincy Heritage will officially begin July 1. During the interim, he will complete his duties at the church, preaching his final sermon at United First Parish Church June 30.

At the present time, approximately 35 programs have been developed in preparation for the coming festivities. Through the diversified programs planned, Reverend Graham hopes not only to foster tourism in Quincy but to spark "a pride and an awareness of the richness of our city's history" as well. His voice clear and proud, he said:

"The ideas of the American Revolution, although fostered in Boston, were born in this city. No other community in the country can make that claim."

One of the 35 programs is especially symbolic and fused with tradition. Following the motto of John Quincy Adams to "plant trees for the future," this particular program pledges to plant a tree for each Quincy Baby born in 1975 and 1976. "People will literally have roots in a community," he said.

Like John Quincy Adams, Reverend Graham also has a motto: "Education by participation." He hopes to involve Quincy residents in specific Heritage programs, thus creating a citizenry, educated in and excited about their city's contribution to history.

Reverend Graham, 42, feels at home in Quincy - so close to the sea - since he was born and raised in Los Angeles. A graduate of Occidental College, where he majored in American Public Address and Public Speaking, he attended theological school outside San Francisco and was ordained in 1958. He spent some time in Casper, Wyoming and then accepted a position as minister of a parish in Denver, Col., a city packed with a population exceeding one million. He stayed in Denver a decade, from 1962-1972.

But the facelessness, the namelessness, of frantic city life can sometimes overpower a person. When forward-staring, stony faces answer a smile, it is indeed time for a change.

Reverend Graham wanted such a change. He said, "Urban sprawl fosters apathy, encourages concern for self rather than community, and works against civic responsibility because it's impossible to be a part of the community."

He said he wanted a smaller, more congenial community in which to work, explaining: "I wanted to be in a place where people had some feeling for one another, simply because they interact with one another. Human beings need to feel needed and a part of something. A community like Quincy can provide that."

According to Reverend Graham, the move to Quincy quickened his pace of life. "For me, it went faster," he emphasized. "I'm involved in more activities here." Reverend Graham admitted, however, that he had to make one slight adjustment: the traffic congestion in Quincy baffled him so, that he was forced to "re-learn how to drive."

In July 1976, when the parades, speeches, projects and fireworks are memories, Reverend Graham will face an unknown future. Since the maxim says, "Once ordained, always ordained," it will be Reverend Graham's prerogative to let his ministerial duties lie dormant for the time or to rekindle them once again.

But an uncertain future does not daunt Reverend Graham. In fact, it seems to infuse him with a relentless, pioneering spirit and an eagerness - not a courage - to greet the future. You must re-educate yourself to accept change," said the Reverend. "The more experiences you have, the more you like living."

Growing serious, Reverend Graham continued, "I've never looked back in anger, saying, 'Why did I make that change?' A variety of experiences doesn't allow you to become overly concerned with security. It helps you to cope with the unknown."

Whatever his future holds, he says he will face it like a Puritan. "Although the Puritan heritage is impugned today, it said something very important: what we do is a measure of what we are and what we believe. I am a Puritan at heart.

Strike Talks Look 'Hopeful'

Contract negotiations between General Dynamics and two unions representing workers at its Quincy Shipyard continued to look hopeful this week.

Two respected bargainers, Richard Katzenstein and George Chop, joined the company team in negotiations with Local 5 of the Shipbuilding Workers, who have been on strike since March 16.

Chop is industrial relations director at General Dynamics' St. Louis headquarters.

And Arthur Fitzgerald, president of Local 90, said the company has made "a responsive offer" to negotiators for his union whose contract expires at midnight Sunday [June 16]

'Illegal' Says SWCC

QCAO Calls For New Election

The Quincy Community Action Organization has called a new election for Tuesday, June 18, to choose members of its board of directors from Southwest Quincy.

The executive board of the Southwest Community Council immediately protested the new election as "illegal".

The Council conducted an election of directors April 16

but the QCAO recommended that new elections be held to provide "maximum participation of the low income."

The Council's executive board termed the new election illegal because "no provision was made for nominations from the floor of the Council meeting as stated in the QCAO by-laws [and] due notice was not given to the Council of date, time, place and slate as stated in the by-laws."

The Council called a meeting Tuesday [June 18] at 7:45 p.m. at the Southwest Community Center to discuss the matter.

The seven representatives from West Quincy elected to the QCAO board April 16 were: Pasquale DiStefano, Evelyn Crews, Irene Kilduff, Sally Kozlowski, Maura Kelly, Maria Coffin and Herbert Reppucci.

Flood Plain Zoning Topic At South-West Council June 18

The proposed Flood Plain Zoning Ordinance will be the subject of discussion at the South-West Community Council meeting at 7:45 p.m. June 18 at the Community Center on Granite St.

Speakers will include City Solicitor Richard McCormick, Richard Meade of the Department of Planning and Community Development, Clara Yeomans of the Conservation Commission and Alexandra Dawson of the Conservation Law Foundation.

Flood plain zoning is designed to preserve and maintain the ground water table and protect against the hazards of flooding.

No buildings may be erected within a flood plain district without a special permit of the Board of Appeals.

Such zoning would help preserve natural conditions and open spaces for the education, recreation and general welfare of the public.

And it will protect against "costs which may be incurred when unsuitable development occurs in swamps, marshes, along water courses or in areas subject to flood," according to SWCC President Jeff Isaacson.

Cerasoli Resigns Post To Campaign Full-Time

Robert A. Cerasoli, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, is resigning as legislative assistant to the Senate Committee on Rules, effective June 28.

Cerasoli noted that state law does not require his resignation to run for office. But he said he would like his candidacy "to be above reproach."

In a letter to the director of Senate Personnel, Cerasoli said: "In these times of crisis, government is in serious need of change. I believe government is a serious, full-time job. I want my candidacy to exemplify this seriousness."

Cerasoli stressed that the state representative should be one "who forcefully pursues reform," thus insuring the integrity of the state government.

● Senior Babe Ruth

Quincy, Avon In 2-2 Tie

Confusion in the infield in the final inning spoiled Spike Cooney's fine four-hitter and gave Avon a 2-2 tie with Data Services, Quincy's entry in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League, Monday night.

An infield fly dropped in for a base hit with two out and permitted the tying run to score.

Gerry Bugden accounted for both Quincy runs in the third inning with a line drive home run that cleared the fence to the opposite field, scoring Dave Power ahead of him.

Cooney had a no-hitter for four innings, then scattered three safeties over the last three.

The tie game will be played off July 18 at Adams Field as the first game of a doubleheader prior to the regularly scheduled return game.

Data Services, will host South Boston at 8:15 tonight [Thursday] at Adams Field.

Quincy rebounded from a 14-9 defeat at the hands of Randolph to nip Hanover, 3-2, last week.

John Papile and Gerry Bugden gave Quincy some strong pitching with Bugden relieving Papile in the fifth after Hanover had rallied for two runs and had runners on second and third with two outs. Bugden struck out the last batter, then went on to strike out four more in his 2 1/3 innings. Quincy had taken a 3-0 lead with a run in the second and two in the fourth.

Paul Coner paced Quincy's attack with two singles and stole two bases.

Quincy's opening game was a nightmare as it committed seven errors and its pitchers gave up 19 hits to a hard-hitting Randolph team which also showed some aggressive base running.

Trailing, 8-0, after three innings, Quincy exploded for seven runs in the fourth but Randolph added six more runs in the last three innings.

Frank Schuler and Mark Jaehnig started the big inning with back to back singles, Paul McGuigan singled home a run, Paul Messina doubled, Eric Carrera singled and forced Randolph pitchers to balk twice, Bugden doubled and Jaehnig collected his second single of the inning.

In the sixth, when Quincy added its final two runs, Dave Power belted a long triple off the left center field fence at Adams Field.

● Junior High Baseball

A-N Undefeated Champs

For the second straight year Ron LaQuaglia's Atlantic-North baseball team is the undefeated Quincy Junior High champion.

A-N last week romped over Broad Meadows, 11-0, to finish with an 8-0 record. Mac McGinley was the winning pitcher and gave up only three hits. Steve Bell had two hits for the champs.

Earlier in the week A-N bombed Central by the same score as Bob Stack pitched a no-hitter and also helped his own cause with a double. Eddie McElaney had a triple and stole home and Jim McGinley hit a grand slam home run. Pat Gibbons was the losing pitcher. Sterling trailed, 2-1, going into the final inning but hits by Brian Sciarini and Brian Kelly along with an error gave it the winning runs.

Quincy Track Club Impressive At Braintree

If the results in Monday night's first of eight AAU track and field meets sponsored by the Braintree Park Dept. are any indication, the new Quincy Track Club should do well when it gets under way in full swing.

In Monday's meet at Braintree four girls and one boy entered under the Quincy Track Club colors and were highly successful.

Janice Kelly won the junior high 100, high school 100, open 100 and open 440 and took second in the junior high long jump.

Rory Nolan won the junior high long jump and the high school hurdles and took second in the junior high hurdles.

Maureen talks of Wayne, Fonda

By DON FREEMAN
HOLLYWOOD — "As the old Irishman once said, 'God made time and He made plenty of it,'" said Maureen O'Hara, the voice of an Irish melody of its own, a poetic lilt to the words as they tumble out, with a lyrical bounce and inflections that touch gently against the ear. It is indeed a pleasant sound, a voice of lush greenery and a tender touch of Dublin.

And when she talks, time seems endless. She sounds great and she looks great.

Miss O'Hara is an actress blessed with a sense of detachment. She is, moreover, free of the hampering strictures of false modesty about her own work and a good thing, too.

"Long ago," she said, "Ronald Colman, a grand actor, said to me that if you do a picture once in every 15 years that you're truly proud of you can be thankful. Well, I'm doubly lucky. I've had many good fill-lums, including 'The Red Pony,' and good actors to be playing with."

There was Henry Fonda, of course. "The first time I worked with Henry Fonda, I was puzzled," she recalled. "He'd sit in his chair, between takes, and he'd be there staring off into space, a thousand miles away. At first, I thought oh, what have I done to distress him? But he wasn't at all unfriendly. He was thinking of his lines and how to play them. In his own mind, you see, he was playing his next scene a hundred times or more, seeing it from every possible approach. And he had a response prepared for every possible interpretation the other actors might have. Oh, yes, Henry Fonda is pretty damned great. Such warmth and feeling in his eyes!"

In any discussion of costars with Maureen O'Hara, the name of John Wayne inevitably comes to the fore.

"Duke Wayne is much like Henry Fonda, both men cut from the same bolt," she said. "Now 'The Quiet Man,' with Duke Wayne, is my favorite fill-lum of them all, a grand picture. I love working with Duke Wayne. I love working with Henry Fonda. I also like Jimmy Stewart and I like a guy called Brian Keith."

Was there, I wondered, a common thread connecting these actors? "Yes, they're men and they act like men," Miss O'Hara replied. "They are strong performers, strong men — plus the fact that with their strength they have a kindness. And they aren't prima donnas, you see. They have a humor about themselves. Women like them. Men like them. They are so likable."

"Well, Jackie Gleason is a nice old-fashioned man," she said, pleased at the thought, "and he was indeed courting her, taking her places, courting her, treating her with courtliness."

Maureen O'Hara is a traditionalist in many ways. Her roots lie deep in Dublin's Abbey Theater, which was founded by William Butler Yeats and John Synge. Her mother was an actress with the Abbey and Miss O'Hara also began her career on its boards.

She was, in fact, discovered at the Abbey by Charles Laughton, who took her to England where she starred in her first movie, "Jamaica Inn." By 1939, she was in Hollywood, where her credits over the years include 54 movies, including six with John Wayne.

Singles taking to condos

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

Young singles, and not necessarily "swingers," are sparking up increasingly to condominium living. The trend is slowly evolving into a "boom within a boom."

Condominiums generally have been a proven "winner" for several years, much to the surprise of many past skeptics. The condominium home, where the occupant reaps all the benefits of ownership and conveniences of apartment living, is now well accepted by all age, economic, social and ethnic groups, including families with children.

One noted housing authority, Sanford R. Goodkin, recently conducted a survey centered on housing likes and dislikes of family units. From 38 to 46 per cent of those interviewed consider condominiums as acceptable as single-family detached homes — quite a jump from recent past years.

In the wake of today's energy crisis, the condominium form of residence is becoming more popular than ever before — with individual owners as well as municipalities. With the shortage and his cost of gasoline, a much greater priority is being placed on "close-in" locations. Close proximity to jobs and shopping is a key factor with today's buyers. Higher-density condominium housing is often the only type of new home available in such locations.

Also, it's been discovered that condominiums and other forms of cluster housing require less heating and cooling energy than single family detached homes. Local government leaders are taking a kindlier look at condominiums because they find that owner-residents are much less transient than tenants, and the architectural plans often create a pleasing aesthetic touch to the community with their broad sweeps of green space.

As for the young folk, newly marrieds and singles, the condominium scene is strictly in — not with all the youngsters, but the trend is set. As the Goodkin survey revealed, young people (late teens through early 20s) show a strong desire for home ownership, contrary to public opinion. They are showing increasing interest in well-designed condominium homes that leave them free for sports, recreation and social activities.

The increasing interest by singles does not reflect a trend set by wild-party swingers. In fact, many of the singles now seeking their own condominium home are hoping to escape the sometimes far-out social life in their apartment complex. The single's primary motivation is economic, like most other home buyers — particularly in today's highly inflationary climate.

Ward 4 City Councillor James A. Sheets went to court Tuesday to stop Mayor Walter J. Hannon from mixing garbage and trash in the city dump.

Sheets sought a writ in Norfolk Superior Court that would order the Mayor to observe a section of the city ordinances that forbids a mixed collection if it creates a breeding place for pests.

Hearing on Sheets' petition was set for Monday, June 24, at 9:30 a.m.

Even while Sheets was appearing in court, Mayor Hannon announced that initial steps have already been started to insure an orderly transition toward the joint collection on July 1.

The date was set despite a City Council resolution passed unanimously June 3 opposing the dumping of garbage at the disposal area in West Quincy as a health hazard to nearby residents in Ward 4.

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers, who co-sponsored the resolution with Sheets, castigated the Mayor's order as "an arbitrary edict... contrary to the wishes of the people and against the public welfare."

"Our resolve was ignored by the Mayor, giving us no alternative but to seek legal action in order to remedy the situation," said Powers.

However, only Sheets was involved in the court action filed Tuesday by Atty. Kevin Keating.

"If a class action suit is necessary," Sheets said, "all nine City Councillors will join the ranks of an even greater number of Quincy citizens and file a petition for injunction."

"It is unfortunate that in this, an off-election year for the city, we face not only an increase in the property tax but now a

Declines To Speculate

Thaxter Expects To 'Wrap Up' Cemetery Probe Next Week

The probe of irregularities in the Quincy Cemetery Department may enter a new phase next week.

"I hope to have it pretty well wrapped up by the first of the week," J. Blake Thaxter Jr., the Cohasset attorney who has been directing the investigation for the past month, told The Quincy Sun.

Thaxter, a former assistant district attorney, declined to speculate on the next step in the probe.

He could request a special grand jury session to hear his evidence; he could go directly into Quincy District Court with a criminal complaint; or he could make no criminal recommendations.

Thaxter said that he hadn't decided whether to order new excavations in the Mt. Wollaston Cemetery dumping ground where a bone identified as "absolutely a human jaw bone" was found.

The bone was discovered Feb. 16 in the dump behind the Naval Reserve Center on Sea St. and ruled an animal bone by State Pathologist Dr. George Katsas.

It was sent to Harvard's Peabody Museum for further examination last week and Dr. Stephen Williams, an archaeologist, said it came "from an old person. No other animal has that type of bone."

City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia has charged that occupied graves in Mt. Wollaston have been resold and some of the old remains carted away to the dump. It was a LaRaia aide who discovered the bone.

Hedges Still Undecided 13 File For State Representative

Thirteen candidates, 10 Democrats, two Republicans and one Independent, filed to run for the four Quincy seats in the State House of Representatives before the filing deadline at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

They are:

FIRST DISTRICT - Robert A. Cerasoli, 21 Whitton Ave.; Patrick J. Faherty Jr., 47 Faxon Park Rd.; James P. Papile, 12 Harkins St.; Thomas F. Williams, 437 Washington St. All are Democrats seeking the open seat.

SECOND DISTRICT - Thomas F. Brownell, [incumbent] 15 Moreland Rd.; Fred A. Sisti, 215 Liberty St. Both are Democrats.

THIRD DISTRICT - Joseph E. Brett, [incumbent], 254 Fenno St.; Mary P. Collins, 116 Lansdown St.; Dennis E. Harrington, 211 Billings St.; Jens E. Thornton, 14 Orchard St.

Thornton is a Republican; the others are Democrats.

FOURTH DISTRICT - Joyce I. Baker, 162 Warren St., Republican; Herbert Reppucci, 62 Shirley St., Independent; William D. Delahunt, [incumbent], 43 Myopia Rd., Democrat.

The candidates' papers now have to be certified for 150 legal signatures, then forwarded to the State Secretary's office before 5 p.m. next Tuesday [June 25] to be included on the primary ballot.

It will be the first election since Quincy was redistricted from three districts to four.

Under the old plan, Brownell represented the First District, Clifford H. Marshall the Second District, and Brett and Delahunt the Third District. Marshall, who would be in the new First Tammy Stuart, Kittens And Who's Next ?

Quincy's Dog Leash Law: Just A Piece Of Paper?

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy has had a leash law on the books since November, 1966 but apparently few owners of the estimated 10,000 dogs in the city pay much attention to it.

Dogs still roam streets and yards—some of them in packs—causing a general nuisance and in some cases serious injury to children and other pets.

Last January, five-year-old Tammy Stuart was attacked in the face by a dog in Germantown and disfigured. She has undergone six skin grafts, faces a seventh in August and will have to undergo plastic surgery two years from now and continue it until she is 19.

Last week two "mad dogs" invaded a Merrymount backyard and mauled and killed two kittens.

And, last week, a seven-year old Merrymount youngster was bitten by a dog while riding his bike.

With summer coming on there could be many more such incidents if dogs are allowed to roam and do what they please.

What can be done about it?

For opens State Rep. Thomas Brownell has requested a meeting with Mayor Walter Hannon to deal with what he calls "this vexatious problem." Calling the situation "a city-wide problem", Brownell suggested that the Quincy Police Department help to alleviate the onslaught of dog complaints. He said, "It is possible for the dog officer to get a flood of complaints; consequently people cannot get the dog officer. We need to fill in the gap in that type of situation - perhaps calls can be referred to the Police Department."

According to the present system, a person's call is recorded by an answering service if both the dog officer and his assistant are unavailable. Dog Officer Frank Berlucchi said that he is notified immediately of a recorded message.

However, Brownell commented, "The present system during ordinary business hours is not a good system. We need a direct hook-up."

Quincy's Dog Leash Law: Just A Piece Of Paper?

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Department, the dog officers and concerned citizens, Brownell hopes "to devise a better system of receiving dog complaints."

"Not at midnight," he emphasized, "but during normal business hours."

City Clerk Gillis reports that roughly 4,400 dog licenses are issued yearly. He added, "I'd assume there are that many or more running at large." He estimated Quincy's dog population as 10,000, calling that figure "conservative."

Gillis said that Quincy needs "greater control" in dealing with its dog population. He commented, "The dog officer is doing a great job, really. What we need is more people to supervise."

In response to questions from The Sun, Berlucci mentioned the possible addition of two men in his department. The indication is that the increase in officers would allow the department to answer more calls more quickly.

Berlucci commented, "Dog men are dedicated men. They have to be when they leave the house at 8 p.m. to answer a call."

"We run a right and efficient department," he continues. "No woman has the right to complain about service in 20 minutes. In my opinion, it's ridiculous."

Berlucci was referring to Mrs. Therese E. MacPherson of 51 Samoset Ave., who last week sent a letter to Mayor Hannon reporting "two mad dogs" had mauled and killed two kittens in her backyard.

In her letter, accompanied by a 20-signature petition, Mrs. MacPherson said she phoned the dog officer and received an answering service. She left a message and then called Quincy's Police Station. An officer then said that he would contact the dog officer by radio.

Twenty minutes after Mrs. MacPherson's initial call to the dog officer, the assistant dog officer, Howard Ainsley, arrived at her door, explaining that he had been on another call in Germantown. Mrs. MacPherson asked for "some surveillance in the neighborhood, especially in the early morning when they [dogs] travel in packs."

According to Mrs. MacPherson, these pack-prowling dogs, traveling in groups of three or four, operate "like clockwork." Said Mrs. MacPherson, "They're sure to show up every morning."

In late afternoon that same day, seven-year-old Michael Novak, son of Mrs. Margaret F. Novak of 21 Overlook Rd., Merrymount was bitten in the seat of his pants by a dog. The youngster was riding his bicycle at the time.

When Mrs. Novak called the dog officer, she, too, received the answering service. A dog officer arrived the next day.

But Brownell seems to think that a day-wait, or even a 20-minute wait is too long. In his letter to the Mayor, he said:

"I am...alarmed that in Mrs. MacPherson's case it took 20 minutes to get a response from the dog officer on an emergency mad dog complaint...We must demand a more speedy response."

Berlucci said a dog officer must answer a complaint within 24 hours.

The fine for violating the leash law varies. A first offense, receives a citation and a warning. Offenses thereafter carry a fine of $10. Although the maximum fine is $20, Berlucci said that it is not used. After the third offense, a hearing is recommended and the dog is declared a nuisance. The dog is then ordered out of Quincy or destroyed.

When asked by The Sun for the number of Quincy dog owners taken to Quincy District Court for violation of the leash law, Berlucci said that he would locate the exact figures and furnish them to The Sun.

However, Berlucci later called saying he had spoken to Mayor Hannon. He said he was instructed not to make any statement to the press. The mayor indicated he would have an announcement later.

The Quincy leash law reads: "No person who owns or keeps a dog shall allow the animal to run free when not restricted to the premises of said owner or keeper. When off said premises such dogs shall be leashed and/or curbed."

Unfortunately, this law seems to be destined to stay merely in the books and not in the minds of all dog owners, for the leash law goes unheeded.

Certainly, dog owners are aware of the law. According to Berlucci, a dog owner receives a reminder of the yearly expiration date of his dog's license. When the owner renews the license, he signs a paper on which is printed the above leash law. Certainly, then, dog owners are aware of the leash law.

Berlucci notes: "With all the newspaper coverage, broadcasting and bumper stickers, could we educate the public any more?"

But Brownell thinks Quincy should try.

"It's a small thing to son... people," he says. "But to a mother with small children, it means a lot."

Like Tammy Stuart's mother, for example.

City, MDC Partners In $827,000 Project

Black's Creek Boating Area To Be Tripled In Size

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Near the lower basin of Black's Creek, a huge yellow dredger is roaring.

Before its job is completed by summer's end, the dredger will have sucked approximately 145,000 cubic yards of sludge from the bottom of Black's Creek.

When the project is fully completed sometime next year the Black's Creek boating area will have been tripled in size and the surrounding land transformed into a picturesque recreation site.

The project is part of a revitalization and beautification program funded by the City of Quincy and the MDC. Each is paying 50 per cent of the total $827,420 re-development contract.

According to City Recreation Director William Ryan, the sludge scooped from Black's Creek Basin can be used as sanitary landfill at the city dump, creating the six-inch covering required by state law. The use of this sludge can save the city approximately $30,000, according to Ryan. The figure could run as high as $60,000, he added.

As a result of the dredging project, and the removal of several grassy island, Black's Creek will be wider and deeper, tripling the present sailing and boating area. According to Ryan, "controlled boating" - including sailing, canoeing and motor boating - will be enforced along the creek. Instruction will be offered in each of those types of boating. Swimming, however, will not be allowed, he said.

Ryan noted that the road leading towards the red, white and blue boating buildings in Merrymount Park is no longer bumpy and rutted. Drains will be constructed at the road's edge to eliminate flooding, and new trees will be planted in the area. Pleased with the project's development, Ryan remarked, "I'm glad I've lived to see the day this project got going."

The area behind Veterans Memorial Stadium and alongside Southern Artery and Furnace Brook Parkway is also slated for beautification. Ryan reported that trees will be planted, a walkway tracing the edge of the

$319,755 In New Plumbing

Eighty four applications for plumbing valued at $319,755 were received by the Department of Plumbing and Gas Fitting during May, Inspector James A. Erwin Jr. reported last week.

The major project was the Quincy Housing Authority's 200-unit Clay St. elderly housing complex, valued at $270,000.

The city received $1,238 in fees and the department made 99 plumbing inspections.

Fifty-six applications for gas fittings valued at $13,503 were made on which the city collected $111 in fees. Forty one inspections were made of gas fittings.

lagoon will be built and the lagoon's water will be cleaned.

He added that Caddy Memorial Park will boast new playground equipment, picnic benches, trees and shrubbery.

Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of Public Works Committee, is also pleased with the program.

"We've worked hard to bring this project together," he said. "It will not only improve the recreation facilities in the City of Quincy, but it will also alleviate flooding conditions."

An area often plagued by floods is the Furnace Brook Parkway near the inner basin of Black's Creek. In order to create a faster flow of water from this inner basin into the harbor, a reinforced, concrete, double-culvert will be built at the bridge crossing Southern Artery.

This inner basin will also be dredged and cleaned. Kelly recalled that in the aftermath of the 1938 hurricane, piles of tree stumps, broken branches and other debris were pitched into Black's Creek inner basin,

MDC COMMISSIONER John W. Sears signs contract to begin dredging of Black's Creek, a project that has been sought for eight years. contributing to the clog-up there. Kelly commented, "It is up to man to correct the damage he has caused to nature."

Confident in the on-going success of the dredging and clean-up projects, Kelly said, "Man is correcting his destruction of the environment."

He noted that new tide gates have been installed under the Greenberg Bridge, allowing the seawater to flow more freely toward the harbor.

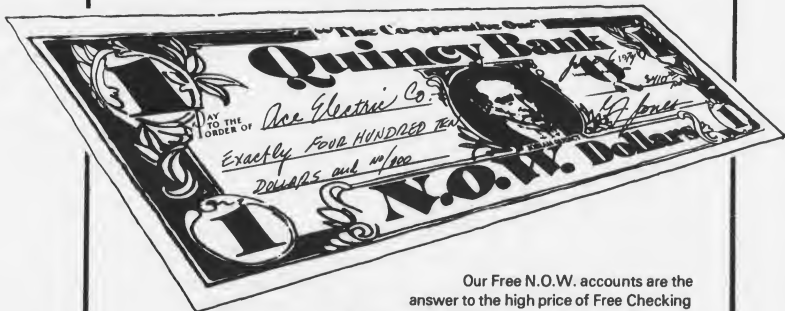

May 5, 1975 is the projected date of the project's completion. By that time, the level of Black's Creek will be seven feet in summer months and five feet the rest of the year.

Next summer, then, promises to be an enjoyable one - whether strolling along a tree-lined lagoon or sailing down a sun-drenched and clean Black's Creek.

Should Parents Pry ?

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
This problem is a hundred years old but I still can't solve it. My parents read my mail, my diary, and even my messages on the phone pad. I can not seem to do anything to make them quit. My dad denies it and my mother says that the diary fell open when she was cleaning or that the mail was not sealed properly when it arrived.

Why do parents pry? I have never given them a problem. My grades are good and I try to understand because in every other way they are super parents.

Cindy

Dear Cindy:

Your parents do not have the right to open your mail and read your diary. You are indeed an understanding daughter. However, if your parents are super in every other way, consider yourself lucky. One suggestion — keep your diary locked. If you don't have the kind with a key, buy one.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My mother is a born drill instructor and my father has never left the Marine Corps. They have bossed me around for 23 years and now I am getting married.

I want a church wedding with all the trimmings. My parents agree with this. But the problems start right there. They are trying to set up each and every detail. My mother tells me that she is paying for it so she can decide what type of wedding it will be. She insists on selecting the dress I am to wear, the color of the bridesmaid dresses, and the flowers. My nerves are completely shattered and the wedding is going to be my mother's and not mine. How can I get through to my parents?

Nervous

Dear Nervous:

Your parents may have to be told in plain English. Tell them that it is YOUR wedding and that you want to be in on the plans. You have the right to select your dress and the colors you prefer. If they won't go for this, consider the old ladder.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

How can I get over a crush? I attend a large university and my English professor is absolutely gorgeous. He has no idea what I am thinking because I am just one of at least 50 girls in his class. Since I am fairly attractive, I do date quite a bit but all the while this teacher sticks in the back of my mind. He is about 30 and I am 20. It is not as if I were 16 and a featherheaded teenager. What can I do to get over this? Dating other men this past semester has not helped. When we have discussions in class I freeze. What should I do?

Student

Dear Student:

Sooner or later you will forget about the professor because you will find another to take his place. In the meantime, why not consider being a little more outgoing in class. If he is single and 30, he might not be against something more than a student-teacher relationship. It has happened before.

Today's Women

What'll happen to Tom Boy?

By ANN RUDY

Little League, that bastion of little boy endeavor, is being stormed by girls.

As spring practice gets under way, lawsuits are popping up nationwide — even in proper old Boston — against Little League.

Opinions of the experts are mixed. Everybody from major league pitchers to psychiatrists have proed and conned the subject, and I don't want to haggle here about constitutional rights or fragile bones.

All I want to do is tell those little girls who are fighting so desperately for their turn at bat that they are making a big Ms.-take. (Pardon me, but I had to say it.)

Girls, don't you realize if you make it into the Little Leagues the American Tom Boy will disappear? The Tom Boy — that special kind of independent girl boys make fun of but respect because she can climb a fence, build a tree house or bat a ball just as well as they can.

She's as free as a bird and as unregimented as a field of wild flowers. If you girls succeed and get into uniform, you will have to turn up for practice at special times twice a week. You'll have to play ball every weekend, and you'll have to tuck in your shirttails, get out of your favorite sneakers and into cleats.

I tell you, girls, the whole Tom Boy community will collapse. Do you want to sit in the dugout in uniform and listen to somebody's father take roll call before the game? Do you give a hang if your mother and little brother are in the stands watching you round second? Do you want to sell tickets to the Little League dance?

Or would you rather get up on Saturday morning and do what you want — pull on those dear, familiar blue jeans, grab a sweater and breakfast, then call over your shoulder as you ride your bike down the driveway, "I'm goin' to the dirt lot. There's a game over there."

It might not even be baseball — it could be anything or nothing. Maybe just the guys seeing who can throw a pebble farthest. They might say, "Yaaa, beat it ..." but you toss one too and it goes clear out of sight. Great feeling. No trophy needed.

"Yaaa, yourself," you say and hop on your bike for your own pursuit of self. Besides, when a Tom Boy blossoms and childhood is left behind, when the braces come off and the freckles fade, you won't really care that much about going on to the big leagues and catching for the Cincinnati Reds.

Too much perfume tips off authorities

A seven-member Toronto gang which operated a $140,000 drug smuggling operation between Britain and Canada is in jail because one of the three girl couriers wore too much perfume.

The girls used strong perfume to cover the scent of liquid cannabis which was strapped around their bodies under their mod clothing, but the perfume worn by one of the girls returning from Morocco was so pronounced that it aroused the suspicions of a ship's steward and she was followed and eventually the whole gang was arrested.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE Bobbie Gentry plans 'Billy Joe' movie

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — Bobbie Gentry's "Ode to Billy Joe," so far only a super-hit song, may yet become a movie with Miss Gentry herself producing.

After she introduced the song in 1967 to an enchanted public, Bobbie was approached by numerous producers panting to translate its poignant message into a film, but the songwriter-singer declined all bids.

"There were always negotiations," Bobbie says, "but I was too jealous of the property just to make a fast sale. I wanted all the right creative elements to be present."

Now, approximately seven years after her ballad became a hit record, Bobbie is in a position to produce the movie herself and has been in conference with officials of the State of Mississippi about the project.

Needless to say, Mississippians who'd welcome movie business in their state are enthusiastic.

"I have two ideas about who should play Billy Joe; either Kris Kristofferson or a singer who's not quite so wellknown but who's very good, Tony Joe White."

"As for the girl — I don't know who should play her. She should look about 15 years old. I picture her as sandy-haired and not too pretty."

Police siren shocks baby 'back to life'

A 4-month-old Sheffield, England, baby whose mother thought he was dead was shocked back to life by the siren on the police car in which he was being rushed to the hospital for emergency care.

One policeman tried first aid on the apparently dead boy while the other policeman drove the car, switching on the two-tone siren, at which the baby jumped and coughed his way back to consciousness. He is now very well and being held for observation. —

800 BIKE FATALITIES

Last year some 800 children were killed and over 38,000 injured in accidents between bicycles and motor vehicles. 75% of these accidents took place between April and September and children between 10 to 14 had 50% more accidents than those below 10. The problem seems to be that children consider their bicycles as toys rather than vehicles. Here are some tips which may prevent needless tragedies.

Ride with the traffic, on the right side of the road, not against traffic on the left. Walk bikes across heavily travelled intersections. If you ride in a group, travel single file, not side by side. Use hand signals to show the direction you intend to turn. If riding at night, have a working white light in front, red light in the rear and reflective tape on the fenders. Attach a basket if you carry books or packages so you can use both hands for control.

Anna Garrity Honored On 50th Anniversary

It's been a big week for Anna Garrity, who started teaching dance at an age when most kids didn't know how.

She was honored at a testimonial banquet at Hugo's Lighthouse Monday and Wednesday she held her annual dance revue, the 50th since she opened her school at 278 Washington St., Weymouth.

Anna Garrity was 14 when she opened the school in the front room of the family home.

Three years later, she had an opportunity to go to New York City with the famed Rockettes of Radio City Music Hall but her father vetoed the idea.

Nearly 30 years afterward, one of the graduates of her school fulfilled the dream by becoming a Rockette.

Another former pupil toured the world as a ballerina with the Metropolitan Ballet.

Congratulations on her 50 years as a dance instructor were received from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Gov. Francis W. Sargent, Dance Masters of

ANNA GARRITY

America Inc. and the Dance Teachers' Club of Boston.

Now in semi-retirement, the school is directed by her son, Brad Erwin.

Miss Garrity is the widow of the late Bill Erwin, who was basketball coach at Braintree and Weymouth High Schools.

It's Strawberry Picking Time Again

June is strawberry month in the Bay State, and most roadside farm markets are offering fresh, vine-ripened, juicy native strawberries this week, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA].

The short strawberry season — usually only four to five weeks — has begun about a week later than the average, but the crop is plentiful and delicious.

You can choose them in pint boxes off the shelves — or you can go out and pick your own right in the fields. Nothing could be fresher than that, and you'll save a bit on the price, too. It's good family fun, and not very hard work, if you don't mind bending. Strawberries grow close to the ground.

Each year this news is greeted by some as an invitation to pick strawberries without charge. Not so, of course. When you visit a strawberry plantation, you'll be given boxes to fill, and you'll pay as you leave. Prices are posted, and may vary with the size of the berries you select.

If you choose to buy your native berries at a farm stand or produce counter, look for bright, overall sparkling red berries with bright green, unwilted caps. Pick up the box. If it leaves a ring on the shelf, it may not be quite fresh. Most strawberries in the supermarkets are from out of state.

Fresh strawberries should be used at once. If you must keep them a day or two, refrigerate them immediately, and keep them so until used.

For a list of growers who offer pick-your-own in the eastern part of the state, call 727-3018, or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to MDA Div. of Markets, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

One minor caution: most growers do not allow children under 12 in the fields.

And a final note: June is also Dairy Month, so you can celebrate by springing for a pint or so of fresh cream to go with the strawberries.

How To Brew A Better Cup Of Coffee

Making great coffee needn't be a grind, if you follow a few simple rules.

The coffee pot must be thoroughly cleaned to insure the best possible brew.

The next essential is fresh coffee. Storing coffee in the refrigerator helps retain its freshness.

Measure precisely: 2 level tbs. of coffee for every 6 ounces of water. This formula pleases most people and is recommended by coffee experts.

What method should you use: drip or perk? Most experts prefer the drip filter technique. They feel that perking over-extracts coffee grounds, and because it boils the coffee, results in a bitter taste. With the drip filter method, water passes through the coffee just once.

In the past, many people simply didn't want to bother with clumsy, hard-to-operate drip filter equipment. Now Norcico has marketed a fully automatic Drip Filter Coffee Maker. Since the coffee never boils or perks, it has no chance to become bitter. And it brews a full 12 cups in just 7 minutes.

One final tip: serve your coffee with cream that has been brought to room temperature. This cools the coffee as little as possible—and wins heart-warming praise from your guests!

Big appetites

Leslie Coole, a farmer of Frampton-on-Severn, England, and his son Billy, won a double "eating" prize at the local annual Easter Feast.

Coole, 40, regained the world eel-eating title by gulping down 1½ pounds of baby eels in less than a minute and his son won the children's sausage-eating contest by polishing off a two-foot string of sausages. — CNS

Observe time limits in frozen food storage

Most fruits and vegetables maintain high quality for eight to 12 months (at 0 degrees F. or below); citrus fruits and citrus juices for four to six months.

Another point to remember is that unsweetened fruits lose quality faster, than those packed in sugar or syrup, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture — CNS

No botulism in fresh vegetables

The botulism problems which have been associated with canned mushrooms can not possibly develop in fresh mushrooms or any other fresh vegetable, according to the American Mushroom Institute.

A botulin toxin is only produced when the organisms can grow in the absence of air, such as in a sealed, air-tight can. — CNS

● Question Of The Week: HOW IS JUROR SELECTED?

"I would like to serve on a jury, but am never selected? What are the requirements and how are jurors chosen," asked a caller to the Voter Information Phone of the League of Women Voters.

The League volunteer told him that laws vary among states. In Massachusetts each city or town selects a list of persons eligible for jury duty from among names drawn from census lists. All those qualified to vote whether registered or not may be prospective jurors.

There are a number of statutory exemptions such as elected state officials, clerks of the court and judges. Formerly women with children under 16 were also exempted. However, as a result of a new law passed in 1973 persons with children 15 years may choose not to serve on juries. In addition "undue hardship and employment that constitutes a public necessity" allows many people to excuse themselves from jury duty.

A juror gets an average of $17 a day depending upon the type of case and the kind of jury and the ordinary basic term of service is one month, although it can vary from one day to longer than the month.

This question is one of the many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Tips On Vacation Mailing

Postmaster George K. Walker offers these tips to help vacationers enjoy trouble-free mailing of letters and post cards while on their holiday:

Mail as early as possible in the day, preferably in the morning. Avoid mailing on weekends when many post offices are closed. Try depositing cards in mailboxes located in densely populated areas.

Buy enough stamps before leaving home to prevent running out far away from the nearest post office. Keep in mind that stamps are more expensive when purchased from commercial vending machines.

Always use sufficient postage. For first-class cards, use an 8-cent stamp if the post card is not larger than the standard 4 1/2 x 6 in. size. For "Jumbo" cards, 10-cent stamps are required. For airmail, use an 11-cent stamp on standard post cards and 13-cents for "Jumbo" cards. As a general rule, use airmail stamps only when the mailing distance is 600 miles or more.

Remember to use ZIP Codes. Many times cards are addressed hurriedly while riding in cars, trains or planes. Legible ZIP Codes will help speed mail to its proper destination.

Keep this trick in mind: Type the addresses of friends and relatives on self-addressed labels before you leave home. It is surprising how much time this saves on the road and how much neater those cards will look.

Another note: Don't forget about your personal mail back home.

Remember to ask a friend or neighbor to empty your mailbox daily and to hold the mail until you return. An overstuffed box in your absence is an open invitation for thieves to enter your temporarily unoccupied home.

However, if you prefer, you can fill out a form available from any post office and request that your mail be held for any period up to 30 days. If you choose this method, be sure to specify when you want your mailman to resume home delivery.

"The best way to insure a relaxing vacation comes from taking the necessary steps to make certain that everything—including the mail—is in good order back home," Walker said.

- 'Piecemeal' Peace In Middle East
- Milk Now A Dirty Word
- Nixon 'Didn't Take Care'

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON — The reason President Nixon made his swing through the Middle East was to bask in Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's success. The President wanted to share with Kissinger the credit for bringing peace to the Middle East.

But the strategy may backfire. For Arab leaders have made it clear to the President that they still expect Israel to withdraw from all Arab territory seized in 1967 and to establish a Palestinian state on Jordan's west bank. They are counting upon Nixon and Kissinger to persuade Israel to make these concessions.

I spoke to the top Israeli leaders during my own recent visit to the Middle East. I talked with both outgoing Prime Minister Golda Meir and incoming Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

They have absolutely no intention of giving up all the seized territory. The Israeli leaders said, in time, they might pull back to their 1967 borders. They spoke of a "piecemeal peace" withdrawing a little at a time as the Arabs demonstrated their peaceful intent. Golda Meir suggested this might take 20 years.

It's doubtful that the Arabs will wait 20 years. In the meantime, the delicate Middle East peace may explode.

However, President Nixon did his homework before he flew to the Middle East. He carefully read through the hundreds of messages that Secretary of State Kissinger sent from the Middle East, as he negotiated the Israeli-Syrian truce.

Kissinger kept up his shuttle diplomacy for 34 days. He sent the President a dozen messages for his eyes only. Another 76 "flash" messages and 633 priority messages were also teletyped back to Washington.

The President read them all. He told friends afterward that Kissinger's messages read like a novel, as he patched together the tenuous peace in the Middle East. Several times, the negotiations seemed to break down. On the eve of the truce, the secret messages were particularly gloomy.

But in the end, the Kissinger magic prevailed.

Dirty Word: Milk has suddenly become a dirty word.

The Associated Milk Producers poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into President Nixon's re-election effort. They sought higher price supports, import quotas and an antitrust settlement. They are accused, in short, of trying to bribe the President of the United States.

The scandal has unfairly tainted everyone in the dairy industry. Yet the average dairy farmer knew as much about the dirty deals as a janitor at the Pentagon knew about Vietnam War strategy.

The dairy farmer, meanwhile, is in trouble. Milk and cheese prices are plummeting. Overhead costs are rising. And the bad publicity hasn't helped. Dairy operations are closing down all over the nation.

The political payoffs, it is now clear, have hurt more than helped the dairy industry. Other industries, which used to subsidize politicians, are now afraid of getting burned.

So all of a sudden, the politicians are having trouble raising funds from the special interests.

Sweetheart Deal? Will Charles Colson blow the lid off the White House? The former White House hatchet man recently pleaded guilty to one count of obstructing justice. In return, the Watergate attorneys agreed to drop all other charges against him.

Colson, furthermore, pledged his cooperation in the Watergate investigation. Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and his associates obviously hope Colson will produce some vital evidence. Most government lawyers we have talked to, however, think that Colson has maneuvered himself into a sweetheart deal.

First, Colson made a big splash by becoming a practicing Christian. He now attends prayer meetings and speaks believably of his "conversion." It is, of course, impossible to determine his sincerity. We can only cite the opinion of many of his closest associates. They don't believe a word of it.

Then Colson stood up in court, abashed and contrite, and declared another "conversion."

He has fulfilled his end of the bargain without giving the prosecutors what they are looking for.

— Sen. William Fulbright's primary election defeat is sure to change the Senate's foreign affairs function. He has been a Capitol Hill fixture for 32 years and has headed the Foreign Relations Committee since 1959.

Under his leadership, the committee became a foreign affairs gadfly. It challenged decisions and policies formulated at the White House. It conducted investigations all over the world. It had an incalculable role in bringing an end to American involvement in the Vietnam War.

Fulbright was a controversial figure, ready with a quiet but witty quip. He was especially disliked by fellow Southerner Lyndon Johnson. The former President dubbed him "Sen. Halfbright."

Next in line to head the committee is Alabama's Sen. John Sparkman, who now runs the Banking Committee. He has told friends privately that he will head foreign affairs and give up banking. Under his leadership, the Foreign Affairs Committee will lose its bite and cooperate more with the White House. In contrast to Fulbright, Sparkman believes in a strong defense establishment and strong alliances.

With Sparkman in charge, the committee will reduce its investigative function. When the White House wants something, there will be less advice and far more consent.

He Didn't 'Take Care': As we reported on March 7, the Watergate grand jury, by a 19 to 0 vote, named President Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Before the television cameras, the impeachment inquisitors took sharply different positions on the importance of the grand jury's action. But in the cloakrooms, there was almost unanimous agreement that the disclosure badly hurt the President.

Congressmen agreed privately that if 19 ordinary Americans decided the evidence warranted an indictment of their President, Congress would probably reach the same conclusion.

Meanwhile, 14 Nixon aides have either confessed or have been convicted of Watergate crimes. Another dozen have been indicted or expect to be indicted.

Either the President participated in the crimes, or they were committed under his nose. Whichever is true, a growing number of congressmen want to impeach him. For the Constitution declares that the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Mayor's Race Lineup: Hannon-Delahunt-LaRaia

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy's next city election is still more than a year away and a lot of things can happen between now and then but:

It looks like at least a real good three-man battle for the mayor's office. Possibly four.

Three certain candidates, it appears are: incumbent Walter Hannon, Rep. William Delahunt and Councillor Joseph LaRaia.

Hannon, unless he tires of all the headaches that go with the prestige of being mayor, will seek a third term. Delahunt has already told friends and supporters he will run regardless of whoever else gets into the race.

LaRaia, if you ask him about his plans for next year, will tell you, "it's a little too early right now."

And he smiles as he adds: "After looking at Walter Hannon's hair getting grayer, I don't know if I really would want to be mayor."

But then, getting serious he concedes: "I've gone as far as I can go as a City Councillor. I've already been City Council president."

The indication is that if he desires to step up politically he has only one place to go: the mayor's office.

LaRaia, who has been outspoken on a number of issues and has spearheaded the investigation of the Cemetery Department, is not part of a team but more of a Lone Ranger. His followers expect him to run next year—they think it's a natural political step for him to take.

The big question is whether or not Council President Arthur Tobin will make it a quartet. Insiders have said Tobin would have run last year if LaRaia had gotten into the race. If that still holds true next year, you might see Tobin a mayoralty candidate.

However, because of his senatorial duties and his rise to leadership in the Senate, many feel that he just wouldn't have the time to serve as mayor.

And it's unlikely that Tobin and Delahunt would buck one another.

But whether it's Hannon-Delahunt-LaRaia or Hannon-Delahunt-LaRaia-Tobin, it would be one of the best mayoralty races in years. The best, at least, since young Jim McIntyre took on Amelio Della Chiesa back in the late 1950's.

ACADEMY AWARD winner Ruth Gordon plans to return to Quincy for the Quincy High School Class of 1914 60th anniversary reunion.

It will be a luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club June 25—the day the class graduated in 1914.

Miss Gordon, of course, is a member of the class. Her husband, writer Garson Kanin, is an honorary class member and will attend with her.

Miss Marion Nilsen, a committee member, notes that of the original 108-member class, 51 are alive and 22 of them are planning to attend the reunion. Some of them will come from Vermont, New York, West Virginia, Maryland, Florida and California.

That's what you call a "young at heart" class.

A CAMPAIGN DANCE for Atty. Thomas Williams, candidate for the First Norfolk District state representative seat, will be held Friday night, 8 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

QUINCY Reps. Thomas Brownell and William Delahunt are among 30 representatives and senators who have endorsed Rep. Paul Guzzi of Newton for Secretary of State.

YOU'RE A YOUNG old-timer if you can remember having a coke at the Alhambra Tea Room and listening on the jukebox to Bob Eberly, and Helen O'Connell singing with Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra. A big hit of the day—"Your's".

COUNTY COMMISSIONER George McDonald of Quincy launched his campaign for sheriff of Norfolk County recently at a meeting of some 275 volunteer workers from Quincy and five South Shore towns at the Hollow Restaurant, Quincy.

McDonald, a former Quincy city councillor, stressed in his talk to the workers the need for proven administrative experience in county government and familiarity with court and jail security as prime qualifications for the sheriff's post.

Quincy coordinator for McDonald's campaign is his brother, Thomas P. McDonald.

Garbage-Trash Controversy

decrease in services to the people.

"For only 18 cents per week, each household in Quincy has the option of using a garbage pickup service.

"The cost in smell and inconvenience of storage in the hot summer, and cold and inconvenience in the winter far exceed 18 cents each week of two or three cents a day.

"This is obviously one of the cheapest, most sanitary and useful services a city can provide its people.

"It appears the common people must always pay the price for economy and change even if it's unwise and unnecessary.

"The administration will take the 18 cents and spend it elsewhere while the people will be left with the responsibilities and garbage of this problem. In a city where the mandate to govern comes from the people, this should not be."

Sheets said that residents concerned about dump problems will meet Sunday [June 23] at 7:30 p.m. in St. Mary's Parish Hall in West Quincy to discuss further steps in the controversy.

Meanwhile, Mayor Hannon said he plans to have a team of inspectors from the Department of Public Works precede the pickup trucks when mixed collections start to investigate conditions at the collection points.

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti said the inspections will begin July 1 and continue for 30 days.

The inspectors, he said, will check the condition of containers at curbside, advise residents on the placement of receptacles and check animal activity in the area.

In addition, he said, his department will be ready to respond to any difficulties the rubbish contractor may have with curbside collections.

Ward 2 Civic Assn. Bean Supper Saturday

The Ward 2 Civic Association will hold its annual bean supper Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse to help raise funds for the July 4 celebration. Tickets at 99 cents each will be available at the door or by calling Tom Williams at 773-6791.

Members of the Committee are:

Mary Lyons, Phyllis Bagen, Ted DeCristofaro, Nina Mayo, Joe Ericson, Ken Wilson and Owen Eaton.

Living, Today

'What's Happened To Affection?'

Everyone needs to be loved ... everyone needs someone to love. A person is not complete without the interpersonal relationship of love. Of course ... it all starts by loving oneself ... for until one loves oneself one can't love another person. One's own reservoir of love must overflow to other persons ... or the gestures of love will be phony.

Let's look at Sonya and Derek. They've been married 12 years ... have two children. He's a graphic artist ... she's a teacher. They have everything ... except happiness. "He just shows me no affection at all" ... complained Sonya. "The only time he shows any tenderness is in bed ... and that makes me feel used. Why can't he show a little affection at other times?"

I turned to Derek ... "How do you answer her question?" I asked. "I don't know ... just never think of it" ... was his reply.

It's a sad thing when lovers stop touching ... kissing ... showing affection. This seems to be what happens in too many marriages ... men become "meal tickets" ... women become "house maids". When romance dies something has gone out of the relationship.

"Let me suggest some ways to restore the warm ... loving relationship which brought you two together" ... I said to Sonya and Derek. First ... TALK ABOUT YOUR FEELINGS. Too many couples don't know what each other feels. "I thought he didn't want to be bothered when he's reading in the evening" ... Sonya said. "I thought she had quit loving me" ... Derek said. So ... since they didn't communicate their feelings they didn't realize that each wanted each other ... but each was turning the other off. They grossly misunderstood each other ... because they didn't talk.

My second suggestion ... GET RID OF THE INHIBITIONS TO TOUCHING AND KISSING. Let each other know physically that you love him/her. Don't act like brother and sister. Act like adult male and adult female. Touching ... holding hands when driving is not just for teenagers ... it's for all people.

Thirdly ... don't get so BUSY ... so TIRED ... so INVOLVED with children and business that you fail to show affection. You'll be a happier professional or business person if you have an affectionate relationship with your wife/husband. You'll be a better mother or father to your children if your relationship with your wife/husband shows warm affection. Children benefit in seeing affection between their parents.

Sonya and Derek restored the affection which had faded. It brought new levels of happiness to them. What's happened to your affection?

Letter Box

Simple Simon And The Pieman

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The Simple Simon symbols have virtually disappeared from under the orange roofs. Quincy's late national entrepreneur of 28 flavors catered to ordinary folk and respected them.

But now, on the local scene, ordinary folk seem to be treated like Simple Simons. Can it be that Quincy has a big political boss who is a real Pieman?

The most famous Pieman of all time lived in the 16th century. He had a renowned courtier named Horner. That "good boy" "pulled out a plum" (a parcel of church real estate) from "a Christmas pie".

Jack Horner's Pieman boss was King Henry VIII of England. According to history - "by the time of his death, Henry had dissipated most of his wealth. During his reign he levied oppressive taxes and debased the coinage of the realm."

Our local Pieman (if such he is) seems to underestimate his Simple Simons. As honest citizens, they also pay state and federal taxes.

A wise U. S. President once said: "...You can't fool all of the people all of the time."

WHEN I'M A LADY INDIAN IN 1620

When I was an Indian, I had to cook and wash all the plates and cups and spoons and bowls and forks. I had to go out in the field and get corn and carrots and rice. My husband got to go and shoot deer and cattle and all different things. We went fishing and fried the fish and we had a wonderful time. We went horse back riding. Then I had a baby.
It was a beautiful little boy. He had black hair and Pow-wow [my husband] went out and hunted and I made a warm jacket for little Jack. Then one day my husband was walking and suddenly along came a bull!
My husband took one shot and he fell down dead. When he came back he had the bull and we made moccasins out of his skin and we cooked the meat and we had corn, rice, and bull meat. The next morning we woke up and pow-wow was gone! That night he came home with a sack full of fish and jack went running to him. We had fish and we had our tee-pee up and then we had a lovely time the rest of our lives. The End.

Confidence In A Financial Institution Is Priceless

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLUMBIAN FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Confidence in a financial institution is a fragile thing, as vulnerable to rumor as the virtue of a woman. Like Caesar's wife, a financial institution must be above suspicion. Its standards of performance must be impeccable for the protection of its reputation. But even then, a financial institution can be endangered by unfounded gossip.

That is why the laws are strict and the penalties severe with respect to statements derogatory to banking institutions.

The recent experience of a Chicago institution illustrates the panic that false rumors can create and recalls the observation of Bernard Baruch that a tolerably reasonable and sensible man becomes a blockhead as a member of a crowd.

Officials of this institution had no inkling as they opened its doors on a Friday morning that by closing time Saturday frantic customers would queue up in long lines to withdraw more than $3 million of their savings.

Despite assurances of officers, the Federal Home Loan Bank, and the Illinois State Commission, the outflow was not halted until the Governor paid a visit late on Monday and deposited $800 of his own money as a show of confidence. On Tuesday, things were back to normal, and savers sheepishly trickled back to redeposit some of the $3.5 million they had withdrawn. Many suffered losses of income because their certificates of deposit were subject to penalties for withdrawal prior to term. "I lost my head," many admitted.

A professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago made the obvious comment that economic institutions are "most vulnerable to rumor because they are so valuable to our security."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, and the Cook County States Attorney's office were tracking down the source of the rumor as this was written.

If depositors had kept their heads, they would have realized that their accounts were insured up to $20,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States Government. As we have repeatedly noted, not a single penny has ever been lost in an FSILC-insured account. In the entire history of the FSILC over the past four decades, there have been only 19 cases of default among its member institutions. In every one of these 19 instances, every depositor received his full amount of principal and interest by check within ten days of three weeks of filing application.

These people therefore could have avoided a weekend of mounting anxiety and blood pressure by simply using their common sense. But then, as Bernard Baruch observed, people in crowds are blockheads.

Quincy High Students Witness Court Cases

Members of Nicholas Anciello's Contemporary Issues Class at Quincy High School met recently with personnel of Quincy District Court and observed actual trials.

Sue Wintermeyer, Ron Hartikka, John Kasianowicz, Edward Houton, Donna Eisen, Brenda Sullivan, Jane Ahola, Debra Alpert, Lauren Scarnici, Jo-Ann Vaudo and Don Butler met with Presiding Justice Robert Prince, Asst. Dist. Atty. Martin Fisher, Probation Officers Joseph Conway and

Nicholas Trifone, Court Clerk Dennis Ryan, court stenographer Frank Moran and Atty. Thomas Kiley.

The visit was coordinated by William McPhee, administrative assistant to Dist. Atty. George G. Burke.

Student comments on the visit called it a worthwhile learning experience and that the people involved were cordial and receptive to their questions. Many expressed a desire to return on their own.

Blue Hill Girl Scouts Council To Operate 7 Camps

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council will operate seven locally-run day camps this summer for girls in grades 1-12.

All girls, not just Scouts, are invited to plan and carry out their own program and improve their outdoor skills under qualified supervision close to home.

Day camps are as much fun as resident camps, and more convenient in some ways. The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council day camps in Weymouth, Cohasset, Needham, Milton, Randolph and Westwood serve girls in surrounding communities while Boston girls attend camp in Waltham by bus.

Daily routine includes nature walks, bicycling, hiking, outdoor cooking instruction, arts and crafts, dramatics, songs and games, and in some instances Red Cross swimming instruction.

Younger girls in grades one through three discover songs, games, and new friends while participating in nature crafts and hikes.

Junior-age girls, grades four through six, practice outdoor skills and explore nature. They are allowed to plan and carry out programs in which they have special interests.

Girls in junior high school work on badge activities and try to master more specialized camping skills.

Finally, high school age girls begin planning programs for the younger campers and supervising them. This is known as Program Aide and is a stepping stone to becoming a counselor.

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council also operates two resident camps, Camp Dorothy Carlton in Plymouth and Camp Favorite in Brewster, where girls can have the experience of living away from home while enjoying the full range of resident camp activities.

For more information on both the day camps and resident camps, contact the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council at 57 Revere Road in Quincy, 472-5960.

North Winds Up Best Track Season In Years

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy enjoyed its best spring track season in years and new coach Lou Tozzi is hopeful his Raiders will make a good showing when they join the strong Suburban League next year because of the speedy progress of many underclassmen this season.

North finished tied with Quincy in the Greater Boston League with a 5-4 record but was unbeaten in non-league meets and finished with an impressive 11-4 mark.

"We had only five lettermen this spring and I was very pleased with our performances," Tozzi said. "We had a number of outstanding sophomores and some fine juniors who did exceptionally well and I think we can look forward to our share of success in the Suburban League starting next year. This is a very strong league and it will be a challenge for both Quincy and us."

Quincy, which had won three straight GBL titles and had a 21-meet win streak going into this year, finished 6-4 overall but Coach Tom Hall was pleased with several outstanding performers.

"I felt we would have trouble winning another championship with Haverhill and Peabody, two of the strongest teams in the state, joining our league this year," he said.

"We had some personnel problems this year which left us without some good scorers and on the whole I was pleased with our performances."

Haverhill, incidentally, which pounded both Quincy and North, won the GBL title.

"My assistant coach, Brooks Maloof, did an excellent job this year," Tozzi said. "He is a former North athlete and is wrestling coach at Atlantic Junior High."

Despite its fine record, North's season cannot be considered a complete success as it lost again to rival Quincy for the fourth successive year.

This year's meet, won by Quincy, 74-57, was the most competitive in years with record and near-record performances by several boys on both teams.

New Sports At Senior, Junior High

When Quincy and North Quincy High's athletic teams enter the strong Suburban League next year, they will have well-rounded sports programs with the addition of several sports.

The Quincy City Council recently approved the athletic department's budget and accepted three new junior high sports and four new senior high sports.

Only one requested sport, swimming, was turned down because of the absence of certain equipment but Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone hopes to add this sport in 1975.

Girls' track will become official in the two senior high schools. Quincy had informal girls' track for three years under the coaching of Peter Gallagher and, with many of the girls still in junior high, the First Ladies should do well in the Suburban League, which already has girls' track.

Girls' field hockey and volleyball will be other new high school sports as will wrestling for boys.

Other additions will be girls' track and softball and boys' wrestling in the junior high schools.

Junior high wrestling has been operating on an intramural basis for three years under the supervision of Carmen Mariano. Last winter, a city-wide junior high tournament climaxed the season and a good deal of interest was shown with large attendances at North Quincy High and Quincy YMCA.

"I am very pleased at the acceptance of these new sports and it gives us one of the best-rounded sports programs around," Leone said.

'Learn To Swim Week' Starts June 24 At YMCA

"Could your youngster drown?"

"The best way to 'drownproof' a youngster is to teach him to swim," says George Ramsden, Executive Director of the Quincy YMCA.

"That's the basic idea behind YMCA Learn-to-Swim Week which begins June 24. Most youngsters can be taught basic swimming in five lessons using the YMCA method.

"Not only is swimming necessary for safety but it opens the way to a whole range of exciting water sports. Boating, skin-diving, water skiing—none of these should be attempted without first becoming a good swimmer.

"After five lessons using the Y method," a Y spokesman says, "beginners should be able to safely swim 30 feet and be ready for more advanced instruction. Those successfully completing the course will be awarded a YMCA certificate."

The YMCA was early in the field of water safety and has continued to teach swimming by constantly improved methods. Not only youngsters are taught to swim. Latest figures show that the YMCA taught 2,000 men, women, boys and girls to swim every day in 1972.

"In recent years, drownings have become the third leading cause of accidental deaths in the United States," noted Ramsden.

"About two-thirds of drownings took place because the victims did not know how to swim, according to statistics compiled by the National Safety Council and National Center for Health Statistics. You can take the first step toward 'drownproofing' your child or yourself, for that matter, by calling the Quincy YMCA at 479-8500 for further information."

Quincy Track Club Doing Well

When the Quincy Track Club makes its official bow within a few weeks, it is hoped to generate interest among the younger boys and girls.

Judging from unofficial QTC entries in meets in Braintree and Brockton, there will be no difficulty in this direction.

In last Monday's weekly AAU meet at Braintree several fourth graders competed for Quincy and, though none placed, they gave a good account of themselves.

Last Saturday in an AAU meet in Brockton, a fourth grader, Nancy McCarthy, won the mile run in her age group. Another Quincy winner was Kelly Tobin in the mile run in her age group.

Saturday Peter Gallagher, Quincy High girls' track coach, will bring several girls running under the QTC colors to the Junior Olympic in Falmouth.

In Monday's Braintree meet Janice Kelly won both the open 100 and the junior high 220. Karl Knudsen, a North Quincy ninth grader, won the junior high shot put, Jody Yurkstas the ninth grade high jump, Paul Doherty of North Quincy the high school shot put and three Quincy girls, Dotty Irvine, Suzanne Yee and Kelly Tobin, ran 1-2-3 in the three-mile. Dotty Irvine also was second in the 220.

Gallagher took a number of girls to the recent New England Junior girls' championships in Falmouth and was especially pleased with the 12 and 13-year olders.

In this group Nancy McCarthy was second in the mile, Patty Micelli third in the mile, Lisa Costello third in the long jump, Julie Mullen fourth in the long jump, Linda Kelleher fifth in the mile, Debbie Stanton fifth in the 100 and Ann Sullivan sixth in the 100.

In the 14-17 age group, Quincy's girls were facing much older and more experienced girls from all over New England. Susan Higgins was fifth in the discus, Janice Kelly sixth in both the 100 and long jump and Carol Hickey sixth in the javelin.

60% Of Drowning Victims Under 25 Years Old

Did you know that:

●More than 60 percent of drowning victims are under 25 years of age, reports the Quincy YMCA.

●Nearly one-third are teenagers, 15 to 19.

●Males make up 85 percent of the victims.

●July is the peak month, accounting for 20 percent of all drownings; 50 percent occur during June through August.

●Weekends account for 40 percent of drownings.

About two-thirds of drowning victims didn't know how to swim.

Nearly half the victims are alone at time of drowning.

Three-fourths of boating drownings result from capsizing or falling overboard. Factors in boating accidents include overloading and improper loading and ignoring bad weather warnings.

In recent years, drownings have become the third leading cause of accidental deaths in the United States. Drownings occur everywhere — at home, at work, in motor vehicle accidents, as well as in recreational activities.

Annual drownings have increased over the years from about 6,500 in 1960 to a present level of more than 7,300. Most of the increase has come from boating activities. Death rate by drownings is now about 3.6 per 100,000 of population. Leading cause of drownings [about two-thirds] is not knowing how to swim.

●Senior Babe Ruth

Quincy Rolls, 20-6

Quincy's entry in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League, Data Services, continues to roll and is unbeaten in four games with three wins and a tie.

In its latest outing Quincy broke a league record by exploding for 19 runs in the fifth inning to overcome a 6-1 deficit and walloped South Boston Two, 20-6.

In that inning 23 batters went to plate and produced 10 hits including two doubles by Dave Power and a 380-foot triple by Billy Pitts.

Mark Jaehnig was four for four, Pitts three for three and Eric Carrera two for two. Knuckleballing Nick Anastos received credit for the win.

Quincy earlier had upset previously unbeaten South Boston One, 5-1. Gerry Bugden scattered seven hits and struck out 11. Jaehnig paced the attack with a triple and single with his metal bat. Paul McGuigan made several fine catches in center field.

Weather And Competition Hot For AAU Track Meet

Despite a small crowd and the fact only one record was broken, the New England AAU is thinking of returning to Quincy Veterans Stadium in the future for another running of its track and field championships.

Less than 500 witnessed the recent 85th annual meet at the stadium but it was an extremely hot day with the beaches attracting record crowds.

The competition was keen with close finishes featuring most of the races and a highlight was the unofficial debut of the new Quincy Track Club, which entered several Quincy and North Quincy boys.

"I thought we would have a larger crowd but those who did come saw some fine competition," said Ralph Colson, chairman of the NEAAU. "I think one reason for only one record being broken was the fact several of these boys competed in the New England High School championships in Providence the day before and were tired."

Representing the Quincy Track Club were John MacFarlane of Quincy High in the triple jump, Geoff Hennessey of North Quincy in the hurdles and a relay team of Hennessey and Quincy's Dave DiBona, Arnie Vorrusso and Gary Delorio.

Although none of the Quincy boys placed, they made creditable showings against some of the outstanding amateur competition in New England. The relay team placed third in its heat.

Many other boys who will be joining the QTC registration is being held this week in the schools helped Coaches Tom Hall of Quincy and Lou Tozzi of North Quincy in various capacities. Hall and Tozzi assisted the many NEAAU officials in handling some of the events.

"I thought this was a fine chance for our high school boys to gain some good experience and I think they made good showings against tremendous competition," Hall said, and his comments were echoed by Tozzi.

The meet was co-sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools and the director was Carl Leone, coordinator of athletics for Quincy schools and Quincy Track Club president.

The mile run was named for the late Munroe MacLean, long-time Quincy coach and athletic director. Mrs. MacLean was the starter for the race and she presented the Munroe MacLean Memorial Trophy to the winner, Jack McDonald of the Greater Boston Track Club.

The lone record performance was by Nick Leone of Harvard in the 440. His time was 48.1, besting the 48.3 set by Joe Mulligan of the BAA in 1956.

Dan Burke of the Greater Boston Track Club, which won the team prize, won both the triple jump and long jump.

Will Rodgers of the Greater Boston club won the six-mile, Al Hall won the hammer but his top throw of 198 feet, 3 inches, was nine feet below his record; Mark Dupuis of the Bob Backus Club won both the discus and shot put, Mike Demers of the Nashua Track Club won the hurdles, Mike Kee, unattached, the 100, Dave Wilson of the Greater Boston Club the pole vault [he tied with teammate Steve Rich at 14 feet, 3 inches, but won with fewer misses], Tom Knott of North Medford the mile walk, Phil Kane of Aquidneck T. C. the half mile and Rick Rojas of Harvard the three-mile run.

Roscoe Pettito, unattached, won the javelin, Angel Nieves of the U.Mass Track Club the 220, Tim Walker of Aquidneck the high jump and Harvard the mile relay.

All eyes were on Walker, 16-year old junior at Rogers High, who the day before had done seven feet in winning the N. E. schoolboy high jump title. Forced to jump from the stadium grass, he won at 6-8 and, being tired from his Saturday performance, decided to stop there.

An unusual feature of the relay was the fact that the Milton Track Club, which took second place to Harvard, was made up of four brothers.

Arthur, Leo, Paul and John Vercollone.

A special event, the masters mile for men over 40, was won by 41-year old Gerry Harvey of the BAA. The third place finisher, Frank Kelly, is 52.

Sunday's winner will compete in the national AAU championships Friday and Saturday, June 21 and 22, in Los Angeles and the top three in each event there will make up the U.S. team which will face Russia July 15.

Man's best friend deserves the name

Man's best friend, the dog, continues to prove his claim to the title by providing clues to the nature of many human diseases, according to Cornell University Veterinary College where studies reveal that dogs suffer from various peripheral nerve diseases, some of which closely resemble recognized human paralyses.

For example, dogs may develop a generalized paralysis after fighting a raccoon, remarkably similar to the paralytic syndrome of Guillain-Barre in man and research has been undertaken to establish models for the study of human neurologic disease. — CNS

Anti-Litter, Anti-Vandalism Summer Programs Underway

Quincy's Park-Recreation Board has initiated a summer anti-litter, anti-vandalism campaign.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the City Council have joined the board in asking Quincy's young men and women to help make the campaign a success.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary reports the Park Department spends approximately $5,000 each year in materials and labor for repairs to vandalized park and playground property.

Through the summer campaign, the department hopes to decrease or eliminate vandalism costs and increase the amount of money spent on park improvements.

The Park-Recreation Board has offered several conservation guidelines to Quincy residents. The board advises against swinging on young trees, cutting the bark off trees and bushes, picking flowers without permission and walking across grass.

The board notes, too, that a fine of not more than $50 will be imposed on anyone breaking or smashing glass on any area under the jurisdiction of the Park Department.

In addition, anyone "who intentionally destroys, defaces or mars any playground shall receive a fine of not more than $100," Koch noted.

Copies of a notice seeking the cooperation of Quincy residents were distributed through students of all public and parochial schools last week.

Home planners focus in on solar energy

By JAMES M. WOODARD

Many of our nation's most inventive brains are now focusing in on practical methods to harness solar energy to heat and cool American homes.

The search for the best methods to satisfy this new market demand is evolving into one of the key technology research races of the 70s. Some housing experts are now predicting one out of ten new homes in the U.S. will be heated and cooled by sunpower by 1985.

An increasing number of research project "solar homes" are under construction—or in various stages of design. But after all the plans have been scrutinized on the drawing boards and the research experimental homes analyzed, the most practical methods of generating home heat and cool-power may be the simplest.

Looking into the crystal ball, many real estate professionals see most future homes and other buildings using some form of solar energy systems—and it's not too far down the path of future developments.

A few other countries are ahead of the U.S. in the solar energy race. Australia, for example, already has the technology to provide enough solar energy to heat all government houses in the Northern Territory. They expect to be exporting solar energy to other countries by the end of the century.

Q. Is it possible to obtain new financing on a home in a flood-danger area?

A. Probably, if you look far and long enough. However, as of last March, no federally supported lending institution can make a mortgage loan on a property located in an area subject to flooding, unless it is covered by flood insurance.

Local 90 Joins Picket Line

City's Clergy To Pray For End To Shipyard Strike

PATRIOTIC YOUNGSTERS needed little encouragement to wave the flag during the 23rd annual Flag Day parade down Hancock St. from Coddington St. to Veterans Memorial Stadium, sponsored by the Koch Club. Ceremonies followed at the stadium.

Quincy Plaque Presented To Volpe

A plaque from the city of Quincy was presented to Ambassador John A. Volpe at the dedication of the international terminal at Logan Airport in his honor.

The presentation was made in behalf of Mayor Walter J. Hannon by Guy S. Faiella, chairman of the Quincy Board of Registrars.

In making the presentation, Faiella said:

"It gives me great pleasure to present the plaque in behalf of His Honor, Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the grateful city of Quincy, population, 90,000."

A huge cake baked by Ernest Montilio of Quincy was also presented to the Ambassador.

Little Local 90 joined the larger Local 5 on the picket line at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard this week and some Quincy clergymen prepared to turn to prayer in an effort to end the 96-day-old walkout.

"We accuse management of not bargaining in good faith," said Arthur Fitzgerald, president of Shipbuilding Workers Local 90, whose 106 members went on strike when their five-year contract expired at midnight Sunday [June 16].

Meanwhile, negotiations between the company and the 1,800-member Shipbuilding Workers Local 5 limped along at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Braintree with each side accusing the other of dragging its feet.

Robert Smith, chief of industrial relations for General Dynamics, complained that both Local 5 and Local 90 were refusing to bargain at times proposed by the company.

"We ought to be meeting around the clock," he said. "There are 2,000 people on the streets and I can't understand why they [the unions] are not taking this seriously."

"I told Smith I'd be available morning, noon and night," said Fitzgerald. "We won't get anywhere unless we're talking."

"We're ready to start the sessions earlier in the morning as soon as they've got something to present to us," said Arthur Batson, president of Local 5.

Tuesday's negotiating session at the Sheraton Tara started at 8 a.m. instead of the usual 10 a.m. starting time.

As the deadlock continued, the Quincy Clergy Association scheduled an ecumenical service of intercessory prayer for the end of the strike Sunday [June 23] at 8 p.m. in St. John's Church on School St., Quincy.

Local 90's role in the strike opened Monday morning with minor incidents on the picket line at the shipyard's main gate.

"Management people tried to go through while we were picketing at the main gate," said Fitzgerald. "Some of them seemed to think they had to be heroes and they got through."

Fitzgerald said the differences between his union and the company involve money and length of contract.

"They have offered us a percentage increase which would average about $1.17 an hour over three years for about 40 per cent of our members," he said. "They want us to take a three year contract."

"We are asking a two-year contract with a $1.50 an hour increase the first year and $1 an hour for the second."

"If the company wants us to take a three-year contract they will have to give us safeguards, like wage reopeners and cost of living clauses, in these times of galloping inflation."

"They have been exploiting our people for 10 years. We have given them two long term contracts. The membership doesn't want another one."

Fitzgerald said Local 90 had 106 members working at the time of the contract expiration. They are, for the most part, office workers.

"There were about 250 members but half of them have been furloughed since Local 5 went out," he said. "When Local 5 gets up to normal we'll have about 600."

Hannon Subpoenaed In LaRaia Slander Suit

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has been subpoenaed to testify in former Cemetery Superintendent Anthony Famigletti's $200,000 slander suit against City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Declining to plead executive privilege, the Mayor said he will comply with the subpoena but he'd like to have the time [11 a.m. June 28] changed because he has a previous appointment.

The subpoena orders Mayor Hannon to appear at the office of Alphonse Query of Westwood, LaRaia's attorney, to give a deposition about the activities of Famigletti before his resignation last November.

Famigletti resigned after the Mayor learned that he had buried two relatives in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery without paying for the graves.

Legal Battle Continues

Municipal, State Laws Sought To Halt Trash - Garbage Mixing

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Walter J. Hannon's opponents moved on three fronts this week to prevent him from mixing garbage and trash in Quincy rubbish collections starting Monday, July 1.

The frenzied movements began Monday after Judge Vincent R. Brogna in Norfolk Superior Court denied Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets' bid for a writ declaring such collections in violation of a city ordinance.

The judge ruled that the ordinance, passed in 1960, was superseded by a state law, passed in 1965, which permitted the city to set up a sanitary landfill facility for rubbish.

In quick succession:

- A clarifying ordinance which would prohibit the deposit of garbage in any sanitary landfill facility in the city was introduced by Sheets at Tuesday night's special city council meeting.

- Rep. William D. Delahunt and Sen. Arthur H. Tobin began drafting a bill in the State House

MIXED TRASH-GARBAGE is strewn about at home of Wilfred Enders, 329 Center St. who said he was testing the city's planned mixed collection and disposal. The trash barrels are enclosed by a six-foot wooden fence and a four-foot high chain link fence. Dogs, raccoons or skunks are believed to have climbed or jumped the fence. The trash was there only one night.

that would amend the acts of 1965 by prohibiting the city from combining its rubbish collections.

More Parking Sought For North Quincy Shopping Area

Members of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association toured their shopping area on foot Monday inspecting the possibilities of increased parking for their customers.

They had with them, Martha Reardon, who handles community development for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

"We want to see if we can get some top level action on this thing," said NOBPA President Andrew Walsh. "We have been fighting for better parking for years and nothing has happened."

The influx of potential new shoppers among the workers at State Street South and the Kemper Insurance Co. has increased the need for additional parking space, Walsh said.

Considerable attention was paid to a 60-car parking lot at the end of Vane St. which is available but virtually inaccessible to shoppers using the North Quincy area.

"With only one poorly planned access road the parking lot might as well be in Neponset Circle," said Walsh. "If it were opened up a little more it would be fine for North Quincy."

Council To Vote On New Post At Hospital

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The City Council is being asked to create a new supervisory post at Quincy City Hospital for which the son of a councillor is "being considered".

The job of "Night Supervisor for Administration" was unanimously voted by the Hospital Board of Managers last week.

The vote came during a controversy over placing John J. Quinn Jr., son of Councillor John J. Quinn Sr., in the hospital's admitting office to "understudy" for the position vacated by retiring Catherine Higgins, RN.

Miss Dorothy Kelley of 151 Sea St., Merrymount, a 32-year employee at the hospital, the last four as a unit manager who was an applicant for the job, said she was told the job was "a political appointment". She charged not only that the job opening was not properly posted but that the job description was being tailored to Quinn.

But this week Quincy City Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine Jr. told The Sun that Quinn "will not stay" in the hospital's admitting office.

Nonetheless, Quinn is still "understudying" for the job of admitting officer, according to Paine.

Chief Admitting Officer Mrs. Margaret Godfrey confirmed that Quinn is "functioning as an admitting officer in the learning stages."

Yet his official title is "unit manager", according to Paine.

In explaining why Quinn is still an "understudying" admitting officer despite the fact he will not remain in that office, Paine said, "We haven't yet gotten to moving him out of there."

Dog Force Doubled

City Steps Up Leash Law Enforcement

Quincy is stepping up enforcement of its dog leash law.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon said this week that Police Lt. Arthur Shea and an assistant, yet to be named, will work with Dog Officer Frank Berlucchi and his now permanent assistant Howard Ainsley in enforcing the leash law. Their duties will begin on Friday.

The mayor also said that another vehicle will be added to the dog force.

The Mayor's announcement came in the wake of a petition signed by 20 Merrymount citizens complaining about biting, pack-prowling dogs and in a Page 1 article in last week's Quincy Sun entitled: "Quincy's Leash Law: Just A Piece of Paper?"

This addition of personnel and a dog truck is being federally funded by the Emergency Employment Act [IEEA], the Mayor said. This act was scheduled to phase out at the end of this month but was extended last week until March 31, 1975.

Dog Officer Berlucchi commented, "We're very fortunate to have two trucks and three acting dog officers." He said that Lt. Shea and his assistant will handle written complaints warranting a hearing.

"They will not be on the road," he said.

Hedges To Seek

Re-election As Sheriff

Norfolk County Sheriff Charles Hedges will seek re-election apparently.

The veteran Republican who has worn the sheriff's badge for nearly 14 years, has filed his nomination papers at the Secretary of State's office but he says he is still not sure he will stay in the race.

"I'm still undecided," he told The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "I have until Friday at 5 p.m. to withdraw my papers."

But those close to Hedges report he is "leaning toward running" and they are convinced he will remain in the race.

Hedges, former state senator from Quincy, has been sheriff since Dec. 27, 1960. He defeated Democrat Peter McCormack of Brookline that year to fill the unexpired term of Sheriff Samuel Wragg, a Republican, who died in office.

McCormack, a Democrat, had been named by then Gov. Foster Furcolo to fill the post until the election.

Monday News Deadline For July 3 Issue Of Sun

Because of the July 4th holiday, The Quincy Sun will be published on Wednesday instead of Thursday next week.

Church, social, youth sports leagues and other general news items must be submitted to The Sun office, 1601 Hancock St., in downtown Quincy by noon, Monday, July 1 for publication in the July 3rd issue.

'Citizen Of The Year Award'

Return Of Plan A, Founding QCA Among Curtin's Milestones

By PAUL HAROLD

The Quincy Citizens Association recently presented its first annual "Citizen of the Year Award" to the man whose name will be perpetuated by the award - Laurence J. Curtin.

"Henceforth," said QCA President Pat DiStefano, "the award will be known as the 'Laurence J. Curtin Citizen of the Year Award'."

One of the founders of the QCA in 1967, Curtin has served the city of Quincy for more than a half-century in various church, civic and fraternal organizations.

When he graduated from Boston College in 1922 he was told by one of his Jesuit instructors to "go out into the community and become a part of it." And that is exactly what he did.

Curtin was a teacher for four years before he entered politics. In his first attempt at elective office he was defeated for Ward Three councillor, but came back two years later to be elected councillor-at-large.

He served in that position for six years and as City Council president for two. He lost in a bid for Mayor, but again, two years later was elected councillor-at-large where he served for another four years. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Mayor in 1941 and then in 1959 when Quincy returned to Plan A government after eight years under Plan E [city manager].

Curtin was an outspoken opponent of the Plan E form of city government and as chairman of the Citizens Committee for Plan A, he was eventually successful in restoring the strong Mayor type of government to the city. Quincy has operated under the modified Plan A charter for the last 17 years.

"The real policy of Plan E was to borrow and spend," Curtin noted. "The city debt almost tripled in the first five years under Plan E," he said.

But in addition to the costs, he voiced opposition to Plan E because it removed the local government further from the people. All councillors were elected at-large and the city manager was appointed and not subject to the will of the people. The "Mayor" was elected by the City Council and his functions were mostly ceremonial.

Curtin continued this philosophy of bringing government closer to the people by helping to organize the QCA. In its statement of purpose, Curtin wrote that the QCA was established to "stimulate in the citizens of Quincy an active interest in governmental affairs, to increase the efficiency of popular government, to provide a forum for discussion of local, city-wide and other governmental affairs, and to provide our elected officials with the sentiments of the people on public affairs."

In short, Curtin wrote that, "not only should the government be brought closer to the people, but the people should be brought closer to the government."

Curtin again tried to involve citizen participation when the city was recently re-zoned. He served as presiding chairman of the Advisory Committee on Proposed New Zoning at its public hearings in 1970, and worked with community leaders from across the city on zoning recommendations.

Curtin has also been active in the Knights of Columbus, where he is an honorary life member. He joined Quincy Council No. 96 in 1926 and was named Knight of the Year in 1973. He is also past Grand Knight, former District Deputy and holder of the Meritorious Service Award for 1971-72.

A native and life-long resident of South Quincy, Curtin resides on Dale Ave. with his wife of 40 years, the former Margaret Brown. He has two sons, Peter Curtin of Texas and Laurence Curtin Jr. of Braintree, and seven grandchildren.

A man of principle and a man with a philosophy of government, the Curtin Award will be presented by the QCA to persons who measure up to the standard set by its first recipient - Laurence J. Curtin.

A FIRST - The Quincy Citizens Association first annual "Citizen of the Year Award" is presented to Laurence J. Curtin by QCA President Pat DiStefano. The award in the future will be known as the "Laurence J. Curtin Citizen Award", in recognition of his years of service to the City of Quincy.

Shipyard Strike In 103rd Day

By TOM HENSHAW

The 103-day strike at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard settled back into a period of watchful waiting this week.

Talks were broken off by the company last week with the comment that "negotiations are not getting anywhere."

Arthur Batson, president of striking Local 5, said company negotiators left the bargaining table with instructions "to call when we are ready to give in."

"We have no intention of calling them," he added. Shipyard President P. Takis Veliotis, in a letter to striking workers, said "no progress" has been made toward settling key issues in the dispute.

"The problem of obtaining a full day's work in return for a good and fair day's pay from everyone at the Quincy shipyard is the key element in our ability to stay in business," he said.

"We are at a loss to know what else we can do to convince the union leadership that if they want to share in the benefits of a prosperous and successful shipyard, they have to share in the responsibility for making it that."

The talks have been hung up on the issues of union stewards doing union work on company time and permitting union members to do some work outside their trades in order to reduce idle time.

General Dynamics calls it "production improvements." Local 5 calls it "shipyard mechanics," or jacks of all trades.

Youth Drop-In Center For South-West Area

The Massachusetts Office for Children has awarded the South-West Teen Council, in conjunction with Survival, a $4,000 grant to establish a drop-in center for the young people of South-West Quincy.

The teaming up of the Teen Council with the drug and youth program as a sponsor will allow the close working of the two groups in providing a much needed service to the youth of that area, a spokesman said.

The Drop-In Center concept for South-West Quincy was developed at a meeting in March of this year where a number of parents and young adults met with Quincy officials to discuss ways of coping with juvenile delinquency in the area.

Out of this meeting, a proposal to the Office for Children was developed and funding granted. The Children's Office required a sponsoring agency to monitor the program, and because of an existing relationship with the South-West Teen Council, Survival was chosen as sponsor.

The Center will be located in the basement of a building at 388 Granite St., following renovations which will take place over the summer. The drop-in center has the strong backing of Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, as well as a number of merchants and residents in the area. It will provide music, games and recreational activity for young people.

The $4,000 grant will pay for staff to supervise the Center, but will be supplemented by fund-raising activities by the Teen Council such as dances, car washes and cake sales.

Thaxter Changes Mind

Cemetery Probe May Take 2 More Months

The investigation of the Quincy Cemetery Department may go on for another two months.

Only last week, J. Blake Thaxter Jr., the Cohasset attorney who has been directing the probe, said the end was in sight.

This week, however, he changed his mind.

"There is more investigating to do," he told The Quincy Sun. "It will take a substantial time, a month or perhaps even two months."

The week before, he said he hoped to have the investigation "pretty well wrapped up" by the start of this week.

He declined to say why he changed his forecast or if any more digging would be done in the cemetery dump off Sea St. where a bone identified by a Harvard archaeologist as human was found in February.

$210,000 To Quincy For Emergency Employment Program

Quincy will receive an additional $210,000 from the U.S. Department of Labor to continue its Emergency Employment Program, it was announced jointly by Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Congressman James A. Burke.

The money will finance the program until March 31, 1975. It was supposed to be phased out June 30.

In addition, Burke announced that the city will also receive $261,500 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds to place and train unemployed people in jobs with city departments.

To get the most out of South Shore National's NOW account, don't use it.

South Shore National Bank is pleased, but with reservations, to introduce the NOW account.

No doubt you've heard of the NOW account from one or more of the savings banks, who have had this type of account for some time now. It's a savings account that offers you a check-writing privilege (usually at around 10¢ or 15¢ a privilege).

To our way of thinking, the trouble with the NOW account is that it sort of encourages people to spend their savings. Which is exactly what you don't want to do.

And that's why we've always believed in two separate types of accounts: one for savings, one for checking.

Yet, on the other hand, when you're in a bind, and your money is tied up in savings, it's good to be able to get at it fast. And that's when a NOW account is nice to have.

So now, in addition to Multistatement and our broad range of checking and savings accounts, South Shore National Bank offers you the NOW account.

Not a giant step forward, perhaps.

But we wouldn't want it said there was anything you could get at a savings bank that you couldn't get at South Shore National Bank.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Being the best stirs jealousy

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I am a saleswoman in a small town. I love my job. I have received many pay raises and bonuses, and was voted the "best salesperson" of the town and year. I'm complimented highly for my work, but there's always an undercurrent of jealousy and animosity stemming from other people which hurts me. I don't understand it. Can you help me?

M.P.

Dear M.P.:

Pity the person who comes in your store just to look around. With your sales ability, he hasn't a chance.

Your enthusiasm, seen in the long sweeping t crossing is your propelling force. It's strong, it's alive, it's contagious. You automatically transfer this magnetic trait to your customer and, before he knows it, you are wrapping his purchase — which he didn't plan to buy in the first place — and he's loving every minute of it.

You're a whirlwind of physical and emotional energy, seen in the large loop on p, your large writing, and the forward slant. When you're awake, everybody's awake.

Walking in your store means seeing you. You make a point of being different, seen in the circle i dots — just as you make it your business to be the best saleswoman in town.

You are doing a top job. You know it. Why, then, let the critics defeat you? Your tender feelings, seen in the large t and d loops, are so close to the surface that any little bump bruises them. In your efforts to be the "best" you are bound to be hurt. And in a "little" town, they hurt a "little" worse. As you try to understand that jealousies stem from inadequacies, and need help, also, remember that you're a "big city" gal in a small town store.

LADDERS CAN BE FATAL

Each year in this country from 300 to 400 people are killed and about 30,000 to 40,000 suffer disabling injuries in falls from ladders. Most of these accidents are caused by improper use rather than product defects. Here are some tips that might help.

Never paint a wooden ladder. Not only will it make it slippery but may mask a crack or serious split. Always face the ladder when going up or down, while holding the side rails. If you place the ladder in front of a door, be sure the door is locked. Don't erect a ladder in a heavy wind—wait for a calmer time. Never go away and leave a ladder against a building. A child might climb it and fall off. Resist the temptation to overreach. A good rule is keep your belt buckle between the rails. Finally, never use a step ladder as a straight ladder by leaning it folded against a wall.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

His snores don't annoy anymore

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

After 10 years, my husband's snores no longer annoy.

It's like living a block off the freeway: if the traffic stopped, I wouldn't be able to sleep.

I think of his snores as Thoreau thought of a babbling brook — a natural wonder. In my husband's case, the wonder is that he doesn't wake himself up.

But he doesn't. He not only sleeps soundly through his own racket, but has to be roused with shouts of "Fire!" and "Earthquake!" in order to get him up in the morning. And he can fall asleep in 30 seconds. He can even fall asleep standing up, like a horse.

That's why I can't understand why he persists in perpetuating the rumor that he sleeps poorly and doesn't snore.

"Just couldn't get to sleep last night," he said yesterday at the breakfast table after eight hours of nocturnal roaring. "You could have fooled me," I answered, but such subtle witticisms are lost on a man who thinks he's tossed and turned all night.

"I'm serious!" he said, spooning in his granola.

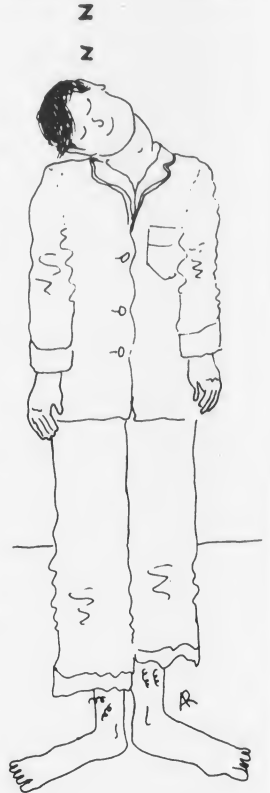

"Well, so am I," I answered. "You slept like you'd been dropped from a twenty-story building and I have witnesses to prove it."

"Yeah, dad," the kids chorused. "We heard you sleeping."

"You couldn't have heard me snoring," he answered, all dignity, "because I don't snore."

This announcement is always met with great hilarity on everybody's part except his. But he will not be convinced. And so the bleat goes on.

But, as I say, I have grown used to it now and have this advice to offer other wives who would silence their husbands: don't. You won't be able to anyway, and a good, healthy snore is the surest way I know of making sure exactly where a husband is.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Diversify your activities this week. Divide your time between family and work areas without being "scattered." A short trip over the holiday is favored. You have support from others in group activities.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Concentrate your attention on reality, not vague plans or promises. Be calm and compromising to bring peace and harmony to partnership affairs. Show appreciation of others. Adopt a cooperative spirit.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Get sufficient rest and see a doctor if health problems crop up. Shopping trips for the practical and unusual should be rewarding. Spend some time alone to be contemplative and bring emotions into balance.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 21 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Travel at this time could be frustrating and disappointing. If possible plan to spend the holiday closer to home with family and friends. Problems from the past involving finances may come up for fulfillment.

LEO: (July 22 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — This is a good time to find amusement and pleasure in public places — parks, playgrounds, community affairs. Plan to be with the one most important in your life, apart from family and children. Watch your diet.

VIRGO: (August 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — A strong possibility of money coming to you now from inheritance, extra work or a prize of some kind. Get help to complete projects on time. Use care that you do not alienate a superior by offending them.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Complete projects already underway. Take care of all routine matters in business. Resist pessimistic attitudes which reflect on your health. A "duty trip" may be necessary. Give special care to diet and rest.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Working associates are particularly helpful now. Be especially modest and dignified while accepting acclaim and recognition which could come to you now. Give thought to savings, security programs.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Your nerves may be overwrought due to an extra work load. Don't "take it out" on family and mate. An emotional attachment pursued now will demand a realistic attitude. Curb temper — be tolerant.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 18 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Reworking a previous business project may entail a trip. Be practical, patient, and pay close attention to details. Don't believe everything you hear — it could be idle gossip. Stay close to home on the weekend.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — You must reach a decision about a frustrating situation — rely on your own wisdom. Creative projects begun in the past pay off financially now. Honors and acclaim could come to you also. Be unemotional in crisis.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Cooperation from partners is lacking — they are "caught up" in their own affairs. Be patient. Stick closely to your budget and take care of routine matters. Not the best time to travel. Better times are coming.

PERSONAL

Be glad Grandma dances

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do about a 70-year-old square-dancing grandma at a wedding? My daughter is being married in June. It is to be a formal wedding with a reception following. There will be dancing and can you imagine my shock when Grandma told me that she is wearing her square-dance outfit and has told her escort to wear his?

I would be embarrassed to have her whirling around in that full skirt at my daughter's wedding. I told her the square-dance outfits were not appropriate. She replied, "You're just jealous because I still have nice legs and intend to show them."

I think she is getting completely childish to entertain such an idea. What can I do if Mom arrives in the square-dance costume complete with escort?

Frantic

Dear Frantic:

Be glad Grandma can still dance at 70 — and furnish her own escort yet! There aren't too many of us who will be able to whirl around the dance floor at that age.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I just don't know if I am doing the right thing or not. I am 24, single and have been a secretary for four years. After an unsuccessful try at college five years ago, I felt that I would never return. Now, I want to give it a second chance. The thing is that because I am so much older, I am afraid of being an outsider. I'll have to attend a junior college for two years and then go to a university. Do you think that I can start all over with no friends my own age? I do not really want to sew a cocoon around myself for four years.

Sandy

Dear Sandy:

You will make friends at school and other places as well. The age difference isn't that much. Getting back to study habits after five years is going to take hard work, but the results are worth it. Give yourself a year before you call it quits. Besides cocoons emerge as beautiful butterflies.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Three weeks ago I had an abortion. I am glad that I did, but my mother is hysterical. I am a married woman with four children. After the last pregnancy, my doctor told me that another child might come close to killing me. This last pregnancy was a total shock. My husband and I discussed our problem and made a joint decision.

After it was all over, my mother announced that she thought we had done the worse possible thing and raved on and on. The entire episode was emotional enough without her adding to it. If anything important occurs again and she finds out about it, how can I shut her up?

Hurt

Dear Hurt:

If she ever offers her opinion again and you feel that it will only hurt the situation, simply say, "Mom, we value your opinion but the decision has been made and we do not intend to change it." The conversation should end right there.

Maria proves you're never too old to fly

A recent flight between Philadelphia and San Juan, Puerto Rico was notable for two reasons — it was the first scheduled 747 service between those cities and carried a passenger believed to be the oldest to have flown in a superjet. Maria Kusano, needing neither glasses nor help boarding the plane, went aboard for the most spacious air travel she had enjoyed in her 120 years.

How To Feed The Snack Habit Without Going Broke

Keeping the kids of America in snacks is always a major problem, as any homemaker knows, but it peaked to disaster proportions last week as the schools sent their charges home for the summer.

Most of them headed right for cupboard and refrigerator, and food bills jumped again.

Introduce them to fresh, uncooked vegetables, suggests the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA].

Home gardeners in the Bay State should be starting to pick radishes, fresh peas, scallions and lettuce about now, and they all make good eating right from the ground. Fresh peas, especially, can be as addictive as peanuts; radishes and scallions go well with cottage cheese as well as alone. And whether you grow them yourself or buy them at the market, they'll cut your snack bill in half.

With cookies at astronomical prices, and dry cereals well over 50 cents a box, drastic measures are necessary to keep the cupboard from going bare. One good way, suggests the MDA, is to avoid those purchases, and to keep a supply of fresh, raw vegetables as the only alternative. Since most kids will eat anything that won't eat them, it just might work.

DON'T BOIL THE VEGETABLES

Many cooks make the mistake of overcooking their vegetables, says the MDA. Boiling them does the most damage, yet it is the most common error made. Most of the mineral salts in vegetables are easily dissolved in water, and the vitamins are destroyed by overheating, by prolonged exposure to air while cooking, and by dissolving in the cooking water. When the water is drained off and discarded, most of the good things in the vegetables are thrown away.

Don't drown the vegetables in water. Only the smallest amount should be used - never more than just enough to cover the contents - and it should be boiling rapidly when the vegetables are dropped in. The heat should be reduced when they get to boiling temperature, and cooked only until just tender. Check them occasionally for tenderness to satisfy, rather than putting them on the range for a specified time.

Properly cooking vegetables is not a matter of time, but of taste.

Thayer Trustees Elect New Officers

The Board of Trustees of Thayer Academy have elected new officers for the coming year.

They are: Frederick H. Brandenburg, 38 Newbert Ave., South Weymouth, president; Everett P. Grossman, 51 Pickwick Rd., West Newton, vice-president; Mrs. John Bleakie, 135 Border St., Cohasset, secretary; Gifford R. Dean, 25 River Rd., Cohasset, treasurer.

Eleanor Corey Completes Duty

She drills one weekend a month with the Naval Air Reserve Unit, in addition to the annual two weeks active duty for training.

Barbecue Takes Oriental Twist

Like other great American traditions, the barbecue gains a lot from the addition of flavors from all over the world. Try outdoor cookery with an Oriental touch. The menu, created by home economists at La Choy Food Products, includes frozen egg roll appetizers, grilled and dipped into bottled Oriental sauces, chicken grilled with buttery wine sauce, and Chinese pea pods.

Lydon Would Trade Hospital Addition For Playground

Ward 3 City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. is trying to work a trade - a Whitwell St. addition to Quincy City Hospital for a playground on nearby Glendale Rd.

Hospital expansion northerly along Whitwell St. was tabled at a recent Council meeting until it was determined whether a playground across Whitwell St. was permanent park property.

If it wasn't, the council feared it might be taken as a hospital parking lot.

It turned out that the land had been made a permanent park by the Council in 1967 but a playground on Glendale Rd. was on hospital-owned land on loan to the city temporarily.

So, tomorrow night [Friday] the hospital addition will come off the Council's table if the hospital will transfer its playground to the city as a permanent park.

"It's the only park area in the community," said Lydon. "We'd hate for the community to lose it as a playground."

City, State Laws Sought To Halt Trash-Garbage Mixing

Keating, went to the law books to decide whether to appeal Judge Brogna's decision to the Massachusetts Supreme Court or ask for a jury trial on the merits of state law over city ordinance.

Meanwhile, Mayor Hannon went ahead with his plans to start the combined collections Monday [July 1].

The city ordinance that figured in Judge Brogna's ruling specifies that "No person shall deposit in any dump, public or private, any animal or vegetable material, or other material which shall become a breeding place for rodents, flies or vermin."

The ordinance submitted Tuesday night specifically prohibits garbage, whether or not it breeds rodents, flies or vermin.

Delahunt said the bill that he and Tobin plan to file with the state legislature will prohibit combined collections.

"I'm sure that with myself and Arthur behind it, it will get favorable attention from the legislature," he said.

Tobin said the bill might be filed as early as Wednesday but Delahunt said it might not go into the legislative hopper as a late filed bill until next week.

Sheets, who is a leader in the fight against the combined collections, said the reverse in Judge Brogna's court will not halt the battle.

"We have every intention of continuing the fight," he said. "The will of the people should stand. We will fight until there is no alternative left."

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers questioned whether the state law of 1965 was intended to allow the dumping of garbage in the Quincy city dump.

"I feel it was drafted solely to make available to Quincy a sanitary landfill for rubbish," he said, "but it inadvertently included garbage."

The City Council unanimously passed a resolution June 3 opposing the mixed collections but Mayor Hannon ignored it when he ordered the collections to begin July 1.

All of the councillors, except John J. Quinn, attended a meeting Sunday at St. Mary's Parish Hall in West Quincy at which a committee called Citizens Against Combined Collections was formed. An estimated 300-400 residents were on hand.

Norman Forde of Wollaston was named chairman.

Forde said some 50,000 flyers were passed out over the weekend throughout the city in opposition to the plan.

"People who live a distance away from the dump may be apathetic about the issue," said Forde. "We are trying to point out to them that there is going to be raw garbage placed with trash in all sections of the city."

According to Berlucci, Ainsley will cruise the rubbish route and pick up stray dogs. Berlucci himself will man the other truck to answer citizen complaints.

Berlucci reported that the answering service at the dog pound was stolen Sunday evening. He said that this loss will "give an extra burden to the Police Department."

The $800 answering service had to be paid for over a two-year period, Berlucci said. "I just don't know where we'll get another $800," he sighed.

Berlucci said that since January, 1974, 255 written complaints have been serviced, 255 citations have been issued to dog owners and roughly 325 dogs have been destroyed.

Mayor Hannon reported that over the past two years, only three Quincy residents have been taken to court on criminal dog complaints and six Quincy residents have been involved in hearings.

Last Friday, Larry Calley, 16, of 28 Curtis St. was bitten in his right leg by a German shepherd owned by John Lombardo of 301 Adams St. The wounds were deep, requiring 25 stitches.

According to Berlucci's report on the incident, the dog was restrained on a running lead, allowing him to run forward 50 yards and move 12 feet to the right or left.

In his report Berlucci said there was a "Beware of Dog" sign posted 50 yards before the area where the dog was restrained. Young Calley told The Sun that he knew of the Lombardo dog and that he looked for him when he entered the yard. Calley said that he did not see the dog who was apparently "hiding". The dog then ran at Calley, biting him in the right leg.

According to Berlucci's report, Lombardo attempted to warn Calley as he approached.

The Lombardos reportedly keep the German shepherd as a watch dog, for their home was once broken into, costing the family $85,000 in losses.

Calley was unable to say whether a formal complaint would be filed with the dog officer. But he did comment, "A dog shouldn't be that vicious."

Another incident occurred last Wednesday.

A Boston terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chandler of 320 Belmont St., Wollaston was reportedly "mauled" by one or more German shepherds.

According to Mrs. Chandler, her dog, usually restrained, wandered to another block where the incident occurred.

She added that on one occasion when she was walking her leashed dog, the pup was attacked by one of the same German shepherds.

Chandler said that the dog was hospitalized five days and required "over a dozen stitches" to mend the gashes. "They were deep wounds," said Chandler, "not just nips."

The incident occurred at 7:15 p.m. last Wednesday, but according to Chandler, the dog officer did not answer his call until 36 hours later.

"It's not right," Chandler commented, "that it takes 36 hours to answer a phone call."

"I realize they [the dog officers] are hampered," he continued, "but something has to be done. People are even afraid to walk their dogs. We're at the mercy of the dogs."

Chandler said that he asked Berlucci for "increased surveillance in the area."

City Clerk John Gillis noted that at one time, dog owners registering their pets used to receive a copy of the leash law to read. The practice, however, was discontinued three or four years ago, said Gillis, because "it didn't seem to make much difference" whether owners read the law or not.

Gillis said the dog problem is "a matter of enforcement." But he emphasized, "to penalize one man out of a city of 90,000 is just not fair. What is needed is about four assistants to help out the dog officer."

Gillis' prediction was almost exact. Berlucci will now have three men assisting him.

Mayor Hannon, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, Police Chief Francis X. Finn and other interested parties were scheduled Wednesday, to discuss the dog situation.

Local Politicians Should Say 'Thank You' To Guy Faiella

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy politicians may not realize it, but they should say "thank you" to Guy Faiella the next time they see him.

A nice "thank you" to him for not running for office.

The new chairman of the Quincy Board of Registrars has—get this—292 nephews and nieces, most of them living in Quincy and most of them pretty well known.

In addition to Faiella's, they include such well known families as the Pettinelli's, DeNicola's, Sandonato's, Giglio's and Pasquales.

Imagine the work force—and votes—he could put together as a candidate. He has mustered quite a few votes for candidates down through the years but he could really pile them up for himself if he ever tosses his own hat into the ring.

WELL, Fr. Joseph Downey, popular pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, won't have to play traffic officer much longer.

A set of traffic lights with push-button will be installed in front of the church within two or three months. The state DPW, following a special appeal from Senator Arthur Tobin, put the O.K. on the lights.

Fr. Downey for the past couple of years has stepped out onto busy Washington St. after Mass to stop the cars so parishioners—especially the elderly—could get across the street safely.

EDDIE SCOLAMIERO, the West Quincy "Yankee Clipper" has bolted the Democratic party. After 52 years as a Democrat—including service as chairman of the Ward 4 Democratic Committee—he is now an Independent.

Eddie says he switched for "reasons of his own". Insiders say, however, the big reason has to do with someone he once nominated for office and whom he feels "let him down".

INCIDENTALLY, there's a non-political note about Eddie, too. He reports that men's long hair is on the way out. The new style: about as short as men wore it back in the 1920's. And, says he, even crew cuts are returning. It won't be long before any guy wearing shoulder length hair will be called a dilly. [Well, it's about time we got back to separating the men from the women].

A RECENT ELECTION in North Weymouth shouldn't hurt James Papi, candidate for the First Norfolk District state representative seat.

His sister, Mrs. Gloria Kelly was elected to the board of directors of the North Weymouth Civic Association. And, of course, the First Norfolk District this year includes two North Weymouth precincts.

THE FUND RAISER for Clifford Marshall, Norfolk County sheriff candidate, was "rained in" at State Street South Sunday. The event had to be moved from the courtyard to the cafeteria. But the rain didn't put a damper on the SRO crowd that turned out. Sunday, incidentally, was his wife, Louise's, birthday.

SOCIAL-POLITICAL ITEM: The South Shore Women's Caucus's Progressive Dinner Party was such a success reports Chairperson Kathy O'Donnell, the gals are already planning for the next one.

The event was held at the homes of Grace Rutan, Kathy Roberts and Donna Roberts.

WHICH REMINDS ME: Don't know about you but I just can't get used to calling someone a chairperson. I can't help thinking it's someone who looks like a chair. What's wrong with the good old fashioned chairman or chairwoman? [And, I'll hear about that.]

PAUL HAROLD of Adams Shore, president of the Massachusetts Young Democrats, reminds you that the Democratic party's third national telethon will be aired from 10 a.m. Saturday to 7 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Harold is one of the area coordinators for the telethon.

PAUL ANDERSON of South Quincy is serving as deputy campaign manager for Josiah Spaulding, GOP candidate for Attorney General. Anderson was campaign manager for Councillor Joseph LaRaia in 1971 and 1973.

THERE'S ANOTHER LOCAL candidate for sheriff but it won't change anything here. He's Ben Lockart, former Houghs Neck resident, and he's running not in Norfolk but Hamden County. He's the head of the Agawam town meeting and has served as chaplain of the county jail for the past 18 years.

NOSTALGIA DEPT: Good Friend Hector Pelletier, says you're an old timer if you remember when cars and telephones had to be cranked.

In 1886, Steven Brodie jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge to win a $200 bet!

Comments On Dredging At Black's Creek

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Read with some interest the feature article in the June 20th Quincy Sun relative to the Black's Creek Dredging program. It was most interesting to note that the project which at the time of its passage by the City Council was hailed as a flood control project has now become "a part of a revitalization and beautification program" with the major emphasis being placed on its effect of the boating program. Brief mention is made about how the project will "also" alleviate flooding conditions.

To the tune of $827,420, it appears [in the words of a letter written in the same issue of The Sun] "Simple Simon" has again been taken by the "pieman". This time he even has a henchman in the person of the MDC. Unfortunately "Simple Simon" pays both!

'My 40th High School Reunion'

What a week-end! I've just returned from my 40th High School class reunion. On everyone's lips were the words "I can't believe it ... 40 years ... seems only yesterday."

The time has gone fast. We graduated in depression years. Jobs were hard to get. Many went on to college ... $37.50 per semester at University of Kansas ... and worked our way through summer time jobs at $1.00 per day. Then the war years ... and some didn't return.

In spite of their start in the depression years of the 30's some of the class had made it big ... wheat farmers ... a school superintendent ... a couple of lawyers ... a funeral director ... a University professor ... food store owners ... insurance men ... a librarian ... a newspaper man ... two M.D.'s ... a military officer ... and a marriage counselor (you know that alumnus). Some had already achieved retirement ... and were living happy ... tranquil lives. Some were divorced. One lady had been in a wheel chair with polio since 1954.

I had some strong impressions concerning my High School Reunion. One was that the girls didn't seem quite as pretty as they were 40 years ago ... but much more attractive as persons. Some alumni were fatter ... some baldier. It was so obvious that some of our same personality characteristics hadn't changed. The quiet ones were still quiet. The talkers still talked. The jokers still joked.

Most of these fine people appeared healthy and affluent. They flew in from all parts of the country to the Reunion ... or drove in from big Kansas ranches in their Mark IV's or Cadillacs. Long distance calls came in from some alumni who couldn't be present.

My strongest impression was that whatever any of us hadn't done we BETTER GET AT IT. Time is running out for this class.

But ... isn't this true for you too? Whatever it is that we've wanted still not realized, it may be wise either to change your goal ... or regroup your forces toward achievement of your goal. Happiness ... personal freedom of action ... better marriage relationship ... greater financial security ... stop making excuses ... time is running out.

Rep. William Delahunt To Seek Re-election

Rep. William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy] announces he is a candidate for re-election.

Delahunt presently shares the Third Norfolk District with Rep. Joseph Brett; but under the recent legislation redistricting, Delahunt will be running from the new Fourth Norfolk District, which includes West Quincy, Wollaston, and a precinct in the Montclair section of Quincy.

Delahunt, 32 and a life-long resident of Quincy, is married to the former Katharina Hermani and the father of a daughter, Kirstin Anna, 2.

He graduated from Thayer Academy [cum laude] and Middlebury College with an AB in political science. He received his Doctor of Jurisprudence from Boston College Law School and a post graduate certificate of study from the Dante Alighieri Institute in Rome, Italy.

Delahunt served on the Quincy City Council as the Ward 5 councillor from 1971 to 1973 but did not seek re-election to the City Council stating he wished to devote full time to his duties as a state representative. Delahunt was chairman of the Park and Recreation committee and the Council's Committee on Drug Abuse.

A first term representative, Delahunt is a member of the Joint Committee for Election Laws and was instrumental in the passage of several major campaign reform measures. He has sponsored and supported reform legislation relative to the electoral process, the state tax structure, and citizen participation in the political process.

Common Cause, an independent citizen watchdog agency, publicly commended Delahunt for his voting record and ranked him as one of the outstanding legislators in the South Shore area.

Delahunt is considered by many as the leading pro-life legislator in the House of Representatives as a result of his efforts this year in behalf of legislation he co-sponsored with Massachusetts Citizens for Life. His reputation in this controversial area led to his recent appointment by House Speaker, Daniel M. Bartley, as chairman of a legislative commission reviewing medical research involving experimentation on human subjects. Delahunt indicated this commission would commence hearings late this summer.

Delahunt also drafted and co-sponsored legislation which allowed Norfolk County to purchase the Wollaston Golf Course as an alternative to development of the 92 acres. This purchase has been completed and plans to develop this site as a multi-purpose recreational area are proceeding.

Quincy Young Republicans Urge:

Do Not Judge GOP By 'Actions Of Few In Washington'

Quincy Young Republicans urges residents not to judge the Republican Party on "the actions of a few in Washington."

The organization drew up a consensus resolution signed by 11 members of the club. The statement reads:

"We urge citizens and voters of Quincy to remember that the actions of a few in Washington do not reflect the principles and practices of grass roots Republican organizations and Republican candidates in the State of Mass., and secondly we hope that every citizen will give fair consideration to Republican candidates this fall on their merits and not unfairly label them as co-conspirators in Washington."

The Young Republicans recently held their third annual dinner. Guest speaker was Rep. Peter Anthony Velis of Westfield. Velis, a Republican, was elected last October from 5th Hamden District - a Democratic district by a 5-1 ratio. He campaigned on the slogan, "Look at me as a man - not as a Republican."

Addressing the Young Republicans, Velis said, "The President has conveyed the impression of being dishonest, whether there is proof or not."

He continues, "Whether the President is impeached or not, the press has achieved its goal.

The American people will forgive a mistake but never forgive a liar. We have a cross to bear."

The Young Republicans, chartered by the Republican State Committee, is headed by John Slomkowski, a 1972 delegate to the Republican National Convention. According to Slomkowski, the organization's goals focus upon "bringing young people into the Republican Party and training them as Republican workers."

Louise Curl, secretary of the organization, added that Young Republicans try to "fund campaigns of young Republican candidates" and to "promote a two-party system."

16 Police Officers Receive Commendations

Sixteen Quincy police officers have received a total of 19 official commendations for acts of heroism or exceptional police work during the past year.

Ten of the commendations were awarded for the exploits of nine officers during a fire that swept through an apartment house at 12-14 Chubbuck St., Quincy Point at 3:44 a.m. on Jan. 14, 1974.

Officer Lawrence Kelly was cited twice and officers Thomas Connors, William Buccella, Henry Bradley, Vincent Flaherty, Joseph Murphy, Francis Kane and Thomas Frane and Sgt. John Malvesti once each for "courage and disregard of their own safety."

Ambulance crewmen Buccella and Bradley along with Connors, Murphy, Kelly and Flaherty fought through heavy smoke to remove two women from the blazing building and apply oxygen.

Then, when they discovered an invalid woman still in the building, Connors climbed back into the building and was overcome by smoke. Buccella went in and brought the woman out.

Kane, Frane and Kelly extricated an unconscious man from a second story room and administered cardiac massage and oxygen. The man died, however.

Officers John Barnes and John Garofalo also received double commendations.

They rescued a man from the frigid waters of Quincy Bay on the early morning of Nov. 17, 1973, Garofalo suffering from exposure when he swam with a rope to the man, whose boat had capsized off Moon Island.

In the early morning hours of March 3, 1974, Garofalo and Barnes chased a holdup car from North Quincy to Dorchester where they captured two men suspected of holding up Eddie's Diner on Southern Artery.

Officer Robert Edgar was cited for good police work for his arrest on Dec. 17, 1973, of a man suspected of having sexually assaulted a young girl on Granite St.

Officer Richard Crespi received his commendation for his arrest of a man charged with passing a bad check in the South Quincy Savings Bank March 5, 1974, and his apprehension of the man's accomplice the next day.

Sgt. Michael Barry was commended for his capture of suspects in a housebreak at 67 Cedar St. on March 7, 1974 by chasing their car into Dorchester and making the arrest at gunpoint.

Officers Robert Curtis and John McDonough were cited for their rescue of two children from their burning home at 12 Yardarm Lane, Germantown, on April 10, 1974. McDonough revived one of them with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Pat DiStefano Elected Adams School PTA President

Pat DiStefano was elected president of the Adams School PTA at its last meeting of the school year.

Other officers elected included:

Frank Derbes, vice president; Mrs. Franny Fay, recording secretary; Mrs. Diane Connolly, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret Doherty, treasurer; Jim Duggan, auditor; Ken Geno, publicity.

Mrs. Sally Miller, programs; Mrs. Kathy Gangi, hospitality;

Mrs. Ann Doyle, membership; Mrs. Peg Byrne, Mrs. Roberta Geno, and Mrs. Janet Obert, refreshments; Mrs. Pat Bates, Mrs. Joanne Casey, Mrs. Nancy Chevalier, Mrs. Gerry Jolley, Mrs. Terry Shea, and Mrs. Joan Carreira, ways and means.

Tony Porcaro [one year], Mrs. MaryAnn McMahon [two years] and Dennis Obert [two years] were named to the P.A.B.; and Mrs. Kay McRudin and Mrs. Marylou Sirois were elected to fill vacancies on the executive board.

Council To Vote On New Executive Post At Hospital

Paine did not say what Quinn's new position would be. However, he did acknowledge that Quinn is "being considered" for the new post, of "Night Supervisor for Administration".

The Board of Managers, in issuing its decision last week, directed Paine to "establish" the new position. But Paine has said the job must now be "created" through an ordinance by the City Council. He said the ordinance had not yet been introduced.

Paine also said that the Board of Managers will recommend a salary for the position to the City Council.

But Board Chairman Gino Marini, said that Paine will decide the salary of the new job by comparing the salaries of similar jobs in area hospitals. Marini emphasized that this job will not be one in the $14,000 bracket. Hospital rumors had young Quinn in line for a $14,600 job.

According to the Board's statement, this job was established in order "to resolve existing supervisory administrative problems evenings."

Atty. George Tull, member of the board, said the new position will "relieve the Director of the non-medical sides of administrating the hospital."

According to the job description, the "Night Supervisor for Administration" will oversee the departments of maintenance, housekeeping, power plant, security and "other duties relative thereto."

No one, however, has been selected for the job. Paine said, "No decision has been made officially." He continued:

"In a normal course of events, I would make a recommendation and the Mayor would make the appointment. I'm not sure how normal the situation is."

According to Marini, Paine will name the first "Night Supervisor for Administration." Marini said, "We authorized the Director to fill the position. We gave him guidelines as to what we want."

He continued, "If he [Paine] comes up with the wrong fellow...we'll do something about it."

Marini noted that the hospital's new budget begins July 1. "I assume," he said, "that the job will begin around that time."

Paine also said that a job description for a temporary admitting officer will be posted very soon. This position must be filled by an RN, he said. The hospital needs extra help in the admitting office during the summer, Paine said.

Yet the job, at this point, is only temporary.

"This is the thinking now," Paine said. "Whether it [the job] will go beyond the summer or not, I'm not sure."

We the undersigned being residents of Quincy Point, petition the City of Quincy to demolish the derelict buildings located on the corner of Washington Street and Southern Avenue, an encroached citizens of Quincy Point, we urge the City of Quincy to widen the street at this corner to help relieve the heavy traffic congestion in that area. "John L. Williams"
John L. Williams, 1973

Dear Mayor Williams:

The residents of Quincy Point desire that you put on the top of your agenda, the taking or purchasing of the corner of Washington St., and the Southern Avenue.

At a neighborhood meeting it was proposed that the land be put back to the City and a small park to be the Robert L. Williams area on Spring Road to be created.

The residents of Ward 11 have been requesting that the City clean up this corner since 1968.

Our neighborhood has greatly been improved via the Quincy Point Improvement, private development and home ownership. However, the blight of that corner which is the entrance to our City will remain.

We have heard many excuses about why the property is still in the condition that it is in but all seem ludicrous. The residents of Quincy Point do not want the building on the corner "saved" they want it demolished.

I have in the past talked to Samuel Valenti, the owner of said property and he has expressed a willingness to sell. The City and State through their "Red Tape" have indeed, saved the blight to have occurred. The reason for this is, Mr. Valenti had started at least 10 to renovate the building but was informed that they were to be taken and thus he ceased improving the property.

Our Community wants to be one of the finest in the City with its proper and appearance and your help as our Mayor is needed now in this town.

Very truly yours,
Thomas F. Williams

When Tom Williams makes a promise, he follows through. Tom Williams has spoken out, sent letters and presented petitions to tear down the blighted buildings at Baxter Corner. Tom Williams will continue his fight to tear down Baxter Corner and to improve the quality of all neighborhoods in the First Norfolk District.

At South Shore Music Circus

Harry James At Cohasset Sunday Night

Loretta Lynn Charms Audience, Hank Williams, Jr. Has 'Em Humming

By MARJORIE CALDERWOOD

Country-Western singer Loretta Lynn has known better opening nights.

But any disappointment in her performance vanished as the departing, sell-out crowd left the South Shore Music Circus at Cohasset Monday night humming the tunes crooned by Hank Williams Jr.

Williams opened the show Monday night, singing a host of his late father's timeless and touching songs. He also sang several tunes less familiar to the audience, but the applause was still warm and deserved. Among the audience favorites were "Your Cold, Cold Heart," "Hey, Good Lookin'," "Your Cheatin' Heart," and "So Lonesome I Could Cry."

After a short intermission, Loretta Lynn came on stage surrounded by her own seven-piece band. She admitted, after singing several numbers, that she had "a real bad cold." And the night's raw, weather probably did not help her sniffles.

But the slender, long-haired,

LORETTA LYNN

dark-eyed performer charmed her audience, asking in her sweet, Southern drawl, "Y'all like country music?"

And like it they did.

In an hour's time, she sang nearly a dozen songs among them "Help Me Make It Through The Night," "One's On The Way," "Coal Miner's Daughter," and "You Ain't Woman Enough To Take My Man."

She later paired up with a lead guitarist from her band and belted out a spine-tingling "Me and Bobby McGee." She also doubled up with guest singer Kenny Star for one of the best numbers of the evening - a lively "Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Ma".

Lynn, has been singing since she was a little girl in Butcher Hollow, Ky. Her father, however, did not seem to appreciate his daughter's musical efforts. He reportedly used to tell Loretta to "shut that big mouth" of hers.

Happily, she didn't.

Mrs. Lynn, 38, was married at the age of 13 and was a grandmother at age 28. She was the first woman to be named Entertainer of the Year by the Country Music Association. She was also voted The Distinguished Kentuckian of the Year by her home state. And Newsweek ran a cover story on her in June 1973.

To date Loretta has cut more than 30 bestselling albums.

And she doesn't intend to stop.

If you like country-western music Cohasset is the place to be this week.

Harry James was eight years old when he first learned how to play the trumpet.

His parents were circus people. And it was while sitting in with the circus band that the great persuasiveness with which he hammers home his great musical ideas began its embryonic start.

He was only 20 when Benny Goodman [who, incidentally, will be at the South Shore Music Circus for one night Sunday, July 7] heard his sweet horn in a Ben Pollack recording of "Deep Elm" - a song which has always been and will always be in Harry's repertoire. The "King of Swing" immediately investigated and signed Harry James to play with his revolutionary, world-famous band.

Because Goodman's material demanded much of his sidemen, Harry James' music flourished as his unmistakable style became perfected. Consequently, his reputation grew until finally, in 1939, he decided to go out on his own; backed by Benny Goodman's complete faith...and money. It was thus that Harry James and the Music Makers came into being.

By 1943 ["You Made Me Love You" had been on the top of the charts for two years.] the band had catapulted to such a degree of fame that it required special police squads to hold back the swarming thousands trying to gain entrance to the Paramount Theatre in New York where Harry James and the Music Makers were performing. The resulting traffic jams and riots made front page news across the country.

James has, obviously enough, had an extremely exciting career. However, it's not the only one. He's had several.

While under contract to 20th Century Fox he appeared in 10 films along with signing as technical advisor for "Young Man With A Horn", a film in which he also played all the trumpet parts.

Plans formulated for a half-hour dramatic television series starring James have been canceled several times in order to allow the trumpeter and his now called "Swinging Band" to fill their world-wide demanded engagements.

He'll be at the South Shore Music Circus Sunday, for one night only. Show time is 8 p.m.

Morrisette's title hopes hit a snag last week when it dropped a 3-2 decision to Hingham, which scored twice in the final inning to win. Morrisette continued to have hitting troubles with only five hits, while Mark Dwyer lost a seven-hitter.

Morrisette bounced back to wallop Canton, 9-2, with John Lawlor pitching a four-hitter Mike DePolo had four for four including a double to spark a nine-hit attack.

Quincy dropped an 8-2 decision to Milton as it collected only three hits and Milton had nine off two Quincy pitchers.

Although Wollaston, back in the Legion was after more than 15 years absence, continues to find the going rocky it is playing exciting ball and most defeats can be attributed to inexperience.

Last week Wollaston overcame a 5-2 deficit with three runs in the sixth to tie Hingham, 5-5, only to have Hingham explode for five in the seventh for a 10-5 win.

Rich Marino had a long triple for Wollaston, the only extra base hit of the game.

Wollaston also lost to league leading Weymouth in its latest outing, 7-2, as Weymouth scored six in the first inning. Rich Magnarelli had three hits for Wollaston.

●Senior Babe Ruth Powers Hits Grand Slam As Quincy Wins 5th

Quincy's Data Services scored six runs in the fourth and five in the fifth and had scored four in the sixth before the rains came and washed the game out as Quincy, with the four sixth inning runs washed out, defeated Weymouth III, 11-7, to make its South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League record 5 wins, 2 losses and a tie.

The big blow was Dave Power's grand slam home run in the fifth inning over the fence and trees in deep center field. Mark Jaehnis and Eric Carrera had doubles and each scored two runs. Spike Cooney overcame early wildness and came back to pitch a strong game.

In its previous game Data Services dropped a 4-3 decision to South Boston III when Southie scored three runs in the sixth to win it.

Power hit a sky-scraping triple to deep right field and catcher Paul Coner was two for three including a double.

Earlier Quincy defeated Milton, 5-1, scoring three runs in the fifth inning.

Gerry Bugden scattered eight hits to pick up his second win and struck out 10. Aggressive base running by Paul Messina, Eric Carrera and Bugden sparked the big inning. Messina had two doubles.

Coner leads the Quincy batters with a .529 average. Jaehnis has a .429 average and Billy Pitts, at bat only seven times, also is batting .429 and has a .714 slugging average. Power has a .750 slugging average.

Bugden is the top pitcher with a 2-0 record and has 16 strikeouts and five walks. His ERA is only 1.08.

RENTALS REAL ESTATE SALES

12-Story Luxury Condominium Under Construction In Downtown Area

77 Adams Place, a 12-story luxury condominium in downtown Quincy, is now under construction with a September 1975 completion date, according to Joseph E. Corcoran, President of Corcoran, Mullins, Jennison, Inc., the developers.

The project is owned by 77 Adams Place Trust, which is a joint venture of Corcoran, Mullins, Jennison, Inc., developers, and Peabody Construction Company, General Contractors. South Shore National Bank granted a $5 million construction loan.

The building is the result of extensive planning with Mayor Walter Hannon and the City's Downtown Development Director, John Cheney. It will be the first major high-rise construction in the downtown Quincy renewal program, and, according to Mayor Hannon, will serve as a focal point for the northern edge of the downtown area.

The $6.5 million structure will contain 113 condominium units. Floors one through 10 will house one bedroom units ranging from $34,000 to $51,500 and two bedroom units from $45,000 to $79,000. The 11th and 12th floor units will be penthouse units, and may be customized in certain areas. The penthouse units will range from $46,000 to $87,000.

An outstanding feature of 77 Adams Place, according to Joseph R. Mullins, Project Director, is the rooftop recreation area with pool, sundeck, multi-purpose community room with kitchen [all with a panoramic view of Boston and the South Shore] and saunas. More than half of the units will have views of Quincy Bay, Boston Harbor and the islands, and the Boston skyline, while the Adams St. side will overlook the Furnace Brook Golf Club and the Blue Hills in the distance.

Some of the unique features include oversized balconies with patio access from living room and bedroom, optional custom cabinets by Wood-Hu Kitchens, optional parquet or broadloom flooring. General Electric top-of-the-line appliances and washer-dryer hook-ups in every unit.

During the construction period, the sales office will be located immediately adjacent to the site at 14 Alleyne St. The office will be open daily from ten to six and the public is invited to inspect the building model, full scale customized kitchen and floor plans. Occupancy is scheduled for Fall 1975.

According to Linda Dixon, Marketing Director, 77 Adams Place will be the "finest" address on the South Shore. It will have strong appeal to homeowners living close by in South Shore communities, whose families are grown and who want less household maintenance without sacrificing the comforts they are accustomed to.

Demand is also anticipated from young married couples who recognize the advantages of home ownership, and single working people, who are buying condominiums in great numbers.

77 Adams Place is ideally located less than 5 minutes walk from the new MBTA Rapid Transit Terminal, and one minute from Upland Road, Quincy's new bypass road with easy access to the Southeast Expressway, Route 128 and Route 3.

● Along The Campaign Trail Williams Takes Stand On Issues At Reception

A campaign reception was held at the Fore River Clubhouse in honor of Atty. Thomas F. Williams, candidate for State Representative in the First Norfolk District.

Williams told the gathering of 550 that "now is the time for the people in the community to get involved in both state and federal government."

The only way to combat such problems as the current high cost of living, spiraling taxes and the high unemployment rate is to elect qualified people to public office who would work to curb these problems and promote their best interests, he said.

Williams spoke in favor of a quick settlement to the current Quincy shipyard strike, but stressed that General Dynamics must give the employees at the shipyard "a living wage".

Williams also called for the immediate demolition of the derelict buildings on the corner of Washington St. and the Southern Artery. He said "this blighted area is a long standing eyesore to the people of the district and that as hardworking taxpayers they deserve to have this slum demolished."

While discussing the aspects of a new Fore River Bridge, Williams said a bigger bridge and deeper channel is needed to encourage the economic growth of this district.

However, he stressed the importance of constructing an elevated or swing bridge that would not harm the residential neighborhoods in the Quincy and North Weymouth areas. Williams also cited the importance of the waterfront and pledged that if elected he would strive to both protect and improve this great natural resource.

Williams also stated his opposition to forced busing and said that as a family man he would "definitely oppose any bill which would force families in the district to bus their children to schools outside their neighborhoods."

In attendance were many senior citizens.

'Common Sense Approach Needed,' Says Papile

"The time has come for a common sense candidate with a common sense approach to government," said James P. Papile of Quincy, a candidate for state representative from the new First Norfolk District.

"I am not a professionally trained politician but I believe in the will of the citizen and am working very hard based on that will."

Papile spoke before some 150 invited guests, including Kathleen O'Donnell, national committeewoman for the Young Democrats, at a tea reception at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club in Quincy Point Sunday [June 23].

Miss O'Donnell, introducing the candidate, urged women to "actively become involved in the campaign this summer, even if only for a few hours."

The reception was sponsored by women from the district. Sadie Papile of 4 Harkins St. was chairman.

The First Norfolk District, now represented by the retiring Rep. Clifford H. Marshall, will include for the first time this fall two precincts in North Weymouth.

Papile pointed out that he lived for nine years in North Weymouth. His current

14 Complain Of Water Run-off

Fourteen residents of Fairview Rd and Common St. have petitioned the Quincy Planning Board, complaining about water run-off from Quarry St.

The residents are also requesting "a full and impartial investigation" of a proposed condominium development. They feel that the condominium would aggravate the water run-off and drainage problems.

residence is at 12 Harkins St., Quincy Point.
